Two Killed, 32 Injured As Bus, Car, Truck Crash

Traffic Backed Up Half-Mile Along Baltimore Blvd. In Driving Rain

A man and wife died and 32 persons were injured as result of a spectacular crash of a Greyhound bus, a tractor-trailer truck, and a convertible automobile on the Washington-Baltimore blvd. yesterday.

The dead couple and one of the injured women were in the convertible, which was crumpled like paper by the jack-knifing tractor-trailer. The two parts separated, the tractor being in collision with the coupe, and the trailer careening across the road directly into the path of the heavily loaded bus.

The dead couple were identified as Harold M. Quenzer, 42, and his wife, age undetermined, of Towson, Md., a suburb of Baltimore. Authorities said they were part of a gay party of four couples who left Baltimore in three automobiles to come to Washington for dinner.

With them was Mrs. Doti Gallen, 28, wife of a Baltimore dentist who was riding in one of the other cars of the party. She was reported in serious condition at University Hospital, Baltimore, where Mr. Quenzer was found to be dead on his arrival.

Woman Dies in Hospital

Mrs. Quenzer died a few minutes after arrival at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md., after trying desperately but without avail to make her identity known to a physician. She was not identified until nearly five hours after the crash.

Driver of the bus, Lee Turner Poole, 24, of 49 Jonesville rd., Herndon, Va., suffered a compound fracture of the right leg, other cuts and bruises. He was on the operating table at Leland Memorial Hospital for more than two hours last night as surgeons worked to repair his leg.

The driver of the tractor-trailer truck, which was traveling empty back to Baltimore, was Ernest Baker, 38, of that city, employe of the Wooleyhan Transportation Co. He suffered hand cuts and a bruised and wrenched shoulder.

He was treated at the scene. Subsequently, Maryland State Police charged him with manslaughter by motor vehicle and reckless driving. Taken before Trial Magistrate Edwin Haslup, at Savage, Md., he was ordered held under $3000 bond.

List of Injured

The list of injured taken to hospitals was:

University Hospital, Baltimore:

Erwin D. Schwartz, 57, of 1433 Belmont st. nw., Washington, fractured leg.

Mrs. Gallen.

Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale:

Poole, the bus driver.

Mrs. Lula Mae Jackson, 37, of 716 7th st. ne., Washington, nose cuts.

Bernice Wilson, 22, Annapolis Junction, Md.

James W. Sewell, 49, Hughesville, Md.

Willie Jones, 32, of 1513 N. Gratz

The north-bound tractor-trailer truck, trying to avoid another car, jack-knifed and smashed into the bus and convertible.

Farm 'Rider' Cut From ECA Bill

Senate Sustains Move to Withdraw Amendment to Aid Surplus Products

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday knocked out of the $5,647,000,000 foreign aid bill a "rider" freezing a large slice of ECA funds for purchase of surplus American farm products.

The amendment, a Senate storm center that recently sent the bill hurtling back to the Appropriations Committee, was ruled out on a point of order by Vice President Barkley.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) appealed the Barkley ruling but the Senaate backed up the Vice President, 52 to 32.

Spanish, French Riders Today

Two other legislative riders, that ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman thinks would hamstring his program, will be put up to Barkley today.

One earmarks 50 million dollars of ECA aid for a non-Marshall p! . country, Spain. The other denies ECA counterpart funds to France, unless French Morocco ends alleged discriminations against American business interests.

Another hazard to early clearance of the piled-up money bills was broadly hinted by Senator John R. McClellan (D., Ark.), author of the farm surplus rider knocked out yesterday.

McClellan told newsmen he "may" raise another point of order against the whole foreign aid bill on the ground that it carries legislation, and later make the same point against all remaining appropriation measures.

Other Money Bills Pending

Such a point of order last week by McClellan landed the foreign aid bill back in the Appropriations Committee, erasing all work previously done on it by the Senate. If such a move on foreign aid is sustained again, Congress would have to pass its third-in-a-row stop gap resolution to keep vital Government activities going. Interior, national defense and other money bills await Senate action.

The parliamentary point that ruled out the McClellan farm rider was raised by Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas of Illinois.

Lucas contended the Appropriations Committee violated Senate rules by exceeding its authority on two counts: (1) inserting legislation into a money bill and (2) imposing conditions dependent on an uncertain event, namely that all farm products affected will be in surplus.

The Vice President sustained Lucas on both grounds.

When the Senate sustained Barkley, by a 5 to 3 majority, McClellan had only one immediate recourse. He could move to suspend the Senate rules and adopt his amendment. That requires a two-thirds majority and the vote

Reported due for high posts in Department of Defense

President Expected To Announce Long Appointment List Under Unification

House Foreign Affairs Committee studies plans for foreign arms aid. Page 4.

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman is expected to announce a long list of appointments to high posts in the new Department of Defense shortly after signing legislation creating it.

Well informed officials at the Pentagon understand the new positions created by the unification act expected to become law today will be filled as follows:

Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, to be chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Marx Leva, special assistant and general counsel to Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, to be Assistant Secretary of Defense. He probably will continue as general counsel of the department.

Wilfred J. McNeil, Johnson's special assistant on budget matters, to be Comptroller of the Department of Defense and an Assistant Secretary of Defense.

Paul H. Griffith, former American Legion national commander, and a personal assistant to Johnson, to be Assistant Secretary of Defense. Griffith is a Republican.

Appointments to several other top posts, either vacant now or to be open soon, may be announced at the same time.

Admiral Louis Denfeld, chief of naval operations is slated to be reappointed to another two-year term in that post. His present tour runs out this fall.

Assistant Secretary of the Army Tracy S. Voorhees, a Republican, is expected to be promoted to Undersecretary.

Archibald S. Alexander, unsuccessful Democratic candidate in the New Jersey Senatorial race last fall, probably will be named Assistant Secretary of the Army in charge of procurement. Voorhees would continue to handle German and Japanese occupation matters under the new setup.

Most likely candidate to succeed General Bradley as Army Chief of Staff is Gen. J. Lawson (Lightnin' Joe) Collins, now vice chief of staff. He is reported to have Army Secretary Gordon Gray's firm backing, and probably Bradley's indorsement.

However, the friends of several other ranking Army chiefs still are pushing their names. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the Sixth Army, and Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, former Ambassador to Russia, and now commander of the First Army, are possibilities. Lieut. Gen. George C. Wedemeyer, Army plans chief, and Gen. Thomas T. Handy, Fourth Army commander, also are mentioned.

Meanwhile, Johnson made three appointments to newly established high posts at the Pentagon.

Moslem Chief, Wife Held Up Near Villa; Gems and Cash Taken

Cannes, France, Aug. 3 (AP).—Four tommygunners waylaid the fabulously wealthy Aga Khan and his wife today and seized jewels and money they valued at $450,000 to $800,000.

The Aga Khan was on his way to Deauville to visit his son, the Aly Khan, and the latter's wife, Rita Hayworth.

In the third big robbery in France in two days, the car of the 72-year-old Moslem leader was halted on a curve near his villa in the hills of Le Cannet, 3 miles north of Cannes. With him were his wife, the Begum, and a maid and chauffeur.

The gunmen used a black, front-wheel-drive Citroen, a French-make car. Police set up roadblocks throughout the province and later found the getaway car abandoned in Cannes. Police took the Aga Khan, his wife and their maid and chauffeur out on the road during the afternoon to reenact the crime.

The bandits cut the rear tires of the Aga Khan's car.

"Guns were put upon us," the Aga Khan said, "but we were not fired upon. There were no shots fired."

The Begum estimated the jewels' value at 150,000,000 francs (about $450,000). The Aga Khan said they were worth $600,000 to $800,000. He said they were insured for their full value up to $800,000.

Some 200,000 francs (about $600) in cash was taken, the Begum added. She described one piece as containing a 25-carat diamond valued at about $75,000; one jeweled bracelet valued at about $190,000 and one marquise

Signs Point To Halting of Economic Slip

Employment Gains, Business Loans Up, Construction Booms

An increase in business loans by banks, the first such rise in 28 weeks, last night was added to other indications that the country's economic decline may have come to a halt.

The number of employed persons reached a new high for this year in July, though the number of unemployed rose above four million for the first time in more than seven years.

Construction activity climbed more than seasonally in the same month, and retained a lead over the high levels of a year ago.

Further accenting the rosier economic hue recently reported in numerous fields, Earl R. Muir, spokesman for the American Bankers Association, told a Senate committee there is no danger of a real depression when "some 175 billion dollars" in savings and deposits are in the hands of the public. He said that in fact business is showing a pickup.

For 27 weeks, bank loans for business purposes had been declining in record-breaking fashion, until on July 20 they were $2,757,000,000 below the all-time high reached last December 22.

But yesterday the Federal Reserve Board reported that such loans by banks in leading cities increased 16 million dollars in the week ended July 27. This brought them to a total of $12,891,000,000.

The rise was comparatively small and was considered due in large part to seasonal factors—business borrowing to build up stocks for the fall and Christmas seasons.

But the fact that they rose at all, and thus reversed the long downtrend, was considered heartening by some officials, especially when taken in conjunction with

Divorce in the District

Marriage Difficult Business, Especially So in Washington

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

(Fifth of a Series)

Marriage, the divorce lawyer had been saying when the venture with the private eye interrupted, is a difficult business, but especially so in the District of Columbia. He was asked to elaborate.

So they get off at 5 o'clock, he went on to explain from the experience of nearly a score of years. Although this is one of the more plush offices of its kind, his clients include SP-1's, or at least SP-2's, as well as citizens of Chevy Chase.

They get off at 5 o'clock and the young wife stops and gets the groceries.

She comes home, and hot and tired as she is, gets dinner.

All is fine and burdens seem only a joy so long as marriage is very young and love is in its freshest bloom.

But one fine evening so many months later and after she has prepared dinner, hot and tired as she is, and is doing the dishes afterward, she looks up from the greasy suds.

Her eyes come to rest on the blithe and contented figure of her husband in the living room. And her fertile little mind starts ticking:

"What the hell, I work the same as he does. My money goes into the household same as his does. But there the big fat oaf sits, reading the newspaper instead of helping me with the dishes. What's in it for me? Phoo-y! Give me back my room on Dupont Circle."

Thus, in that strange organism no man knows—woman's mind—flowers in dark and sinister fashion the small seed that may and frequently these days does blossom into District Court and divorce.

Getting a divorce means getting a lawyer. Standards vary

Postal Boost Advances

Senate Unit Votes $125 Hike For Classified Employes

By Jerry Kluttz

There was fast and furious action yesterday in Congress on the several Federal employe pay-reclassification bills.

The Senate Civil Service Committee gave its approval to two bills: (1) to give the 850,000 classified employes an average pay boost of $125 a year and other benefits, and (2) to raise the salaries of more than 200 Federal executives.

The Murray subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee indorsed a bill to give the 500,000 postal employes a flat $100 pay boost and to abolish the first two clerk-carrier grades. This measure would have the effect of fixing $2850 as the starting salary for clerks and carriers. An identical bill has the approval of the Senate Committee.

The full House committee will meet in executive session today on the postal and classified pay bills. It's clearly possible the House group will indorse the Senate bill for classified workers as well as the postal measure. The postal bill will come up for debate Monday on the House floor.

Also, the Senate committee is working on a third pay-raise bill for its Capitol Hill employes. That bill will provide an average increase of $120 for the rank-and-file legislative employe. It would boost administrative assistants and committee clerks to a maximum of $12,000 and raise the clerical allowance for members of Congress.

The committee yesterday voted down an amendment to raise the salaries of members of Congress to $20,000 to become effective January 1, 1951. The amendment

Catholic Gets 8 Years

Priest Jailed for Refusing Last Rites to Czech Red

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A Catholic priest was sentenced to eight years in jail today for refusing to give last rites to a dying Communist until she renounced the party and sent back her membership card, the official Czech news agency said today.

The report was the second today indicating the church is trying to put into efect in Czechoslovakia the Vatican decree excommunicating Communists and fellow-travelers, despite a government warning such actions would be considered high treason.

Earlier, the official Communist organ, Rude Pravo, attacked Archbishop Josef Matocha, second ranking Catholic in Czechoslovakia, for trying to excommunicate a priest who refused to quit the government-sponsored Catholic Action group.

The Rev. Alois Fajstl, a priest of Sobranice in Eastern Bohemia, was sentenced to eight years at hard labor on charges of "high treason" because he refused the last sacraments to Sofie Paclikova, 67, until she renounced her Communist affiliations.

The official Czech agency said Father Fajstl's property was confiscated and he lost his rights as a citizen for 10 years.

It said he was called on July 16 to give the last rites to Sofie Paclikova, seriously sick with pneumonia and near death. Before starting the religious rites, Fajstl asked Paclikova whether she was a member of the Communist Party.

"When she said she was, he told her than according to the papal decree of July 13, the Communists and their sympathizers were excommunicated from the church

Hunt Bought Matches Marked as Truman's

St. Louis, Aug. 3 (AP).—A maker of book matches said today James V. Hunt last December bought 2500 books with the inscription "Swiped from Harry S. Truman."

Hunt is a central figure in a congressional investigation of 5 percenters.

Samuel M. Rosenberg, vice president of the Universal Match Corp. of St. Louis, said a House subcommittee sent him a telegram yesterday asking about the company's dealings with Hunt.

Farm 'Rider' Cut From ECA Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday knocked out of the $5,647,000,000 foreign aid bill a "rider" freezing a large slice of ECA funds for purchase of surplus American farm products.

The amendment, a Senate storm center that recently sent the bill hurtling back to the Appropriations Committee, was ruled out on a point of order by Vice President Barkley.

Senate Appropriations Chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) appealed the Barkley ruling but the Senaate backed up the Vice President, 52 to 32.

Senate Administration forces, driving to break ECA money out of the log-jam still blocking the bulk of the President's budget, thus won the first Marshall Plan round, but faced rougher going ahead.

One earmarks 50 million dollars of ECA aid for a non-Marshall p! .. country, Spain. The other denies ECA counterpart funds to France, unless French Morocco ends alleged discriminations against American business interests.

Another hazard to early clearance of the piled-up money bills was broadly hinted by Senator John R. McClellan (D., Ark.), author of the farm surplus rider knocked out yesterday.

McClellan told newsmen he "may" raise another point of order against the whole foreign aid bill on the ground that it carries legislation, and later make the same point against all remaining appropriation measures.

Other Money Bills Pending

Such a point of order last week by McClellan landed the foreign aid bill back in the Appropriations Committee, erasing all work previously done on it by the Senate. Lucas contended the Appropriations Committee violated Senate rules by exceeding its authority on two counts: (1) inserting legislation into a money bill and (2) imposing conditions dependent on an uncertain event, namely that all farm products affected will be in surplus.

The Vice President sustained Lucas on both grounds.

Employment Gains, Business Loans Up, Construction Booms

An increase in business loans by banks, the first such rise in 28 weeks, last night was added to other indications that the country's economic decline may have come to a halt.

Five more Washington area dairies yesterday raised the price of their milk a cent a quart.

The increase was put into effect by Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase, now 21½ cents a quart; Embassy, 20 cents and 21½ cents; Wakefield, 21½ cents and Alexandria, 21½ cents. Richfield also put up the price of milk a cent a quart but sells wholesale only.

Hunt Bought Matches Marked as Truman's

St. Louis, Aug. 3 (AP).—A maker of book matches said today James V. Hunt last December bought 2500 books with the inscription "Swiped from Harry S. Truman."

Hunt is a central figure in a congressional investigation of 5 percenters.

Samuel M. Rosenberg, vice president of the Universal Match Corp. of St. Louis, said a House subcommittee sent him a telegram yesterday asking about the company's dealings with Hunt.

Divorce in the District

Marriage Difficult Business, Especially So in Washington

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

(Fifth of a Series)

Marriage, the divorce lawyer had been saying when the venture with the private eye interrupted, is a difficult business, but especially so in the District of Columbia. He was asked to elaborate.

So they get off at 5 o'clock, he went on to explain from the experience of nearly a score of years. Although this is one of the more plush offices of its kind, his clients include SP-1's, or at least SP-2's, as well as citizens of Chevy Chase.

They get off at 5 o'clock and the young wife stops and gets the groceries.

She comes home, and hot and tired as she is, gets dinner.

All is fine and burdens seem only a joy so long as marriage is very young and love is in its freshest bloom.

But one fine evening so many months later and after she has prepared dinner, hot and tired as she is, and is doing the dishes afterward, she looks up from the greasy suds.

Her eyes come to rest on the blithe and contented figure of her husband in the living room. And her fertile little mind starts ticking:

"What the hell, I work the same as he does. My money goes into the household same as his does. But there the big fat oaf sits, reading the newspaper instead of helping me with the dishes. What's in it for me? Phoo-y! Give me back my room on Dupont Circle."

Thus, in that strange organism no man knows—woman's mind—flowers in dark and sinister fashion the small seed that may and frequently these days does blossom into District Court and divorce.

Getting a divorce means getting a lawyer. Standards vary

Senate Unit Votes $125 Hike For Classified Employes

By Jerry Kluttz

There was fast and furious action yesterday in Congress on the several Federal employe pay-reclassification bills.

The Senate Civil Service Committee gave its approval to two bills: (1) to give the 850,000 classified employes an average pay boost of $125 a year and other benefits, and (2) to raise the salaries of more than 200 Federal executives.

The Murray subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee indorsed a bill to give the 500,000 postal employes a flat $100 pay boost and to abolish the first two clerk-carrier grades. This measure would have the effect of fixing $2850 as the starting salary for clerks and carriers. An identical bill has the approval of the Senate Committee.

The full House committee will meet in executive session today on the postal and classified pay bills. It's clearly possible the House group will indorse the Senate bill for classified workers as well as the postal measure. The postal bill will come up for debate Monday on the House floor.

Also, the Senate committee is working on a third pay-raise bill for its Capitol Hill employes. That bill will provide an average increase of $120 for the rank-and-file legislative employe. It would boost administrative assistants and committee clerks to a maximum of $12,000 and raise the clerical allowance for members of Congress.

The committee yesterday voted down an amendment to raise the salaries of members of Congress to $20,000 to become effective January 1, 1951. The amendment

Catholic Gets 8 Years

Priest Jailed for Refusing Last Rites to Czech Red

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A Catholic priest was sentenced to eight years in jail today for refusing to give last rites to a dying Communist until she renounced the party and sent back her membership card, the official Czech news agency said today.

The report was the second today indicating the church is trying to put into efect in Czechoslovakia the Vatican decree excommunicating Communists and fellow-travelers, despite a government warning such actions would be considered high treason.

Earlier, the official Communist organ, Rude Pravo, attacked Archbishop Josef Matocha, second ranking Catholic in Czechoslovakia, for trying to excommunicate a priest who refused to quit the government-sponsored Catholic Action group.

The Rev. Alois Fajstl, a priest of Sobranice in Eastern Bohemia, was sentenced to eight years at hard labor on charges of "high treason" because he refused the last sacraments to Sofie Paclikova, 67, until she renounced her Communist affiliations.

The official Czech agency said Father Fajstl's property was confiscated and he lost his rights as a citizen for 10 years.

It said he was called on July 16 to give the last rites to Sofie Paclikova, seriously sick with pneumonia and near death. Before starting the religious rites, Fajstl asked Paclikova whether she was a member of the Communist Party.

"When she said she was, he told her than according to the papal decree of July 13, the Communists and their sympathizers were excommunicated from the church

Gabrielson Favored As GOP Assembles

By D. Harold Oliver
Associated Press Reporter

Republicans gathering for their "harmony" meeting today reported it was Guy George Gabrielson of New Jersey against the field for election as national committee chairman.

All conceded that the New Jersey committeeman was in the lead to succeed retiring Representative Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. Whether he had enough votes was debatable, however.

Western delegations were trying to find a candidate west of the Alleghenies who would command substantial support in opposition. Members from the key 1948 Republican states of New York and Pennsylvania also were looking for a man, although publicly they said they were not for or against anyone.

All agreed that the new chairman, who will hold office until the 1952 national convention, should have the backing of a substantial majority of the 102-member committee (there are three vacancies), not just a bare margin.

Gabrielson's opponents were talking of Committeemen Harry Darby of Kansas and Arthur E. Summerfield of Michigan, but both told reporters they were unavailable because they feel they cannot leave their businesses for the full time committee job.

The Western opposition was discussing Axel J. Beck of South Dakota, a committee member, and A. T. (Bert) Howard, State chairman of Nebraska. Friends of both were conducting open campaigns, but others said support for them was only scattered.

J. Russel Sprague, New York, and G. Mason Owlett, Pennsylvania, were quietly surveying the field. There was talk that they might back Harold E. Mitchell, Connecticut committeeman, if the West could not come up with a strong candidate with all-region backing.

Gabrielson's aides said the forces of Governor Thomas E. Dewey spearheaded by New York and Pennsylvania, were trying to find a candidate to oppose the New Jersey man, but so far had not succeeded.

The opposition to the New Jersey lawyer-industrialist centered around the argument that he was for Senator Taft of Ohio for the presidential nomination last year and that he comes from the East. The East is already represented by Senator Brewster of Maine and Representative Leonard W. Hall of New York, as chairmen of the Senate and House campaign committees.

Gabrielson, when asked about this, told newsmen he was for Taft in 1948, but was not a delegate to the convention. He said he is "completely neutral" as to future presidential candidates, and would not take the job if he were not. He also replied that he was born and raised in Iowa.

Reorganization

Senate Unit Passes on 4 Agency Plans

A Senate committee yesterday in effect approved four presidential plans for reorganizing Government agencies.

It acted after Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.) accused Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing of insulting the committee in connection with a fifth plan.

Reorganization plans submitted to Congress by the President go into effect automatically after 60 days unless either the Senate or House dissents.

The Senate Expenditures Committee gave tacit approval to four plans by deciding against the filing of a recommendation that they be rejected. Each of the plans thus will become effective August 20 unless at least one branch of Congress disapproves before then.

Provisions of Plans

The plans provide for:

1. Changes in the operation and management of the Post Office.
2. Transfer of the National Security Council and the National Resources Board to the Executive Office of the President.
3. Making the chairman of the Civil Service Commission responsible for operation of civil service programs, within regulations made by the commission.
4. Revision of the administration of operating activities of the Maritime Commission by vesting executive authority in the chairman.

President Truman also has submitted another plan calling for creation of a Cabinet-ranking Department of Welfare. The committee deferred action on that after McCarthy, who opposes the move, got into a squabble with Ewing, who is for the plan.

Ewing touched off the brisk exchange by saying he hoped the committee would not let "a plan as innocuous as this" be defeated "by a group whose interest is as remote as the doctors' is."

Medical groups have opposed the plan, contending it might open the way to subordinating health activities to welfare activities. The director of the proposed new department would have jurisdiction over the fields of health, education and social security.

When Ewing expresses the hope the committee would not turn down the plan because of the opposition of medical groups, McCarthy declared:

"I resent that. I don't like someone coming before us and saying our actions are decided by some group. I think it is an insult to the committee to indicate it is subject to pressure by any one group.

"I don't think this committee is controlled or dominated by any pressure group."

U. S. Aid for Hospital Building Speeded

A House Interstate Commerce subcommittee yesterday approved a bill to double the Federal aid program for hospital construction to 150 million dollars a year. It also extended the program to 1955.

Bank Conversion Bill Is Passed by House

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill to permit national banks to convert into State banks with the consent of two-thirds of their stockholders.

State banks may convert into national banks under existing law. But national banks can convert into State banks only by self-liquidation and payment of a capital gains tax.

'Spoils System' Fears Voiced By Supporters of Hatch Act

By The Associated Press

Virginia and Maryland Federal workers testified yesterday that proposed changes in the Hatch Act would be a return to the "spoils system."

They told a House Subcommittee the proposal to allow Federal employes to take active part in political campaigns would "cut the heart out of the Hatch Act."

Herbert N. Eaton, president of the Montgomery County (Maryland) Civic Federation, said such a change would "throw us right back to the spoils system."

"As it stands now this provision is a very sweeping section," he said. "We favor permitting participation in local elections, but not on higher levels."

Harold A. Ward, chairman of a Federal Employes Committee of Fairfax County, Va., said, "we feel the present Hatch Act serves our purpose because our chief interest is in local issus."

Chairman Harrison (D., Va.) said organizations of Federal workers under the guise of civic bodies can now take active part in political campaigns.

Harrison, while expressing support of the bill, offered by Representative Sutton (D., Tenn.), said he does not believe that Federal workers "while engaged in their duties, should be allowed to buttonhole people about voting."

Sutton said he feels his bill would give Government workers the "rights of American citizens."

Walter Mulligan, president of the Prince Georges County (Maryland) Civic Federation, said the Hatch Act is "the best protection for civic service people ever devised."

"It protects them from the revenue of politicians who they may have opposed during political campaigns," he added.

Hunt Goes to Hospital Here; Illness Won't Delay Probe

By Jack Steele
NYHT News Service

James V. Hunt, key witness in the Senate's "5 per center investigation, yesterday was taken to a Washington hospital where he is scheduled to undergo an operation today for removal of a blood clot in his leg.

This word was transmitted to the Senate Investigating Committee late yesterday by Roger Q. White, his attorney.

Senator Hoey (D., N. C.), the committee chairman, promptly announced that Hunt's illness would not delay the committee's public hearings, slated to start next Monday.

Hunt is the former lieutenant colonel in the Quartermaster Corps, whose activities as a 5 per center touched off the Senate inquiry after they were first disclosed by the New York Herald Tribune.

White told the committee that Hunt's physician estimated the witness would be hospitalized for at least five or six days.

White also disclosed yesterday the Senate committee had refused to give him "unlimited and unrestricted use" of Hunt's records and files, which he turned over to the committee in response to a subpena.

The attorney made public an exchange of letters with Senator Hoey on the issue.

The committee chairman, in response to a demand by White, declared it "would not be in the public interest" for the committee to return Hunt's files in advance of the public hearings.

White revealed in his letter that William P. Rogers, chief counsel for the committee, had refused to give him access to the records unless he signed a statement agreeing not to reveal the contents to Maj. Gens. Alden H. Waitt and Herman Feldman or their attorneys or the press.

Generals Waitt and Feldman were suspended by the Army July 16 pending investigation of charges they acted improperly or irregularly in giving information to Hunt.

Teacher Is Accused Of Whipping Nurse

TREVIS WISSENBURG

Omaha, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Little Trevis Wissenburg, 7, awoke today from a 38-hour slumber induced when he swallowed 23 sleeping tablets because his mother told him to take a nap, and he wanted to obey.

"Ouch!" he yelped, when doctors at Douglas Hospital jabbed him with a hypodermic needle carrying stimulants.

Until that cry the doctors had almost given him up for lost.

"It's a miracle," said Dr. Chester R. Poole. "We believed it was almost hopeless."

But now, Poolesaid, the boy was "definitely out of danger," and would be home soon.

His widowed mother, Mrs. Lova Wissenburg, had told Trevis to take a nap Monday before she left the house to go to the grocery.

"You told me to take a nap," Trevis explained to his mother when he woke up, "and I couldn't sleep.

"I took half the pills and they didn't make me go to sleep, so I took the other half."

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A married University of South Carolina professor was accused today of savagely gun-whipping for 2½ hours a pretty nurse whom he said he loved but planned to kill.

The nurse, Ann Pierce, 32, was in serious condition at Columbia Hospital where she worked. Doctors counted at least 100 lacerations on her head and face. They said they could not tell immediately how many teech had been knocked out.

Associate professor of engineering Russell B. Maxey, 45, admitted, police said, that he had planned to kill the nurse and then kill himself.

Sheriff T. Alex Heise said Maxey waited barefoot under the bed in Miss Pierce's bungalow until she came home last night. Shortly before she retired Maxey heard her talking on the telephone and believed she was phoning another man, Heise said.

He waited until she was almost fully undressed preparing for bed and then climbed out of his hiding place and beat her unmercifully for 2½ hours. Heise said the bungalow was "a terrible bloody mess" when officers broke in and found Maxey, exhausted from beating the woman in all five rooms of the wrecked house, lying on the floor with his legs clamped around her neck in a stranglehold.

A neighbor heard Miss Pierce's screams at about 2:30 a.m. and called sheriff's deputies. They followed Miss Pierce's instructions from inside the house as she lay in Maxey's clutch and broke through a window to rescue her.

Heise said Maxey apparently had been in love with the nurse for some time, and wanted to marry her as soon as he could end his marriage. Maxey was awaiting final divorce action, Heise said.

"I think he went out there last night for a showdown," Heise said. "Then he heard her talking on the phone and thought she was talking to another man. Actually she was talking about a real estate deal involving sale of her house."

Heise said the beating must have lasted from about midnight until officers arrived shortly before 3 a.m.

Public Rite Set For Want 'Ad' Marital Pair

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 3 (AP).—Charles Donaldson advertised for a wife yesterday and got a huge public response. Now he's planning a public wedding.

From among the hundreds of applicants who answered the want-ad, he chose Miss Irene Krebbs, 18, today.

"I've signed a contract with a manager to stage the wedding Saturday night," Donaldson said tonight. "I don't know where it will be. We can't get the ball park or municipal auditorium. My manager will take care of the arrangements"

The 22-year-old former soldier in the Fifth Air Force said his partner in a general contracting service, Orville Montimore, also had signed the contract to make it a double wedding.

17-Year-Old Father Says It Makes You Feel Sort of Proud

Thirteen-year-old Mrs. Wanda Gill Chappell and her new-born son, Larry Gene, were in fine condition yesterday at Arlington Hospital.

The 8-pound, 15-ounce baby boy was born Sunday to the young mother and her 17-year-old husband, Harold Chappell, of Vienna, Virginia.

Hospital officials said they "couldn't remember a younger mother" ever being admitted to the hospital.

The baby's father, an electrician's helper, said: "It makes you feel a little prouder."

Mrs. Chappell, originally of Oakton, Va., was married about a year ago after she finished seventh grade at Vienna Elementary School. Her husband quit Fairfax High School last summer.

The young couple is now living with Chappell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph V. Chappell, of Vienna, until their own home is completed.

Jury Indicts 12 in Flogging Of 7 Negroes

Rome, Ga., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A Federal grand jury today indicted 12 white men, including the sheriff and three deputies of Dade County, in connection with the masked flogging of seven Negroes at Hooker, Ga.

Among the 70 witnesses called by the grand jury in its two-day investigation was Dr. Samuel Green of Atlanta, Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan.

The jury charged the 12 white men with "conspiring to injure, oppress and intimidate" the seven Negroes "by assaulting them" on April 2.

The indictment specifically charged that Dade County Sheriff John W. Lynch and his three deputies "allowed the Negroes to be punished without trial and without the process of law by releasing them to the mob."

2 Women Store Sleuths Jail Man for Indecency

Willie H. Revels, 45, was given 90 days in jail yesterday for indecently touching the legs of two women store detectives on the Hecht Co. escalator.

The detectives said they noted that Revels was eyeing women getting on the moving stairway. They testified in Municipal Court that he molested a customer on the first flight, one detective on the second, and the other on the third. He was arrested on the fourth floor.

Tax Lien for $16,396 Filed Against Hotel Manager Here

A Federal tax lien notice for $16,396.37 on 1946 income was filed yesterday against the manager of a small hotel here.

It was one of 10 such notices filed in District Court against Washington residents and organizations by the Internal Revenue Collector in Baltimore.

The manager is Samuel H. Keets of the Henry Hotel, 1825 13th st. nw. He was unavailable for comment last night.

Another notice was filed against the National Negro Opera Co., Inc., for $1339.97 in taxes on admissions for May of this year. Mrs. Mary Cardwell Dawson of 1037 Evarts st. ne., founder and general manager of the opera company, said it has given no performance since last April and that all admission taxes were paid then.

Other notices for taxes amounting to more than a thousand dollars were filed against: Telemachos Morfessis, 617 7th st. sw., contractor, $1867.65 on income for 1946; Milton Polinger, $1874.19 on 1948 income, and Edith Polinger, $1648.47, on 1946 income, addresses of both given as 6600 Luzon ave. nw.; James Salkeld, 3017 Cortland pl. nw., salesman, $1409.45 on 1948 income, and Donald Washington, 4615 Clay st. ne., $1069.53 on 1946 and 1947 income.

solitaire of 25 carats valued at about $75,000.

Two jeweled bracelets valued at $90,000—one with 38 stones, the other 42—also were taken, along with a rare clip of emeralds and rubies.

She said the gunmen, all shabbily dressed, aimed their weapons at the car and called out: "Keep quiet. Don't make any noise. Hand over those bags and there won't be any trouble."

"We gave them three large handbags that were in the car," the Begum said. The bandits did not take some less-costly jewelry she was wearing.

Reports of the robbery stirred excitement in Deauville, but did not stop Aly Khan and Miss Haywarth from going for a drive.

A robbery, yesterday in Deauville, took place less than a block from Aly Khan's villa. Four masked men took 32 pieces of jewelry from the Van Cleef and Arpels jewelry store. The gems were valued at $160,000 to $320,000.

At Aix-en-Provence, messengers of the Bank of France lost 25 million francs (about $80,000) in another armed attack yesterday.

U. S., British Chiefs Confer on Defense

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—Plans for defending the Atlantic Pact nations of Western Europe took form today at the first conference of top-level British and American commanders here since the end of the war.

Following a closely guarded, four-hour conference, Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, United States Chief of Naval Operations, said completion of a defense setup "might be done before the end of the year."

Denfeld reported "considerable progress" by the joint chiefs of staff of the two nations.

Denfeld, Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenburg, United States Air Force Chief, met formally for three hours, then chatted informally an hour longer with British commanders. They were accompanied by Maj. Gen. A. M. Gruenther, United States joint staff secretary.

Received by King

The four Americans flew here last night after talks in Germany with Italian and Luxembourg military chiefs and United States occupation commanders. They will see Danish and Norwegian armed forces leaders here Thursday, then proceed to Paris for talks with the French, Belgians, Dutch and Portuguese.

The Americans, Danish and Norwegian staff chiefs were received by King George VI at Buckingham Palace tonight for what a palace source called a "friendly, informal talk."

Details of today's staff discussions were not disclosed.

It was known they centered on two problems:

1. Type and size of land, sea and air forces necessary to keep the peace in Europe.

2. Extent of financial and military aid necessary from the United States—and to a lesser extent from Britain—to insure creation of such forces.

Alliance Poses Problem

Another problem is fitting the existing five-nation Brussels alliance—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—into the broader 12-country Atlantic treaty.

British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, the Brussels alliance chief of staff, is visiting London from his headquarters near Paris and was called in briefly at today's meetings.

General Bradley said: "We have been discussing the details of the organization and I am very happy about the course the talks have taken."

The talks are not directly linked with the $1,450,000,000 United States foreign arms aid program now before Congress. But they will give the joint chiefs a yardstick with which to determine whether the appropriation—or whatever figure Congress finally sets—its enough to bring the Atlantic treaty into military effect.

The Communist newspaper L'Humanite called for demonstrations against the Atlantic Pact and "for peace" in Paris Friday, after the joint chiefs reach there.

The French government forbade the demonstration and planned for a strong police guard.

Moscow's Pravda, continuing Russian attacks on the Americans' tour, said they were traveling the same road toward war as Hitler.

It warned that arming Western Europe would yield for the U. S. the same results as the arming of Nationalist China, now being overrun by Communist armies.

McCloy Here To Discuss Cabinet Plan

By The Associated Press

John J. McCloy, American High Commissioner for Germany, opened a round of talks with top Government officials yesterday on organization of a 10-man cabinet to handle American policies in Germany.

McCloy

McCloy is now acting as American military governor. He succeeded retiring Gen. Lucius D. Clay in that post a month ago. Following creation of a German government for the Western zones he will become the first American civilian High Commissioner about September 15.

He came here by plane after spending several weeks in Germany.

Shortly after his arrival, McCloy went to defense headquarters to confer with Assistant Secretary of the Army Tracy Voorhees and Ambassador Robert Murphy, the chief of the State Department's German affairs section.

McCloy told newsmen he is here for "a very short visit to check up with the Army, State Department and Economic Cooperation Administration on administrative matters in Germany, including appropriations."

He added that he hopes to return before the German elections begin on August 14.

The elections will be held preliminary to formation of the German government which will have extensive powers over the conduct of German affairs in the Western zones, subject to the supervision of McCloy and the British and French High Commissioners.

Skeptical House Committee Studies Arms Aid Program

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Plans for carrying out the Administration's $1,450,000,000 foreign arms aid program were searchingly examined yesterday by members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Amounts and types of aid destined for specified countries, together with estimates of Soviet military power, were outlined at an all-day closed meeting by an array of 33 Army, Navy, Air Force, State Department and Economic Cooperation Administration representatives.

Several Democratic and Republican members of the committee told reporters later that this was the first basic program information they have received, but said it fell far short of answering many of their questions.

One Democratic Congressman, Representative George A. Smathers of Florida, said he was still "skeptical" about many aspects of the program.

Representatives James G. Fulton (R., Pa.) and Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) declared that they and many of their colleagues on both political sides of the committee were more convinced than ever that the bill contains unacceptable presidential power.

"It was a mistake to bring the bill in with that kind of request," stated Fulton, referring to the section which would give the President sole power to determine who shall receive aid.

"I can guarantee you," Judd declared, "that that section will not be in there when the bill is reported, unless it is drastically modified."

It was generally indicated that the program was being submitted to super-sensitive examination, and that committee members were demanding full supporting evidence for the facts presented to them.

"We don't just want to know what their figures are," declared one Congressman, "but we want to know how they got them."

The information presented, it was said, included the types of material to be supplied under the bill to Western European members of the North Atlantic Treaty, plus Greece, Turkey, Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

No countries are named in the actual legislation, however, which authorizes the President to give aid to "any nation" within the purview of the act, while the President could determine what constitutes a "nation."

A Republican, and possibly bipartisan attempt is expected to be made in Congress to specify in the bill exactly which nations will receive aid. This would greatly restrict, or eliminate, the "fluid" authority sought for the President.

Representative Judd said he was seriously suspicious of the "blanket grant of power" for the President in the program. Similar concern has been expressed by other House members, and members of the joint Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees which will hear testimony on the bill starting on Monday.

Judd said he did not wish to cast any reflection on President Truman, but this request for powers results either from " a situation much more serious than any one has suggested, or else is just bureaucratic."

It would empower the President, he said, "to enter into internal intrigues of every country in the world. I don't doubt that there are one or two countries where that might be advisable, but if so, say so."

Judd, a vigorous proponent of aid to non-Communist China, said he realizes the power could be employed to give aid to warlord leaders in China who might make effective use of it to fight communism, but "I don't want aid to China if we have to violate our basic principles."

There have been indications, as a result of congressional pressure, that the Administration will agree to some modifications of the bill—including revisions in the language on presidential authority—but will insist on the full cash outlay of $1,450,000,000 despite Republican demands to cut that figure in half.

The requested sum would include 45 million dollars for an "emergency fund," while "excess" weapons which cost this country 450 million dollars would be written off at a 75 million dollar "rehabilitation" charge.

The large delegation which met with the House committee yesterday was headed by Dr. Lloyd V. Berkner, special assistant to the Secretary of State and chairman of the Foreign Activity Coordinating Committee, in charge of the arms plan.

Also present was Maj. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chief representative on the FACC for the National Military Establishment, and Edward T. Dickson, jr., chief ECA representative.

Representative John Kee (D., W. Va.) announced that, "General Lemnitzer discussed the strategic concepts involved in the program, and gave the committee certain intelligence information as background.

"Dr. Berkner supplied information on the types of production that might be promoted by assistance to western Europe," said Kee, and "Dickinson supplied the committee with answers to specific questions concerning the impact of the program on European recovery."

All were questioned "at some length," Kee announced.

Secretary of State Acheson has urged that Congress withhold a verdict on the program until the facts can be presented, and Dr. Berkner told reporters yesterday, "We're just getting down to the guts of the program."

Representative Fulton, however, said committee members felt the military witnesses were "not well briefed" on the plan and "they're getting a very severe going over."

Republican and Democratic committee members, he said, "do not feel there is an open presentation" of the facts. The Administration, he said, apparently thought approval of the bill would be a "push-over" in the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and probably now wishes it had gone to the House Armed Services Committee instead.

Several of the Foreign Affairs Committee members, he noted, are World War II veterans or are otherwise personally familiar with the countries concerned and therefore in unusual position to challenge the testimony presented.

Into the closed committee meeting went a dozen or more maps and charts to aid in outlining the secret defense proposals.

Some committee members, however, criticised the extent of secrecy, and Representative Judd estimated that "80 to 90 per cent of the information could be made public without damage to recipient countries or ourselves, without benefit to the Russians, and with tremendous benefit to the Nation."

NOW! Dental Science Reveals a Startling Discovery in the Fight Against Tooth Decay

PROOF THAT BRUSHING TEETH RIGHT AFTER EATING IS THE SAFE, EFFECTIVE WAY TO

HELP STOP TOOTH DECAY with Colgate Dental Cream

The Most Important News in Dental History!
Exhaustive Research on Hundreds of People by Eminent Dental Authorities Proves How Using Colgate Dental Cream Helps Stop Tooth Decay Before It Starts!

NOW dental science offers scientific proof that brushing teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating is an effective, safe way to help prevent new cavities, greatly reduce tooth decay!

More than a year's continuous research—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most important news in dental history!

For now—the same toothpaste you use to clean your breath while you clean your teeth—offers a safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

Colgate's Is Safe — Not An Experimental Formula!

Colgate Dental Cream has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients—including an exclusive patented ingredient—for effective daily dental care. No risk of irritation to tissues and gums!

The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula that was used in the tests.

You can use Colgate's with confidence. Colgate's is safe—and using it as directed is a safe, proved way to avoid needless cavities—actually help stop tooth decay at home!

NO CHANGE IN FLAVOR, FOAM, OR CLEANSING ACTION!

Millions know that Colgate's cleans their breath while it cleans their teeth. That its wonderful wake-up flavor is preferred over all other dentifrices tested. That no other toothpaste does a better job of cleaning teeth. And there has been no change in Colgate's famous flavor—its marvelous foaming quality—or its safe and thorough cleansing action!

X-RAYS SHOW HOW PROPER USE OF COLGATE'S HELPS STOP TOOTH DECAY!

Eminent dental authorities supervised 2 groups of college men and women for more than a year. One group always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating. The other group followed their usual dental care. X-rays were taken at regular intervals.

The average of the group using Colgate Dental Cream as directed was a startling reduction in number of cavities—far less tooth decay! The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate!

Regular visits to your dentist are necessary for complete dental care. No home method can help everyone; nor can it stop all tooth decay or help cavities already started!

NO OTHER DENTIFRICE OFFERS PROOF OF THESE RESULTS

Acheson Expresses Confidence in Lie

'Smokescreen'

Red in U. N. Denounces Slave Story

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 3 (AP). British charges of slavery in Russia, organized on a mass-production basis, today touched off a bitter debate in the United Nations Economic and Social Council.

Amazasp Arutiunian, Soviet delegate to the 18-nation council, accused British Delegate Corley Smith of trying to emulate the late Nazi Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels "by repeating the same lies and slanders which Goebbels disseminated."

The Russian spokesman gave several reasons for the British charges, most startling of which was that the accusations were a smokescreen to cover activities of the American Chiefs of Staff now visiting Western Europe.

Arutiunian said Anglo-American ruling circles are making military preparations for aggression and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, now in London, are elaborating a solid unified plan for participants in the Atlantic Pact.

During debate on a proposed investigation of forced labor, the British delegate presented a copy of the "Corrective Labor Codex" of the Soviet Union, describing in detail how citizens of Russia may be sent to forced labor camps for political differences.

Smith asked the Russian delegate for a straight "yes or no" answer on whether the Soviet Union would permit an investigation.

Arutiunian said Soviet penal policy is humane and progressive, aiming at the "reeducation of the people." The object is to put sentenced persons "in conditions which make it impossible for them to do anything hostile to Soviet society," Arutiunian said.

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP). Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today he was confident United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie would not tolerate any Communist terrorization of U. N. employes.

Acheson's note was in reply to a protest by acting Secretary-General Byron Price against the publication of a report by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee in which an unidentified witness attacked Lie and other top U. N. officials as pro-Communists.

The Secretary of State said he did not know what might have motivated the witness to make such a statement, but he said:

"I am confident that a situation like that described by the anonymous witness would not be tolerated."

He also told Price: "You may be assured, and you may assure Secretary-General Lie, that my government has great confidence in his ability and integrity and in his administration of the secretariat. I should also like to express our confidence in the handling of matters of personnel, which are under your own care as assistant secretary-general for administrative and financial services."

Sen. McCarran Says 'Facts' Support Charge

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), of the Senate Judiciary Committee said today he has "facts" to back up a charge that Secretary-General Trygve Lie "terrorized" the United Nations staff by filling its ranks with Communists.

His information, he said, shows that Secretary of State Acheson and Byron Price, acting U. N. secretary-general, didn't know what they were talking about in denying the charge.

Petain Weaker, Wife Permitted To Stay in Prison

Paris, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Henri Philippe Petain, aged former marshal of France imprisoned on the Ile d'Yeu, is losing strength slowly, a Ministry of Justice spokesman said today.

"He is suffering from no particular illness," the spokesman said. "He is simply losing his strength and his faculties, one by one. It is impossible to predict when he will die, but he is fading out slowly."

Chinese Reds Nearing Fort

Canton, Aug. 3 (AP). — Chinese Communist troops have captured the gateway city to Lanchow, stronghold of Moslem warlord Gen. Ma Hungkwei in northwest China.

Nationalists today admitted the city, Pingliang, had fallen.

The fall of Pingliang puts the Reds 40 miles inside Ma's Province of Kansu.

The Communist radio in Peiping said that in addition to Pingliang the Red drive had overrun Tsingshui, a road control town 200 miles southeast of Lanchow.

On the south-central China front, both sides seemed to be shadow boxing.

Generalissima Chiang Kai-shek left Formosa today for Korea to discuss a Pacific pact against the Communists, the official central news agency announced.

In Germany

Wife of Nazi Hero Flees From Reds

Berlin, Aug. 3 (AP).—Mrs. Erika Raeder, wife of the German admiral, has fled from eastern Germany and revealed that her living conditions during four years of Russian captivity ranged from caviar rations to dark cellars.

Frau Raeder

"I was considered a special prisoner of the Russian secret police," the 61-year-old woman said today, "but I never was told why."

During her period in Soviet custody, Mrs. Raeder said the Russians: Fed her caviar in Moscow; let her go hungry in Minsky; had her peel 700 potatoes a day in Sachsenhausen; questioned her almost endlessly, and finally released her without explanation.

"The whole thing was without rhyme or reason," she said.

Finally Turned Loose

She was turned loose from Sachsenhausen, one-time Nazi death camp, on July 1—exactly four years from the day she and the former admiral were taken to Moscow by Soviet officers whose troops overran the Raeder home in Babelsberg, adjoining Berlin.

When they released her, the Russians gave her two orders, she said: stay in the Soviet occupation zone; never speak to others about the Russians.

Admiral Raeder was found guilty at Nurenberg of waging war, chiefly in the 1940 Nazi invasion of Norway, which was mainly a naval operation. He is serving a life sentence in Spandau Prison, Berlin.

Mrs. Raeder said because of the Russian warning that she stay in the Soviet zone, she has made no attempt to visit her husband in Spandau, which is alternately under U. S., British, French and Russian guards.

Arrives on Elevated

She rode a Berlin elevated train into the American sector.

At one time, she said, she was thrust into a dark, poorly ventilated cellar, and kept there nearly four months.

She said her worldly possessions consisted of 350 eastmarks (about $20), some clothing and five sleeping tablets.

"I kept those tablets hidden for four years in case I'd need them," Mrs. Raeder said with a wry smile. "But I never gave up hope, and did not have to use them."

Truman to See Press

President Truman will hold his weekly news conference at 10:30 a. m. today.

First Plane In Berlin Lift Flying to U. S.

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 3 (AP). The Berlin airlift force started flying home to the United States tonight.

The first plane to be redeployed left here carrying 18 airlift veterans—all but two of them happy their job of supplying Berlin by air is ended.

The only two who said they were sorry to leave Germany were M/Sergt. Penn N. Thorpe, Ardmore, Pa., and T/Sergt. Frank F. Lewter, 4815 Russell ave., Washington, D. C. 'We like it here," they said.

Reds Reject Allied Protest on Wage Pact

Berlin, Aug. 3 (AP). — The Russians today rejected an Allied protest that they had broken their wage agreement with West Berlin railway workers.

The Russians said no strike had been conducted in the Soviet sector, and that terms of the strike-ending agreement applied only to those who lived and worked in West Berlin.

"It is difficult to understand the Soviet contention that no strike took place in the Eastern sector when approximately 2000 of the 15,000 strikers were employed in the Eastern sector, a British spokesman said.

German Red Leader Assails Allied Policy

Frankfurt, Aug. 3 (NYHT).—The rising current of anti-West speeches reached an unprecedented high today as Kurt Schumacher, German Social Democratic leader, flatly declared that "relations between the Western Allies and the Germans have never been so bad."

Schumacher blamed the deterioration of relations on continued Western dismantling of German plants, on "lack of Allied understanding of German problems," and "constant Allied interference in internal German affairs."

The West German political leader also got cheers from his audience when he said that "the Allies have no right to condemn the entire German people because of Nazism. All European nations were for a time Nazi followers for Western Europe continued to conclude treaties with Hitler at a period when hundreds of thousands of German anti-Nazis were already in concentration camps."

and he refused to give the last rites on these grounds."

The woman renounced communism, sent her Communist card back to the secretariat, "and then Fajstl performed the rites," the agency said.

It said the priest refused to tell the Prague state court what went on between the woman and himself because their talk was under the seal of confessional secrecy.

"Convicted Completely"

"But the testimony of witnesses, and especially by a confession of Paclikova, who is still alive and who recovered well enough to tell of her talk with Fajstl, the chaplain was convicted completely," the agency said.

Rude Pravo said Archbishop Matocha called Father Jindrich Volny, of Jaromerice, to his office July 19 and told him he was excommunicated because he signed a declaration approving Catholic Action and because he refused to read a pastoral letter denouncing the group.

Matocha, 61, has not been confined to his home as has the Archbishop of Prague, Josef Beran. His consistory, or church office, which issues directives to priests, has been taken over by the government as has Beran's.

Government instructions to report antigovernment actions by church authorities were sent to all priests today.

Reds Reported Also Curbing Protestants

New York, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Two American church leaders said today the Czech government is clamping down on Protestants as well as Catholics and that Protestants there fear further action against their churches.

The churchmen, the Rev. Franklin Clark Fry, vice chairman of the central committee of the World Council of Churches, and the Rev. Dr. P. O. Bersell, president of the Augustana Lutheran Church in America, arrived by plane today from a month's tour of Europe.

Dutch Upper House Ratifies Treaty

The Hague, Aug. 3 (AP).—The upper house of the Netherlands Parliament ratified the North Atlantic Treaty today. The vote was 29 to 2.

This completed parliamentary action by the Netherlands and constituted the next to the last stage before the treaty goes into effect.

All the original partners in the pact—the United States, Britain, France, Canada, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—now have ratified the accord.

The treaty will become formally effective when the instruments of ratification of the various governments are deposited in Washington.

2 Sides Wary In Indonesia

Batavia, Java, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Dutch and Indonesian Republicans today formally ended their four-year war, but both sides made clear it was an armed truce for the present.

Republican President Soekarno, in a fiery broadcast tonight from his capital at Jogjakarta, ordered his guerilla armies to observe a cease-fire proclaimed today, but to hold their positions.

"No Indonesian will ever forget the December 19 event," Soekarno said.

Last December 19 the Dutch overran most of the republic's cities and took Soekarno and other government leaders prisoner, releasing them only last month under demands by the United Nations.

The Dutch delayed setting the date of a round-table conference to be held at The Hague to work out details of a proposed new "Republic of the United States of Indonesia." They want to see if the cease-fire is effective.

Today's cease-fire is the third. Both previous ones were broken.

New PX Rules May Halve Area Business

Sales by military commissaries and post exchanges in the Washington area probably will be halved under new regulations promulgated last night, officials estimated.

Simultaneously with the issuance of orders sharply cutting back military stores activities, the National Military Establishment released figures showing that those in the greater Washington region have been doing business amounting to 17 million dollars or more a year.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy John T. Koehler, representing the NME, made public the new interdepartmental rules governing the stores. They were issued pursuant to an agreement with members of the House Armed Services Committee, who have been critical of the existing status of the stores.

Private businessmen near Army, Navy and Air Force bases had charged that the commissaries, post exchanges and ship's service stores gave them unfair competition. They declared that goods were sold without tax, that overhead was paid by the Government, and that thus the military stores could undersell on all manner of goods.

The new regulations direct:

That all commissaries (grocery stores) "located in areas where commercial facilities are conveniently available" be closed by January 1, 1950.

That Federal excise taxes be applied to all items subject to tax, effective August 1, 1949.

A new standard list of authorized items that may be sold in post exchanges and ships' service stores is being prepared. Considerably fewer merchandise lines will be available than now, the anouncement said.

"Special order" sales, in which service personnel could buy jewelry, furniture, furs, etc., direct from wholesalers, will be abolished October 1.

Exchanges must be self-supporting, instead of being subsidized by the Government. It is required that they pay for utilities furnished by the Government and salaries of civil employes. Apparently no rent will be charged and Government equipment may be used by paying operating and maintenance costs.

Those Navy commissaries which will be permitted to continue must be self-sustaining in the same degree as exchanges under the new rules. However, Army and Air Force commissaries must sell at cost under the law and do not come under this regulation.

Uniform identification methods will be provided and sales slips must be signed by exchange customers for items over $5 certifying that the goods are not bought for resale and are for the use of himself or dependents or a bona fide gift.

All post exchanges and ships' service stores will be known simply as "Army exchanges," and "Navy exchanges" after January 1.

Koehler said the new system is aimed at meeting the objections of the Congressmen and still continuing the stores as a convenience to the military and a source of funds for welfare and recreational purposes. For long, exchange profits have provided 85 per cent of cost of military welfare and recreation, he stated.

Pentagon officials released these figures last night on total sales at commissaries, post exchanges and ships' service stores in the Washington area:

Army commissaries—Fort Myer, Va., $1,634,053.54; Fort McNair, $777,958.19; Army Medical Center, $854,390.29; Alexandria Quartermaster Depot, $1,794,715.37; Fort Belvoir, Va., $634,506.90; total, $5,695,624.29.

Air Force commissaries—(estimated) Bolling Air Base, $900,000; Andrews Air Base, $306,000.

Army and Air Force Post Exchanges—Fort Myer (North Post) $1,822,653.26; Fort Myer (South Post) and subsidiaries, $988,671.59; Army Medical Center, $778,585.41; Fort Belvoir, $2,069,645.36; Bolling, $1,194,014.60; Andrews, $813,528.75; total $7,667,096.97.

Navy Ship's Service Stores (West Potomac Park, Arlington, Bethesda, Naval Air Station and Naval Receiving Station) a total of $1,677,000 for the year ending June 1.

Of the latter total, $323,000 represented "special order" sales, which will be abolished. The $8,638,464.25 exchange total included $881,936 in such special orders. If all commissaries except those at Fort Belvoir and Andrews Base are closed—as is expected—and all "special orders" go out, sales should drop from approximately 17 million dollars to 10 million dollars, officials estimate. Other cutbacks may reduce the total still more, to approximately half the current value.

Memorial

8 Will Seek Fund for Bust Of Forrestal

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson yesterday announced formation of an eight-member committee to raise funds for a memorial to the late James Forrestal.

Forrestal, the Nation's first Secretary of Defense, died in a plunge from a window at the Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

Johnson is chairman of the committee, which plans to place a bronze bust of Forrestal in the Pentagon Building.

Other members named were Chairman Millard F. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who suggested the project several weeks ago; Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committe; Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army chief of staff; Admiral Louis Denfeld, chief of Naval Operations; Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff; Gilmore D. Clarke, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission, and David E. Finley, director of the National Gallery of Art.

Officials said $2400 already has been contributed mainly by defense establishment personnel. Contributions are limited to $1 each, and will be received until August 31 by Robert Loftis of the Defense Secretary's office.

Lucas Pledges Military Pay Boost Action

Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) yesterday said the Senate will consider a House-approved pay boost for the military services before the present session ends.

"I am certain the military pay bill will come up for action, but I can't say when that will be," Lucas told a reporter.

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee also has pledged action on the measure, which would raise the pay of most of the 1,600,000 officers and men and women in the uniformed services.

Previously Tydings had questioned Senate action until both the House and Senate agreed upon a unification measure that now lacks only President Truman's signature.

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), a member of the Armed Services Committee, said he expects the Senate to "pass the bill unless they start loading it down with amendments."

Some Senators have threatened to attach pay boosts for civilian Government employes to the military bill.

As passed by the House, the measure would add an estimated 302 million dollars to annual pay for the services, although the first year costs would be about 273 million dollars.

The pay boosts would go to the uniformed personnel of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service.

McKellar Sees Dreams Of Spending Shattered

By The Associated Press

Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) told the Senate yesterday that 33 years in the Senate have shattered his boyhood dreams about the joy of spending money.

As chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, he has been responsible for more than 30 billion dollars in appropriations this year.

"As a boy," McKeller said, "I thought the greatest joy on earth would be to spend money.

"I never had any but I saw other people spending it.

"I've learned that spending money is a hard job if a man is conscientious—and as God is my judge I've been conscientious."

Farm 'Rider' Cut From Bill

to back Barkley indicated it would fail. McClellan told the Senate he would attempt it anyway.

Actually, only half of McClellan's sweeping rider was knocked out of the bill. A second section, earmarking 450 million dollars of Army funds to buy surplus products for relief in occupied areas may come up today. This, too, appeared doomed by the Barkley ruling.

The amendments, taken together, would have compelled ECA and the Army to follow a fixed list of estimates submitted months ago. If America had a surplus of such products, participating countries would have to buy 90 per cent of the amounts listed in the old estimates, or could not use the money at all.

McClellan and McKellar, opposing Lucas' point of order, contended Marshall Plan countries are already required by present law to buy American farm surplus products if they are in the markets for such goods with ECA dollars. The rider, they insisted, simply reclaimed the money if it wasn't used for that purpose. McClellan called it a "taxpayers' amendment."

But Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.), former Secretary of Agriculture, said Amercian farmers "want no part" of the plan and leading farm organizations are against it. He said America might lose Europe's markets for good if our farm surplus is "shoved down their throats."

Vandenberg said the key to the success of the Marshall Plan operations was its "flexibility" to meet changing needs. The rider, he said, bars any reassessment of requirements by "freezing ancient estimates."

While the Senate debated, ECA Administrator Hoffman stood anxiously in the corridor outside. In talks with Senators on both sides of the issue, he argued the rider would put his program in a straightjacket and threaten recovery momentum.

roads, was named chairman of the new Civilian Components Policy Board. He is a 56-year-old veteran of World War I.

Johnson also appointed Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, USA, retired, to be his special consultant and politico-military matters. Burns, who was Johnson's executive officer as Assistant Secretary of War 10 years ago, and later lend-lease executive, will occupy an office between that of Johnson and Deputy Secretary Steve Early in sort of an "elder statesman" capacity, the Secretary told reporters.

Johnson also created the Office of Foreign Military Affairs and named N. E. Halaby as its director. Halaby is now an adviser to Johnson. The new office will handle politico-military affairs other than occupation questions, which will continue under Assistant Army Secretary Tracy S. Voorhees, and foreign military aid, which continues under Maj. Gen. L. L. Lemnitzer.

The statutory post of chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is created by the new Unification Act. If appointed, Bradley would outrank the other members of the JCS, and all other four-star generals and admirals in active service. (He would be outranked by five-star generals and admirals, but only one— Douglas MacArthur—holds a full-time active post.)

While the new JCS chairman would not exercise command, and would not vote in the Joint Chiefs, the post carries great prestige.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been serving as presiding officer of the JCS on a temporary and part time, pending the legal establishment of the post, and appointment of a full-time chairman.

U. S. Steel Says CIO Bypassed Pensions

New York, Aug. 3 (YHT).—The United States Steel Corporation said today that Philip Murray, president of the United Steelworkers of America, CIO, made a verbal agreement a year ago specifically excluding pesions as a subject for bargaining in the current negotiations wih the company.

The statement wa made at a press conference by John A. Stephens, vice president of United States Steel in chage of industrial relations.

Shortly after Stephens spoke, the union flatly contradicted his statement and said n such committement had been made.

The controversy ver whether pensions are current subject for bargaining has been he stumbling block principally reponsible for the union's threat to trike against United States Steel nd the country's other steel producing companies. The deadlin is September 14.

Millers to Take Over Times-Herald About October 1

By The Associated Press

"Bazy" and Peter Miller, the youthful wife-and-husband team whom Col. Robert R. McCormick is putting in charge of the Washington Times-Herald, now plan to take up their work here about October 1.

They told reporters so yesterday, after putting in a couple of days studying their round-the-clock newspaper property and meeting its workers.

Previously it had been indicated they would not begin their careers in the capital until January 1. That had been the target date mentioned in New York Monday by Mrs. Miller, 28-year-old niece of Colonel McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune.

This speed-up in planning may have been tied in with Mrs. Miller's responses to questions about the Times-Herald: "I think the paper has been run very well . . . certainly hope they (the employes) are going to stay . . . we frankly have no thought of any changes at all."

Hawaii Gives Governor New Strike Power

Honolulu, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Both houses of the Territorial Legislature relented today and agreed to amend the controversial strike bill to give Gov. Ingam Stainback a free hand in operating a government stevedoring agency in time of emergency.

The action came after Stainback conferred with leaders of both houses and reiterated the necessity of using personnel and facilities of the existing stevedoring industry should the government have to take over the islands' dock working business.

As it stands now, the bill flatly denies the proposed government agency the right to hire strikers to work emergency cargoes or to rent company equipment.

The emergency strike bill was drawn in a special session of the Territorial Legislature following failure to settle the CIO longshoremen's strike which has paralyzed island shipping since May 1.

Both houses unanimously agreed to the change by a show of hands and appointed conference committees to work out the language of the amendment.

Asked if the longshoremen would work for the government, island ILWU leader Jack Hall said tersely: "They won't remain members of the ILWU if they do."

Cold Rain Sends 500 Nudists on Hunt for Clothes

Morrison, Colo., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—You couldn't tell the nudists convention from a meeting of the Elks today.

It got so cold in Deer Creek canyon that the delegates to the National Sunbathers Association annual convention had to put on clothes.

Five hundred nudists clad only in tobacco pouches, shoes and goose pimples gathered here for the opening of the conclave. They cavorted gayly for a while among the trees and rocks. Then it started to rain—a heavy, ice-cold rain.

Someone broke out a pair of mittens, and the race for apparel was on. When it warmed up a bit, the nudists caught a "peeping Tom" and sentenced him to take off his clothes and join in a volleyball game.

Adolph Hitler's Pilot Prisoner in Russia

Munich, Germany, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Adolf Hitler's former personal pilot, Johann Baptist Bauer, is a prisoner of war in Russia, his wife told a denazification court here today.

Bauer's wife told the court, trying him in absentia, that she received a letter from him from the Soviet Union last week.

Bauer's disappearance had been frequently rumored to be connected with the "mysterious disappearance" of the fuehrer.

other factors. These include a better-than-seasonal upturn in home-building, improved business in some textile and metals lines, and the summer recovery in the stock market.

The Census Bureau reported that the number of unemployed increased from 3,778,000 in June to 4,095,000 in July. In July of 1948, the figure was 2,227,000.

Simultaneously, the number of employed rose from 59,619,000 in June, to 59,720,000 in July—which is the highest figure so far registered in 1949. In July 1948, the employed total was 61,615,000.

The seemingly paradox of the simultaneous increase in the number of persons with jobs and without jobs was explained by the fact that there was an increase of 417,000 in the labor force. This includes the number of people working and looking for work. Only one-fourth of the people newly in the market for jobs succeeded in finding them in July.

Census Bureau Report

The Census Bureau said:

"As in June, most of the additional persons in the labor force were of high school and college age. However, in contrast with the past two months, the rise in unemployment between June and July cannot be attributed to the entry of young persons into the labor force. Adult workers accounted for much of the increase in July."

Employment on farms decreased from 9,696,000 in June to 9,647,000 in July. Non-farm employment increased from 49,924,000 in June to 50,073,000 in July.

Muir, the ABA spokesman, is president of the Louisville, Ky., Trust Co. He went before the Senate Banking Subcommittee to oppose a bill liberalizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's lending policies as an anti-depression move.

"The banks and other private lenders stand ready to meet every legitimate demand for business and industrial credit," he said.

Lane Eyes Jobless Study

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 3 (AP).—Governor Lane will send a State House observer to Cumberland next week to join in a study of unemployment in western Maryland, his office said today.

Louis J. O'Donnell, assistant to the Governor, will accompany William H. Mahaney, chairman of the State Employment Security Board, in the investigation.

As for the economic situation in general, he said the public cut down on its spending in anticipation of price cuts, but will start buying again when convinced the price declines have stopped.

"We are going through a very fine period of readjustment," he said. "We are getting better productivity from labor, which has reduced building costs, and retail business has been lowering its inventories."

The Commerce Department reported that construction activity increased more than seasonally in July. This was largely due to a pickup in the building of private homes.

Steel Scrap Prices Show New Strength

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—Steel scrap prices are showing real signs of strength for the first time since January, the Iron Age, metal-working trade weekly, said today.

"There is a strong undertone in almost all maor scrap markets," the publication reported.

An advance of $2 a ton in the top of the range at Chicago, it said, sent the Iron Age steel scrap composite up 59 cents to $19.92 a ton. The weekly said brokers this week are paying $2 a ton more in Detroit and $1 a ton more in New York for No. 1 heavy melting steel. In other districts, it noted, brokers are having trouble covering old low priced orders.

The scrap upturn accompanies some tightening in steel deliveries.

"Steel is a little harder to get today than it was a month ago," Iron Age said.

Losing Game

For more than six weeks District construction projects costing an estimated 100 million dollars were held up by a strike of union carpenters. In addition to the strikers, thousands of other workers furloughed for the duration paid heavily for the wage increases won by the carpenters. Although the carpenters would have to work steadily for about three years at the higher wage rate to offset the loss of wages caused by their strike, their costly victory has been only a prelude to a series of wage disputes involving the rodmen, the dump-truck drivers, the ready-mix cement drivers and the plasterer tenders.

Strikes and threatened strikes by these groups that would have resulted in another vacation without pay for thousands of construction workers have been called off as the result of settlements reached during the past week. It is the abysmally stupid method of negotiating wage contracts that has kept the construction industry in a state of suspense and turmoil for many weeks. Simultaneous negotiation of wage contracts or comprehensive contracts covering all building trades workers would undeniably present difficulties. But this method of negotiation would at least prevent a succession of strikes, often induced by the gains obtained through previous strikes of other groups. Collective bargaining as it is carried on by the building trades unions is a form of self-punishment that they simply cannot afford, since it is calculated to inflict a maximum amount of loss on contractors and workers alike.

Local Enchantment

Last April, when the Senate was discussing the Federal aid-to-education bill which it subsequently passed, Senator Lodge offered an amendment to change the basis of allocating funds among the several States. He found particular fault with the classification of Texas as a "poor" State, relating at length the evidences that it is in fact the abode of very great wealth. A garbled report of his remarks appears to have gotten to Senator Connally, who was not then on the floor.

When the Senator from Texas came in he asked Senator Lodge to yield the floor, and said: "Mr. President, I understand that in my absence the Senator from Massachusetts has been making a speech in which he denounced my State." Lodge immediately denied it and declared that "There has not been one word I have said which has not been in whole-hearted and sincere praise." Senator Douglas, who had been sparring with Lodge, rose at this point to defend him. Lodge, he told Connally, "said only the kindest things about the State of Texas. He did say that the State of Texas was a wealthy State, but he praised the State highly."

Senator Ives then joined in to say that Lodge's references to Texas had been so complimentary as to make him envious of that State and he congratulated Connally on "coming from such a wonderful and beautiful State." His honor and that of his State satisfied by these effusions, Connally gracefully bowed out of the discussion, but not till Lodge had finished off by assuring the Senator from Texas that "as long as he and I live he will never hear me say a word about Texas that is not friendly and complimentary and full of admiration."

This sort of by-play gives Senators a chance for a little comedy relief in the serious business of legislation, and a chance also to exercise their tonsils in the almost extinct art of making paper flowers out of the Congressional Record. Such outbreaks of local pride are amusing and harmless, both in Congress and out. Congressional jealousy that nothing ill be said of the State whence a representative hails is, indeed, traditional, and has its echoes in what the executive agencies are able to say.

Another example of this pleasant tradition which brought forth the above thoughts has just come to hand. The Department of Agriculture's excellent yearbook, which this year is devoted entirely to the subject of trees—as it was last year given over wholly to grass—contains this gem of diplomacy: "Question: What State has the least number of different kinds of trees? Answer: North Dakota is almost treeless except, for example, cottonwoods and willows that grow along the streams. That is no aspersion, however, against that beautiful, happy State; North Dakota is a "grass" region; North Dakotans are as interested as anybody in trees."

We don't know for sure, but it seems possible this might have been inserted with one eye on Senator Milton Young of North Dakota. The editors doubtless knew that he is a member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry as well as of the Committee on Appropriations. But this is no aspersion on the yearbook. It is a valuable and beautiful volume. Its happy editors are as much interested as any Senator in not demeaning the dignity of any State.

Plan Or No Plan

No case has yet been made for the MAP as it stands either in its global application or in its grant of discretionary powers to the Executive to cut and change and switch arms aid. Witnesses before the House Foreign Affairs Committee have argued with telling effect that the momentum of the Atlantic Pact will be lost if some arms are not consigned to the Atlantic Allies while a strategical plan is being developed. With that view we heartily agree. Take, for instance, the French. In France, according to our understanding, both morale and expertness are in jeopardy in the navy air arm, which in time of war would be relied upon in the Mediterranean, because of its poor equipment. It would be wise economy to plug this and similar deficiencies. No layman would have the temerity to say just what the extent of this aid should be. In this matter he is more or less in the hands of experts, and these have now cut the ground from under many lay objections to arms ahead of organization by saying that the proposed budget is only "interim." However, there is a limitation imposed by the health and strength of the American economy—the first line of defense of the Atlantic Community.

The State Department has frankly admitted there would be dislocations in the recovery program in Europe while the Allies were building up the new defense system. Mr. Harriman implied that the confidence factor would speedily offset any such dislocations. Add this confidence to the preponderance of the economic power available to the Atlantic Allies, and the combined effect should give the Soviet pause. The United States has a steel capacity of 90 million tons, the European participants, 40 million tons. The total of 130 millions is over four times the capacity of Soviet Russia and her satellites of 30 million tons. The same disparity in the Atlantic favor could be adduced in many other particulars. But there is something missing in the equation that Mr. Harriman scarcely touched upon. Soviet strength resides in the fact of a single control in the military dispositions of Soviet Europe. This is the ideal that the Atlantic Community must approximate in the form of a unity of plan and command if the defense system is to be worthy of that description.

There was something rather nebulous in the part of General Marshall's testimony on MAP which referred to a collective strategical plan in Western Europe. In one place he implied, contrary to simultaneous reports from Paris, that a strategical plan was almost complete. He seemed surprised that the Joint Chiefs had not so informed the committee. In another place he said something to the effect that such a plan, far from being a prerequisite, might be in the nature of a handicap. What he meant, we take it, was that a rushed plan, prepared so as to get arms, might be worse than no plan at all, and might, indeed, be very damaging. There is merit in such an argument. However, the fact remains that, just as an architect precedes the builder, so a strategical plan should be a sine qua non of armament.

Was it not because of the lack of unity of command that Hitler was able to pick off the European countries one by one? And if this unity were to lead to a federation, why should that be going a "little farther than the United States would want to go," as General Marshall puts it. The United States has tried all kinds of methods in succession for putting Europe on its feet and is now faced with yet another problem in the new crisis that is brewing in Britain. On both sides of the Atlantic there is a bankruptcy of ideas for "a permanent solution," and it is time this idea of federation or union were explored, unless a perpetual financing of western European deficits is envisaged. In the meantime the frills of MAP should be cut off lest this extra money be used to establish commitments calling for more outlays.

Oliver Twist

In a memorandum to the OEEC, which is Europe's allocating agency for Marshall Plan money, the British government announced that, owing to an unexpected deterioration of its dollar position, about 1.5 billion dollars will be needed in the current fiscal year to carry out plans for expansion of production. That is nearly 600 million more than the amount Britain originally requested and considerably larger than her allotment for the past year. Taken out of the reduced amount which is expected to be voted for the aid program, it would account for more than 40 per cent of all ECA outlays. Obviously, continental countries could not agree to a reallocation that would so greatly enlarge the British share of a fund that at best will fall short of meeting their own minimum needs, especially as Britain is resisting the agitation of her neighbors for a general readjustment of European currencies and the relaxation of trade barriers.

The British protest that their purpose is simply to state the facts and that they are prepared to abide by the decisions made after the programs of all the countries concerned have been examined. Nevertheless, they have given Congress advance notice that OEEC failure to produce the sum mentioned will endanger their recovery. The reaction here should be taken to heart in London. Senator Ellender, who recently returned from an extensive European tour, is the latest to express the wonder whether British recovery can be bought by sending dollars to Britain to cover trade deficits that are the inevitable result of domestic policies which keep production costs high and bilateral trading policies which reduce the total volume of trade and discourage trade expansion with dollar areas. "All we are going to accomplish by such means," Senator Ellender says, "is a balancing of her trade balances for the time being, and the moment we cut off the supply of money, she will revert to the condition of deficit financing."

The solution is not an easy one, but it is certain that Congress will not continue indefinitely to tax the American people to support the economies of other nations, unless it is convinced that those nations are prepared to make the sacrifices and institute the reforms required to enable them to support themselves. There is as yet no evidence that Britain's high production costs are being brought down; on the contrary, British planning under a directed form of economy providing full employment has weakened the laboring man's incentive to strive for greater efficiency. Britain undoubtedly needs help, if she is to survive, but experience has shown that unconditional aid is not the answer to her problems.

Semper Paratus

The United States Coast Guard celebrates today its 159th birthday. It is a day not to be passed over in silence. Too often the services of the Coast Guard have been overlooked, though, to be sure, it came into its glorious own during the war.

But the Coast Guard is primarily a peacetime service, attached to the Treasury Department. It was Alexander Hamilton who gave it its start—as the "Revenue Marine"—back in 1790. Among its duties, pleasant and unpleasant over the years, have been fighting pirates and hostile Indians, protecting the Alaskan seal herds from extermination, and blockading Southern ports in the Civil War.

Today it is charged with enforcement of United States laws on all the navigable waters of this country and, insofar as they are applicable, on the high seas. It conducts the magnificent search and rescue service that at a moment's notice mobilizes ships, aircraft and radio communications to help victims of disaster at sea. It takes care of channel markers, lighthouses and lightships, conducts safety inspections of ships, and fulfills a host of other duties.

Of all these, the one that appeals most to us on this August day is the iceberg patrol in North Atlantic waters. This duty, except for periods during both World Wars, the Coast Guard has accomplished since 1913, a year after the Titanic disaster. Actually the iceberg season is over now; it normally lasts from around March to June and this year began in February and ended on June 15. But cuddling up to an iceberg right now seems an ideal way to beat the heat, and we wish the Coast Guard could go out and haul one up the Potomac to celebrate its birthday. It would be most appropriate, we think, since, like an iceberg, only about one tenth of the Coast Guard's activities appear above the surface of our everyday consciousness.

Never Say Dead

Now that Federal aid to education has become the focus of a sectarian slugfest, Chairman Lesinski of the House Labor and Education Committee would be glad to sidetrack the issue. But that would not kill it; on the contrary, it would be kept very much alive. This is apparently the underlying feeling of the 13 members of the committee who voted against the 12 who wanted to forget the whole business. Mr. Lesinski's own tentative scheduling of a new committee meeting this morning is evidence that action will be undertaken. We hope so. As we said on Tuesday, the fact that next year is an election year is likely to make the argument the more bitter if the issue is still left unsettled.

As between the two bills now before it in regular form, we prefer the Thomas to the Barden solution. The Senate-passed bill, concededly, compromises the principle of absolute separation of church and state. It would pass the decision over the use of Federal funds for "auxiliary" services to school children in nonpublic as well as in public schools to the various States. In this respect it accords with the Supreme Court majority in the Everson case. The Barden bill sticks by the separation of church and state principle, but it is a principle long since torn in shreds by reason of many direct and indirect forms of governmental subsidy to religion.

For instance, would the Bardenites deny appropriations to the armed forces because part of the money goes to support the work of chaplains of different faiths? Of course not. Similarly we do not believe Federal appropriations for aid to education should be denied because part of them might be used to provide bus service to denominational school children. The central need and aim of improving educational opportunities and standards in less fortunate areas of the country is too vital to be lost to the apostles of all-or-nothing sectarianism.

Rescue Equipment

Saturday afternoon, two-year-old Marilyn Cope died needlessly. The child had lost her balance and fallen off the family houseboat into the Anacostia River. Ten of us dived fruitlessly for her body in dark, murky water until the rescue squad arrived. They and the crew of the patrol boats used the only means at their disposal to locate the child—dragging the bottom with grappling hooks.

Very few victims of such disasters have survived after 30 minutes underwater. Yet a slow, cruel process of recovering a drowning person is used by the District water rescue teams—grappling hooks — contraptions which resemble four mammoth fishhooks with their stems tied together. This antiquated, ineffectual method of recovery, when it is necessary to cover a thousand or more square feet, the operation aggravated by movements caused by tide and currents These hooks, even if they did locate the child's body in time, would surely mutilate it.

The child was finally located by an efficient Navy diving team with modern equipment, just 15 minutes after they arrived—minutes that earlier might have meant life for little Marilyn. The Navy equipment was neither expensive nor complicated. It consisted of a mask to cover the diver's face with a hose supplying air from a compression pump above. I judge the entire apparatus to cost no more than $1000, at most.

At present, there are several patrol craft covering the local waterfronts, but they lack equipment. If two or three of these were supplied with rescue apparatus, they would be constantly in readiness for such an emergency.

Welfare Department

Ernest E. Irons, M. D., President, American Medical Association and the editors of The Washington Post take opposing views re: the President's Reorganization Plan No. 1 (July 29).

Our AMA wants a Federal department of health headed by a physician of Cabinet rank. The Washington Post advocates coordinating all the Nation's problems of health, education and social security under a new department of welfare. It would not require the administrator to be a doctor. But it would require him to be an acknowledged expert in all phases of social engineering pertaining to culture and the economics of democratic survival.

Dr. Irons fears the President's reorganization plan will make America over in the bankrupt pattern of the welfare state. He implies that the drift to the welfare state can be avoided. If he so believes Dr. Irons is blind to the tumultuous and irresistible forces of history about him. The welfare state is unavoidable. It is either that or the slave state.

The welfare state is the lesser evil. For this Nation, its mind, heart and conscience, will be determined by the future department of welfare. Our job is to make that conform to democratic ideals and traditions.

The essential characteristic of any welfare state is administrative government. By its very nature it is a denial of representative government. We must revert to a rule of men through the appointive power of our Chief Executive. Theoretically these appointees are exemplary servants of policy. In practice they are a cynical means of paying political debts. Given administrative power they soon conspire to become makers and masters of policy. This is how a political dictatorship would come to power in this country.

If politicians like Mr. Ewing are to be key administrators in the inevitable welfare state let organized medicine be vigilant and resolute in denying his policy-making powers. We do not question Mr. Ewing's skill as an administrator nor that the President is deeply in his debt. We do deny he is an acknowledged expert in all phases of social engineering pertaining to culture and the economics of democratic survival.

"Diplomatic Spies"

In your July 19 editorial, Diplomatic Spies," you are right in saying that anyone sent to the United States by a government behind the iron curtain is at the very least a devoted Communist and that all such emissaries are security risks. This observation applies particularly to those appointed to their diplomatic posts after the various national coups; e.g., the Prague coup, February, 1948.

In turn arises the question of how to deal with an iron curtain appointee when, suddenly, he reverses his sentiments and resigns his job. So far, if such a person has requested asylum from the United States Government, he has been granted it. However, one may question whether the appointee automatically ceases to be a security risk because he has officially turned his back to his original government.

His sincerity can be only suspect when a diplomat has required a year or more to discover his sympathies with the democratic world and his disgust with Communism. His integrity can be only problematic, for he is supposed to have been rendering services to his Communist superiors and to have been paid for these. Unless he can show proof of his positive anti-Communist efforts over an extended time, it would be unfair for the United States to grant him asylum. Should asylum be granted, the United States would thereby depreciate the attitude of our form of government and the moral stand of those diplomats who, early after the Communist seizures in their respective countries, forfeited their own material security and lined up with the forces of democracy throughout the world.

Daylight Saving

In answer to the "Lament" printed in your July 30 edition: Were we on standard time as E. L. wishes, we would actually be coming home an hour later each day. Therefore, our apartments and homes would be closed just that hour longer. Also, we would not have the advantage of the extra hour of daylight, evenings after work.

Under daylight saving time the office workers have the advantage of going to their offices while it is still relatively cool and they arrive home in the evening, as the temperature starts to recede, for on the hottest days the temperature is usually on the wane by 5 o'clock.

To those who are not on a rigid schedule as the business and office people are, I can't see that it makes much difference which time we operate on.

Art Center

I have been a subscriber to the National Symphony concerts for 10 years and as one of their admirers I wish to say that I feel that the symphony is entirely adequate for a city of Washington's size and temperament. Mr. Koussevitsky's large-sounding proposals for an extensive art center sound well enough but I really can't see the need for them.

Washington is not a musical oasis. The Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore can meet our few music students' needs. New York is still the only place for the real opera lover. Washington's opera-goers would hardly be satisfied with what small offering this city could make. As for building up the National Symphony—I willlet the fine reviews the symphony has always received speak for themselves.

After all, Washington is really only an overgrown small town. For our city to undertake extensive plans for an art center would indeed be a heavy and questionable burden. Let me make it clear that I highly respect Mr. Koussevitsky, but I also feel that a young man like Mr. Mitchell should be given a full opportunity. GERTRUDE STERN.

"Anti-Communist Oath"

In your July 30 discussion of the steel workers union's decision to abide by the Taft-Hartley Act's requirement that leaders of unions take an oath that they are not Communists, you first state that the reason the union decided to take the oath was because it had been seriously hampered in its activities by not being permitted to utilize the services of the National Labor Relations Board so long as it refused to comply with the provision requiring the oath; then you wind up saying that certain advantages derived from complying with the act prove that it is not one-sided and promanagement.

I fail to see that the latter is derivable from the former.

The simple fact is that the Taft-Hartley Act was devised for the purpose of compelling labor to follow a given pattern of action or be destroyed. A whole series of unfair and, perhaps, illegal restrictions were placed on labor so that its actual strength would be sapped, if not exhausted, in any serious struggle with management. Some of these Senator Taft has now been forced to recognize, in view of 1950, and to ask for correction.

But labor, in order to function at all, must abide by these provisions or be deprived, by the law, of its otherwise legal rights.

That does not disprove the claim that the Taft-Hartley Act is antilabor and promanagement: it proves it to the last letter.

Jobs For Veterans

Here in Boston we veterans are being more and more thrown out of work. Instead of giving us relief money here, what about sending us out to the islands of the Pacific to grow more food for the world or open up other business and build up a new American nation to add to our strength and wealth? Government could subsidize us as it does the farmers.

Or what about building more towns inland to house industries that might be bombed in our cities along the coast. Towns need shops, laundries, hotels and banks. The building and staffing would occupy all the unemployed. R. H. ALSOPP.

Man's Race Against 1957

By Malvina Lindsay

History's Verdict

YOU PICK UP the newspaper to find the atom bomb sticking its ominous nose into the dog days headlines, which had made you feel as if the good old trivial summers were returning. The President reports we are making better atomic weapons and making them faster . . . The United Nations Commission gives up trying to get nations together on the control of atomic energy.

Still, you are not excited—no more than you were by the recent story telling how well we were coming along in mass producing germs to be used not only against man—but also plants and animals.

But here is something that is penetrating your armor of self-absorption. It is a clear, analytical article on bamb destructiveness by William L. Laurence, science reporter of The New York Times, a man who has been a Boswell to the bomb since its birth. His conclusion, direct and definite, drives home to you something you had known vaguely, put aside to think about "tomorrow." It is that the "best informed opinion" gives the Soviet Union approximately two more years to perfect a bomb, five additional years to accumulate a stockpile. A total of seven! The fatal year—1957!

SLOWLY THE meaning sinks in. No, not necessarily war. But a great stepping up of suspicion and fear. An end of prattle in Congress and in taxicabs of our bomb "secret." An end of the widespread childish sense of security. Probably more bellicose moves by the Kremlin. More war scares. More jitters. More likelihood of the impetuous incident that would lead to catastrophe. Humanity beginning to live indefinitely on a tightrope.

Seven years of amnesty! How make the most of them?

Your momentary response is primitive—safety, escape. An atom bomb, you have just read, would be wasted on a city of less than 200,000. You think of the people who have talked shrewdly of buying farms as bomb refuges—or who already have them. You even know some who are arranging their affairs to go in a few years to a "safe" place, as Africa or Zealand . . . No, you don't want to be among such survivors among any survivors in fact of an atomic war.

You think of the "live today" philosophy of your gay friends who consider it neurotic to take the atom seriously. No, the liquor bill would be too costly. You think of the "little me" people who will say happily: "I'm just looking after my family and my business and letting the guys smarter than myself do the worrying." No, you can't hook up with them either. You remember the years before 1939 too well—and all the young faces that you saw later in the papers under "Killed in Action."

You consider the "so what?" answer. What would it matter if everyone was wiped out? Maybe some new species of life would build a better world. But suppose everyone wasn't blotted out, that a lot were left mangled, deformed, tainted? And what about all the children, the young people, even the older ones all pulsing with the eager desire to live? Wasn't there something wrong with any living thing that wouldn't fight to keep on living?

NO, THE only self-respecting, self-satisfying answer, you tell yourself, is action. After all, man has seven years in which to match his brains against the primeval force he has unleashed. Seven years to test his self-control, humanity, aspiration against the deterrent human forces on rampage. And hasn't the folk myth of the ages been the triumph of good over evil?

Yet what can you, a single, ordinary person, do in such a colossal struggle? You think of the groups of men and women trying to do something—those trying to bring peoples together in world government or even a union of goodwill; those working for an Atlantic Union of democratic peoples; those trying to uphold and strengthen the United Nations; those working in innumerable ways to promote personal contact and understanding among the world's peoples. But are they moving fast enough? Can anybody do anything fast enough?

Still, that isn't the question you face. It is: What are you going to do in the seven years ahead in order to live at peace with yourself, to keep faith with humanity? For if you believe what you profess, that the individual counts, you will have to do something.

You think of the futile, hand-wringing people who during the war complained because no one told them what to do. Well, no one is going to tell you what to do in the next seven years. You will have to find it—whether it be joining something, holding up the hands of leaders in whom you believe, studying, thinking, petitioning, praying—whatever is your metier. All you know is that you're not going to sit this one out.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Case For Military Aid

WHEN General Marshall was asked how long the United States might have to furnish military aid, he replied "at a guess" that two or three years might suffice. This guess throws more light on the whole subject than Congress and the public have yet had from anyone else.

Lippmann

For it is evident that in the next two or three, or even in the next five, years only a small army can be recruited, trained, and equipped in Western Europe. As a matter of fact there is only one European country in the Atlantic alliance which can raise a fair-sized army. That country is France. Today France has one armored division equipped, says Mr. Hanson Baldwin who knows what he is talking about, with obsolescent material. It is plain that in two or three years, the best that can be done with any appropriations that Congress would vote or that the French government could use, without disrupting the whole French economy, is to develop a few but not many more armored divisions with reasonably modern equipment.

THERE ARE cogent reasons why we should promptly and effectively support the creation of this small French army within the framework of the Atlantic Pact. If the reasons were candidly explained, they would almost certainly be approved in this country and they would contribute much to the general feeling of security and to the hope that diplomacy can prevent the catastrophe of another world war.

The real reason why we should create a small French army as the core of a western European force, is not in order to match the inexhaustible ground armies of the Soviet Union. There is no use pretending that France can do what Germany, at the zenith of its military power, was unable to do.

Even the modest army, which General Marshall's guess shows is all that he contemplates, will take some years to recreate. During those years the Soviet Union can create at least five divisions to each one that Western Europe can create. It would, therefore, be a dangerous miscalculation to inaugurate a race of armaments between the ground forces of the Soviet orbit and of Western Europe.

THE FORCES that can be created in Western Europe will be small and will take years to develop. That means that during this period war has to be prevented in order that there may be time to develop those forces. There is little reason to think that this time can be secured if the rearmament of Western Europe is treated as a race of armaments with the Red army. Since the Soviet Union has an enormous headstart in the race, we must not expect it to remain passive while Western Europe catches up in ground forces and while the American atomic stockpile and long-range strategic bombardment is built up for a knockout blow.

Therefore, if the case for military aid is argued on the present briefings, the Atlantic allies would be pursuing a policy which combined inadequate forces for actual war with the maximum provocation to war.

THE TRUE CASE for European rearmament is one that has not yet been stated publicly. It is that considerably larger forces are needed in France in order to prepare for a German settlement. The time is coming when the Russian and the American armies must withdraw from Germany. The time is coming within a few years. When the occupying armies withdraw, the Germans will have to be allowed a military force, subject to treaty limitations but nevertheless a force. When that time comes, it is essential to the peace of Europe that there should exist a French army sufficiently large to enforce the German treaty and to contain the German military revival. The military program which is envisaged by the Western Union and the American military planners is suited to that mission.

The forces, which are contemplated, are limited; the time required to create them is many years. The scale and the tempo of the whole program makes sense if the program is designed to stabilize Western Europe internally against revolution and externally in relation to a reviving and turbulent Germany when the military occupation ends. The program makes no sense if it is supposed to create ground armies in a race with the Red Army.

THE DEFENSE of Western Europe against the Red Army rests now, and will continue to rest, not on the military aid program but on the American guarantee which is affirmed and registered in the Atlantic Pact. The American guarantee should be, if our diplomacy is wise and resourceful, an adequate defense. If the American guarantee is not adequate, the small force that Western Europe can create will not make it adequate.

The Soviet Union will not be deterred from military aggression by any forces that Norway or France and Britain, or Italy, Turkey, Greece and Iran, can themselves develop with American lend-lease. The deterrent to war resides in the certainty that aggression anywhere means an immense and total war with the United States. In such a war the United States could and would mobilize the greatest industrial power that has ever existed. The United States could not be defeated by the Red Army. It would be virtually invulnerable to attack. Unless its forces had been foolishly dispersed and committed, it would have enormous striking power and the means to continue the war indefinitely.

THAT IS WHAT the American guarantee means. It is as formidable a guarantee as was ever set up, and no one can now plan and produce a stronger guarantee.

It is this guarantee that has protected Iran and West Berlin and Italy and Turkey and all the other exposed and undefended places which could so easily be overrun. It is this guarantee which provides the security without which it would be impossible to recreate out of the ruins of the war a new French army and a western coalition.

THE POWER of this American guarantee rests on the certainty that this country will instantly reply to aggression and upon the knowledge that the American war potential is being kept efficient by our own military establishment.

The value of the guarantee depends, however, on the use we make of it in our diplomacy. For like all other things in this world, it is transitory, subject to decay and to change.

If, therefore, the time gained by the guarantee against aggression in Europe is not used to solve the European problem—the crucial problem of the military partition of Europe—we shall once again find that a prodigious enterprise has failed because the American people are richer in material things than are their statesmen in ideas.

Another Nature Boy Reported in Texas

Houston, Aug. 3 (AP).—Some residents of Texas' largest city smiled today at published reports that another "nature boy" had been corralled from the Texas timber.

They noted the boy's discoverer was proprietor of a traveling natural history museum.

The discoverer, Larry Dean, declared the boy was not being exploited in connection with the show.

The Houston Chronicle and Houston Post, the city's leading newspapers, checked the story. They published nothing.

Unemployment Fraud Effects 900 Workers

New York, Aug. 3 (NYHT.).—Nearly 900 longshoremen will be prosecuted on charges of collecting $115,000 in unemployment insurance checks while working, State Industrial Commissioner Edward Corsi announced today.

Corsi said the frauds were uncovered in a mass audit of the unemployment records of five stevedoring firms. The investigation eventually will cover the entire industry.

Battle Holds 23,000 Margin In Late Primary Returns

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

Returns from all but 49 Virginia's 1768 voting precincts last night showed John S. Battle holding fast to the 23,000-vote plurality he gained late Tuesday night in the State's Democratic gubernatorial primary.

Latest count in the primary, election gave Battle 133,240 votes, Francis Pickens Miller 110,032, Horace H. Edwards 47,030 and Remmie L. Arnold 21,800.

Battle is the first Democratic candidate in 32 years to win nomination for Governor with a minority of the total vote cast. Westmoreland Davis last did it in 1917. As the vote count in the record-breaking primary passed the 311,000 mark, Battle had 43 per cent of the total vote. Late figures trickling in yesterday showed virtually no change in the relative standing.

Battle supporters in Richmond, however, hailed his victory as strengthening the dominant party faction, headed by Senator Harry F. Byrd.

They pointed out that had Edwards and Arnold not made the race, most of their votes would probably have gone to Battle. They considered Battle's win even more significant than Byrd's relatively close 141,000-to-81,000 victory over Martin Hutchinson three years ago for Byrd's Senate seat.

Organization candidates also swept the other two State-wide Democratic contests as Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., and Lieut. Gov. L. Preston Collins won by margins of more than two to one over Moss A. Plunkett and Nick Prillman.

The organization's chief casualty was G. Alvin Massenburg, State Democratic chairman and speaker of the House of Delegates. He was defeated for renomination to the House, 3149 to 2973, by Victor P. Wilson, Miller's campaign manager in Elizabeth City County.

With some counting still in progress, it appeared Battle had carried all of the State's nine Congressional Districts except the Second (Norfolk), the Third (Richmond), and the Ninth (Southwest Virginia). These went to Miller, the Second District as result of late-reported returns.

Battle won 64 of the State's 100 counties and 12 of its 28 cities. Miller, whose strength lay largely in urban areas, won 14 cities, including Richmond, and 25 counties, while Edwards carried only one of the cities—Bristol—and nine counties. Arnold carried four localities, two cities and two counties. These included Petersburg, where he lives, and Colonial Heights, and the counties of Dinwiddie and Prince George.

Battle received his biggest margin in the Seventh District, the home of Senator Byrd and Senator Willis Robertson. In that district, he led Miller better than two to one.

Byrd last night had no comment on the election result, although he did reiterate his request for an official investigation into claims by Robert Hazelwood, Arnold's campaign manager, that Hazelwood had been offered $10,000 to desert Arnold.

Miller's only comment was that the primary was but the "first round" and that "we will go on until we have won a complete victory," presumably against the Byrd organization.

Edwards said he would continue to fight for better schools and predicted the State eventually would adopt his sales tax proposals to finance them.

In nearby Virginia, Miller was the leader, carrying Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax—the last two by substantial margins. Edwin Lynch, a Miller supporter, won nomination to the House of Delegates in Fairfax.

Two staunch Miller workers, Mrs. William E. Warne and Mrs. Jay Walz, were elected without opposition to the usually organization-controlled Alexandria Democratic Committee. And in Arlington, H. Smith Rucker, another Miller supporter, was elected to the county Democratic committee.

In the unofficial count, Lynch received 3150 votes to 3015 for W. Lewis Leigh. A third candidate, John J. McLaughlin, received 397.

Rucker, one of two candidates elected from the Park Lane Precinct, led the three committee candidates there with 312 votes. Stan Stanton, the other winner, got 302. Loser William C. Nemeth received 197.

Battle workers in the nearby areas attributed the Miller sweep to a heavy vote from newcomer Government workers. Most of them said they had half expected to lose the area. They admitted, however, they were startled by the decisiveness of Miller's win in Alexandria and Fairfax.

The dismal showing of Edwards there and over the State may be partly explained by a statement of one of his Alexandria workers: "If he had won he'd be the first who ever did on a platform calling for more taxes."

Figured in pre-election forecasts to make it a three-way race, Edwards failed to carry a single precinct in his home city of Richmond. He did not carry a single Congressional District in the State, although he did carry a number of precincts.

The State's first Republican gubernatorial primary was a flop from the standpoint of votes cast.

With about half the votes in, Thomas E. McGuire of Petersburg led Berkeley Williams, former Richmond postmaster, 1965 to 1875, in the contest for the nomination for Republican liteutenant governor. Walter Johnson was unopposed in the GOP try for Governor.

The tiny Republican vote, as compared with a State party strength of nearly 100,000, caused many to wonder if a lot of party members had not followed the advice of former National Committeeman Henry A. Wise. Wise had urged Republicans to enter the Democratic primary and vote for Battle.

Tyrrell Krum, Fairfax County Republican chairman and a prime mover in the fight to hold a Republican primary, said he thought most Republicans stayed home—or voted for Miller in protest of the "Byrd machine."

Krum hailed his party's primary as "definitely a success."

"We had election boards set up in all but a few precincts in the State," he said, "and showed new voters there is a two-party system."

Nathan J. Paulson, chairman of Alexandria Republicans, admitted and deplored the fact that many Republicans there voted in the Democratic primary. He attributed it largely to a desire to vote in local contests—held by Democrats only.

Local Democratic officials made no attempt to discourage Republicans from crossing over. They held it was their "privilege," but not their "duty" to challenge a suspected Republican when he asked for a Democratic ballot.

The total vote in the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax area was about 23,700—less than half the estimated 54,000 qualified voters in these communities. It was, however, an all-time high for primary voting.

Only 19.6 Pct Of Voters Gave Battle Victory

The votes of less than 20 per cent of the registered voters of Virginia gave State Senator John Stewart Battle the Democratic nomination—and assured election—as Governor of the State.

Senator Battle attracted 19.6 per cent of the qualified voters, a study of the tabulations showed yesterday. This number represented 7.3 per cent of the total population of voting age.

The three other candidates in the Democratic primary drew even smaller percentage of the registered voters and population 21 years of age and over.

The Fedeal Census Bureau estimated the total number of persons in Virginia of voting age, as of July 1, 1948, as 1,801,000.

The State Board of Elections in Richmond yesterday computed the total number of registered voters at 677,800. This is 37.5 per cent of the total number of voting age.

The Associated Press at Richmond reported a total of 311,862 ballots were counted in the Tuesday State primary as of 6 p. m. yesterday. This vote represented 46.01 per cent of the total number of registered voters or 17.2 per cent of the population of voting age.

Here is a computatoin of the percentages of the total number of registered voters and total number of persons of voting age who favored the four Democratic candidates:

Candidate	Vote cast	Percentage of registered voters	Percentage of n'ber of voting age
Battle	133,167	19.6	7.3
Miller	109,979	16.2	6.08
Edwards	46,931	6.9	2.5
Arnold	21,785	3.2	1.2

The gubernatorial election in Virginia brought out a record vote, but percentagewise even this falls far below the national turnout on the last presidential election. Then 51.2 per cent of the number of Americans of voting age in all 48 States cast ballots, or 71.9 per cent of the total registered vote.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Republican Committee Chairman

BY REPUBLICAN definition normalcy is a happy state in which you know where you're going with no foolish or idealistic detours. All the signs indicate that the Republican Party is moving in that direction.

Childs

The dominant group in the Republican National Committee is determined to liquidate the experiments of the past. It wants no more of Governor Thomas E. Dewey's "me-tooism." And it remembers with a kind of horror back of Dewey to the unhappy experiment with the late Wendell Willkie.

If all goes as these men mean it to go, the new chairman will be Guy George Gabrielson, National Committeeman from New Jersey. Gabrielson is one of their own. He is rated a shrewd, careful operator and a highly successful business lawyer whose income is estimated at not less than $200,000 a year.

THE SIGNIFICANT fact, of course, is that Gabrielson was on ardent Taft man at the 1948 GOP convention in Philadelphia. He is a Taft man today, which is the chief reason he has the support of Taft's friends on the committee.

While he never openly criticized the Dewey campaign of last fall, Taft in private has aired his own sharp analysis of Dewey's faults and failures. If Taft is the nominee in 1952, he certainly will not fall into the error of me-tooism, which in the Taft view was Dewey's greatest weakness.

Step by step the Senator from Ohio has sought to carve out his own position on domestic issues. He means this to be the moderate position between the right wing of his own party and the Truman Fair Deal. Right-wingers in Taft's party don't like his stand on housng and aid to education. But they will swallow it.

Taft has taken a big new step toward ending the Dewey me-tooism. In opposing the foreign policy line of the Vandenberg-Dulles-Dewey wing, he takes his own stand in the foreign field.

At the present time, with many Republicans and independent voters strongly in favor of the bipartisan approach to foreign policy, this has an unpopular look. But it is possible the errors of the Truman Administration, such as the provision in the arms aid bill giving the President sweeping powers to send guns anywhere, may give it quite another look by 1952.

If the chairmanship goes to Gabrielson, it will be in a sense by default. The languid headlines of the past 10 days have not reflected a passionate race for the office. The chief interest has been on the part of presidential aspirants anxious to keep rivals from nailing down the top position.

THERE IS SOME regional resentment that an Easterner should take over in the light of the history of the party since Alf Landon and the 1936 campaign. This originates chiefly from the backers of A. T. "Bert" Howard, GOP State chairman in Nebraska.

Howard, Mayor of Scotts Bluff, Neb., is touted for his 29 years in grass-roots politics. The big argument is that the GOP must win back the Middle West or risk passing out of the picture once and for all as a national party. And in the Middle West are the critical contests of next year.

Howard's principal backer is Nebraska's Senator Kenneth Wherry. A boomlet for Senator Wherry for President in '52 has been rumored. But the Senator's friends say this is hardly more than a bit of propaganda to disqualify Howard.

Gabrielson's advantage is that he is a member of the committee, one of the tried and true familiars. Because of his connections with big business, he has been a valiant fund raiser in the past. He is president of Carthage Hydrocol, Inc., formed by a half dozen large corporations to manufacture gasoline synthetically from natural gas. Incidentally, Hydrocol has had loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation totaling $18,500,000.

The normalcy of 1949 and after would have little resemblance to the normalcy of 1920 and after. The current of world events is today far swifter and America's status is far more immediately subject to what happens in distant places with strange sounding names. The life expectancy of this new normalcy, to use a phrase of the insurance underwriters, would be considerably less than the nine years that preceded the crash of 1929.

Leopold Suggests Vote on Abdication

Brussels, Belgium, Aug. 3 (AP). It was learned authoritatively today that exiled King Leopold has told a group of Belgian politicians he would abdicate only if his return is favored by less than 51 per cent of votes in a proposed referendum.

The royal issue has kindled a political crisis in Belgium. There has been a 38-day deadlock in efforts to form a post-election government.

D. C. Nonchain Sales Rise 6% In Six Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Dollar sales of Washington independent retailers in June showed a 4 per cent increase from those in the same 1948 month, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

In the first six months, sales of the local nonchain stores were 3 per cent higher than in the like period last year.

Nationally, the bureau reported independents' volume was 4 per cent down for June.

Of 19 differene types of nonchain businesses here, eight displayed increases for the first six months. Leader was the auto dealers group with a 19 per cent upturn. Filling stations were next best with a 7 per cent increase. Food stores, department stores and furniture stores each showed 5 per cent gains.

Sharpest declines in the six-month period were registered in the lumber-building field, off 24 per cent; jewelry stores, off 18 per cent, and fuel-ice dealers, off 18 per cent.

The Census Bureau gave this picture of local independent retailers' sales as compared with the same 1948 periods:

PREVENTS RUST: Sinclair Refining Co. will introduce in Washington what is claimed to be antirust gasoline, according to B. P. Mackenzie, Washington area manager for Sinclair. The new product, Mackenzie said, is the result of development of a special chemical which when blended with gasoline coats the inside of a car's fuel system. The new-type gasoline will go on sale here next week.

TURNABOUT: Vexed at the increasing number of finance firms that have invaded the auto casualty insurance business, a large Washington insurance firm is reported mapping plans to enter the auto finance field.

ODD LOTS: Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food price index advanced this week to $5.84 from $5.73, but remained 18.7 per cent lower than a week ago . . . Colorado Fuel & Iron Corp. has reduced price of steel rails by $2 a ton . . . The Federal Communications Commission has been asked by the Motion Picture Association to set aside special channels for television . . . Morgan Stanley & Co. took the underwriting lead away from Halsey, Stuart & Co. in July with 150 million dollars in commitments, against Halsey's $50,470,000 . . . A three-way battle for control of Segal Lock & Hardware Co. went to a vote late yesterday but a company spokesman said results will not be known for several days.

MORTGAGES FEWER: Nearly three out every five of the Nation's nonfarm homes are owned free and clear, according to the Federal Reserve System in its survey of consumer finances. The exact proportion is 57 per cent and this represents a gain over 1940 when 54.7 per cent of all owner-occupied homes was unmortgaged.

Maryland to Curb 1950 Short Session

Baltimore, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Maryland Legislative Council took steps today to keep the first "short" session of Maryland's General Assembly from bogging down in a mass of bills next February.

After a sharp fight, the council adopted a policy for limiting bills at the 30-day session to: (1) the annual budget; (2) financial measures of an acute emergency nature; (3) emergencies affecting the welfare of the whole State.

This action would rule out the flood of local bills which always hits the Legislature at its three-month sessions every two years.

Last fall the voters approved a constitutional change which provides for the short sessions every other year. The change was designed to permit legislative action on the State's money affairs on a yearly basis, but the law did not specifically restrict the short sessions to fiscal matters.

Attorney General Hall Hammond, however, has interpreted the law, holding that bills which may be presented at the short session must fit into the categories now set up by the Legislative Council.

English Physicist, Engaged in Restricted Research, Becomes U. S. Citizen

An English physicist, now engaged in restricted research work for the Applied Physics Laboratory of Johns Hopkins University in Silver Spring, is among 19 persons naturalized as American citizens in Rockville this week.

He is Guy Worsley, 41, of 1220 Pinecrest Circle, Silver Spring. The laboratory where he works is a major contractor on research work for the Navy's ordnance bureau.

Worsley came to this country from his native England in 1939, and worked at Cambridge, Mass., where he did research connected with the war effort for Harvard University before coming to Silver Spring.

Also naturalized in Montgomery County Circuit Court on Tuesday were:

Marcel Berthault, 52, of 303 Baltimore ave., Takoma Park, a native of France, now employed as catering manager of the Congressional Hotel in Washington.

Mrs. Annie Kristine Vigeland, 47, of 5160 Shoemaker lane, Bethesda, a former Norwegian and a hairdresser; Mrs. Giuliania N. Reed, 26, a housewife of 4707 Elmhurst lane, Bethesda, a native of Italy.

Mrs. Jacoba P. Schouten Quinn, 31, 11604 Georgia ave., Wheaton, housewife, and native of the Netherlands; Mrs. Nicole Malone, 21, 4521 Chestnut st., Bethesda, a French woman and a housewife.

Mrs. Jean Weir Parso, 23, 8516 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park, housewife and native of Australia; Mrs. Eva Maria Barsis, 28, of 220 Holly ave., Takoma Park, a cashier from Austria; Mrs. Marie Rosaria Hebis, 26, of Persimmon Tree rd., Cabin John, Md., a housewife from Italy.

Mrs. Joy Diana Stockley Fuller, 26, of 5518 Lincoln st., Bethesda, a housewife and native of England; James C. Call, 29, of 11114 Valley View ave., Kensington, insurance underwriter and former Canadian; Mrs. Helen G. Butts, 39, of 10 E. Underwood st., Chevy Chase, housewife from Canada, and Mrs. Rose Mary Panzone, 44, of 1313 Woodside pkwy., Silver Spring, a housewife and an Italian native.

House Group Approves Lobbying Investigation

A resolution proposing a full-fledged House inquiry into lobbying was approved by the Rules Committee yesterday and sent to the floor.

The investigation would embrace lobbying activities by Government agencies, as well as private interests.

O'Dwyer May Ask Roosevelt, Spellman Pact

New York, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Mayor William O' Dwyer said today he would consider trying to bring about an understanding between Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Francis Cardinal Spellman.

O'Dwyer, who returned from a 10-day vacation last night, made his first comment today on the controversy between the cardinal and Mrs. Roosevelt over Federal aid to education.

"I don't know of anything that has happened during my public career that I regret more than this controversy," O'Dwyer said. "I think enough already has been said about it and in the common interest of the city, the State and the Nation, mutual friends—and there are many—should bring about any understanding between them."

Asked if he would try to bring about such an understanding, he replied: "Nothing would give me greater happiness."

He said he had made no such attempt, "but I'll certainly think about it."

"I have great respect for the cardinal and I have equally great respect for Mrs. Roosevelt," he said. "I can understand the cardinal's interest in the children not in the public schools. At the same time knowing Mrs. Roosevelt as well as I do, I cannot believe that any position she would take in the case of children or adults would be as the result of bigotry."

O'Dwyer, who is a Catholic, said he was "disturbed over the possible effect on the city of a controversy between two outstanding leaders which mgiht well divide our people into two camps."

Vatican Says Birth Control Will Aid Reds

Vatican City, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—The Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, yesterday said legalization of birth control was a greater disaster to Japan than the atom bomb and would enable the Communists to take over the country in 20 years.

In an article submitted by the National Catholic Welfare Council of the United States, Osservatore blamed the influence of Japan's "victors" for the recent resolution in the Japanese Chamber of Deputies legalizing birth control.

The article said the measure would enable the Communists to build up their numbers by forbidding the knowledge and practice of birth control among their adherents, while the rest of the population declined.

Four In House Ask Another Parley On Education Aid

Four House Labor Committee Democrats, all freshmen, demanded yesterday that Chairman Lesinski (D., Mich.) call another meeting on Federal aid to education.

Lesinski said he got a letter from the four, requesting a session to follow up Tuesday's no-decision meeting marked by two hours of angry debate.

"I said yesterday I might call another meeting," Lesinski said, "but now I don't know about it."

The four were Representatives Sims of South Carolina, Steed of Oklahoma, Perkins of Kentucky, and Jacobs of Indiana.

In spite of this move, House action on school aid this year appeared out of the question, although some backers clung to a faint hope for committee action.

N. Y. Mailers Union Demands Turned Down

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—An arbitration board today turned down wage increase demands by Mailers Union No. 6 of the AFL Typographical Union.

The union's members bundle papers for delivery and mailing at 12 major newspaper plants in New York.

A spokesman for the Publishers Association of New York said the union had asked $20 and $25 weekly increases for day and night workers, respectively, under a wage reopening clause in the current contract.

Senate Group Backs Pay Boosts

may be offered again from the Senate floor.

The classified bill would benefit upwards of 180,000 classified Federal and District Government employes in and nearby this city. The postal bill would help about 8000 postal workers in this area.

Pay raises under the classified bill would range from $6.48 to a high of $670 a year. The salary range would be from $2100 to $15,000. New grades over the present $10,330 ceiling would be added at $11,500, $13,000 and $15,000.

The present CAF, P and SP grades would be merged into a single General Service schedule of 15 grades. A new wage schedule for 100,000 Crafts, Protective & Custodial employes with a salary range from $2080 to $4900 also is carried in the classified bill. The average CPC employe would get a pay boost of $108, from a minimum of $60 to a maximum of $229 a year.

The percentage raise for CPC employes would be 4.2 per cent and 3.6 per cent for classified workers.

The classified bill also provides for a performance rating system to replace the present efficiency rating system. Under it, an employe would be rated either outstanding, satisfactory or unsatisfactory. He could appeal an unsatisfactory rating to a three-man board within his agency. An employe representative would sit on each board. There would be no appeal to Civil Service.

A differential up to 50 per cent for hazardous work is provided in the classified bill for a year only. Civil Service would fix the hazardous rates and within a year it would be directed to recommend to Congress a permanent salary schedule for hazardous jobs.

The bill would direct each Federal agency to set up a committee to give awards to employes and supervisors alike who perform outstanding and economical work.

The classified bill would provide $15,000 salaries for a score of officials who would be given that rate of pay in the House-approved executive pay bill. The Senate committee took them out of the executive bill. Among those are the heads of these agencies:

REA, Customs, Prisons, Reclamation, Soil Conservation, Farm Credit, Social Security, Forest Service, Farmers Home, Civil Aeronautics, Narcotics, Federal Crop Insurance, Archives, Production and Marketing, Internal Revenue, Public Roads, Public Buildings, Community Facilities, Immigration and Naturalization and the three special assistants to the Defense Secretary.

These other changes also were made in the House-approved bill: The ECA administrator was raised from $20,000 to $25,000 along with Cabinet members; the Housing and Home Finance administrator from $18,000 to $20,000; the RFC chairman from $16,000 to $18,00; the eleven commissioners of the United States Court of Claims were added at $15,000; State's legal advisor was added at $15,000; the House's Legislative Council was placed at $12,500, and $16,000 instead of $15,000 salaries were fixed for the administrators of Public Housing, Federal Housing, and members of the Home Loan Bnak Board.

The following tables show how the salaries of the 850,000 classified employes would be adjusted under the bill. Proposed General Service grades are used:

MICHAEL MAIONE,

New York juke-box operator, is described by Secret Service agents as top man on the East Coast for a Chicago counterfeit gang which has flooded the New York area with more than a million dollars in fake $10 and $20 bills. He was held in $50,000 bond for the grand jury

9 Die in Break At Mexican Jail

Morelia, Mexico, Aug. 3 (U.P.)—Police today recaptured 34 prisoners who escaped from the Morelia Prison after two gun battles in which eight convicts and a policeman were killed.

A widespread search was on for 30 more convicts at large.

Two convicts and a jail guard were killed by gunfire in the initial break last night. Police shot down six more convicts in a second battle early today five miles from here. Three police were not expected to live.

The prisoners grabbed eight rifles in the break as well as knives and clubs.

Dr. Bunche Denies Urging Embargo End

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 3 (U.P.)—Acting Palestine mediator Dr. Ralph J. Bunch denied today that his report on Holy Land armistice negotiations recommended that the United Nations lift its embargo on import of arms and fighting personnel into the Near East.

He said he would make concrete suggestions on the subject only when asked by the Security Council, which meets Thursday to take up his report.

Britain Transferring Diplomat in Romania

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Foreign Office announced today British Charge d'Affaires Roderick F. Sarrel is being transferred from his Bucharest post at the end of this month. The Romanian government has demanded his recall.

A spokesman said the Romanian government was told of Sarrel's impending departure "some time before" his arrest on July 25 on charges of aiding opponents of the government to escape the country. His new assignment was not disclosed.

Msgr. Sheen Sees Pope

Vatican City, Aug. 3 (AP).—Pope Pius XII today received in private audience Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, Catholic educator and writer.

Man Jailed 5 Months for Jobless Pay Fraud

George Rodic Thompson, 33, address listed on court papers as 621 Fairmont st. nw., was sentenced yesterday to serve five months in jail for fraudulently accepting unemployment compensation checks.

Judge Aubrey B. Fennell of Municipal Court was told by compensation officials that Thompson falsely stated that he was not working when he received $138 in payments in 1946. He reimbursed the office in the sum of $60, but stopped payments in March.

Thompson said he took the money because his sister had become paralyzed after an operation and that he helped support her. He pleaded for time to pay back the rest of the money.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

One on the Aisle—

Men Are Pawns At Olney, Too

By Richard L. Coe

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE, subject of Meridian Hill's "No Time for Comedy" and the Playhouse film, "One Woman's Story," is also with us at Olney. There the fabulous Ruth Chatterton is playing Dodie Smith's "Lovers and Friends."

Fundamentaaly, this is a cool, philosophical treatment of the theme about a marriage which threatens to break up when a wife's possession of a man is disputed by an outsider. My fault with the play is that, taken by themselves, Miss Smith's lines are not very amusing; the development and story are logical, but the lines are uninteresting, often flat.

For all that, Miss Chatterton's sense of sincerity and gentle humor is fetching and she is supported by an able company, especially by the facile Margaret Bannerman as a close friend who does not try to lift her husband. These two accomplished ladies play well together, though Miss B. didn't meet Miss C. till last week.

After three triangle doses in as many days, one is struck by the fact that writers of these things do well by the ladies, but what sticks they make of the men who so shatter their hearts. The boys are always puppets, no more than types alongside the richly endowed ladies—beautiful, wise, witty, gentle, charming—who are the centers of authors' concern.

One is tempted, indeed, to admit that this is a woman's world in which they squabble elegantly among themselves for the mere male, whose attractions are either a handsome bank account or a similar phiz.

So it is with Miss Smith's five central characters. Stiano Braggiotti, as the wayward husband, and Edward Ashley, as the gallant who offers to pick up the Chatterton pieces, have lifelessly drawn assignments. It is a considerable achievement that both actors give them some of their own personal zest.

But Miss Smith's three ladies are individuals. Miss Chatterton is acting a wise, comfortable woman, one of honor and wit. When her husband's defection has settled into her consciousness, she finds a new life for herself. When he decides his projected fling isn't worth while, back she allows him to come.

Miss Bannerman's facile style makes a likable person of the Best Friend who's fond of men but lets the heroine's husband alone. She finally marries her friend's discarded lover and one is actively glad for her.

And June Dayton's other woman is a sharp study of the middle class climber who decides to create an up-from-the-gutter aura for herself. Miss Dayton's style is a nice switch from her ingenue role of last week and the role is so decisively drawn that an Olney audience gasps out loud at this Other Woman's audacity.

But the males Miss Smith has drawn are surprisingly monosyllabic drones to cause such commotion among these three ladies. She gives them little to say, little to do except to clumsily trip up love's applecart. Ah me, what beasts men are.

Once more the Olney's triple stage glistens with settings that surprisingly evoke the Upper Tax Bracket wherein these triangle yarns flourish. Syrjala's drawing room and misty park must surely rank high on citronella circuit standards.

Maritime Cleanup Demanded by Aiken

By Robert S. Allen

If the U. S. Maritime Commission isn't thoroughly housecleaned, it won't be the fault of Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.).

The agency has long been under fire for the free-handed way in which it ladles out large sums of taxpayers' money to shipping companies. Aiken is demanding prompt and drastic action to put a halt to that.

Aiken subjected the commission to a tongue-lashing during a Senate discussion of a proposed $10,000,000 shipping deal.

It involves the renovation of two 20-year-old passenger ships owned by the Matson Navigation Co. and one of its subsidiaries. Although more than $15,000,000 has been spent for this purpose, the work is still largely unfinished. A majority of the commission wants to give the companies another $10,000,000.

Commission Vice Chairman Raymond S. McKeough, former New Deal Congressman from Illinois, is opposed. In a detailed memorandum, he declares the money would be better spent for new, modern liners. Aiken feels the same way.

Aiken charged the commission "has been just about the last word in inefficiency and wrongdoing among all United States agencies.

"As this act is being interpreted, the commission can commit almost every known crime and still be fairly well within the law," Aiken said. "Revision of the act is long overdue, and so is a thorough housecleaning of the commission."

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee is considering legislation, for action next session, to tighten up the Act.

Marriage Here Often Is Difficult

widely in different offices. In this particular one, not all cases are accepted—a state of affairs, it is said, hardly universal in law offices.

This lawyer, it happens, has had nearly as much formal education in psychology as in law. It has served him well.

One rough case he handled by estimating correctly a husband's weakness: a new blue convertible.

The husband had taken off for Reno, leaving the convertible with his girl friend and a 10-year-old, broken-down family car with his wife.

The girl friend proceeded to drive the blue convertible slowly past the wife's home in the evening.

The lawyer made a bold suggestion to the wife, who, despite all this nonsense, remained desperately in love with her husband.

Why not, asked the lawyer, stroll down to her rival's home and appropriate the convertible, using her duplicate keys.

This the wife did, and the lawyer saw to it that the husband in Reno heard the news.

The husband took the next plane for Washington. Husband and wife are together today. The girl friend presumably is trying to latch on to someone else's husband and convertible.

The lawyer's jackets of cases read like a vast and tangled novel of many characters and plots, but there is one central theme—marriage in eruption.

Item: A couple was working for the Government here. The husband was transferred to California, wife stayed behind with her job. One month later he wrote, "There's no place for you." The heel had met someone else.

Moral: Never let your husband go to California alone. Or, for that matter, to Virginia Beach.

Item: Husband accused wife of having an affair with their neighbor, specifying the Washington hotel where it had taken place. The pair went to a psychiatrist, who told the wife she was a woman who needed a lawyer, if he'd ever seen one. The wife went to this lawyer, categorically denied everything her husband had said.

Money the Object

The lawyer stroked his chin and decided either she was a liar, in view of the specific nature of the information her husband had furnished, or her husband was obsessed.

The lawyer checked times and places cited by the husband for the hotel assignations.

He discovered there was no truth in it: the whole story had been planted in the husband's mind by a private detective who owed him money and villianously gave this false intelligence to pay off the debt.

The lawyer reported back to the psychiatrist, who told the husband the true story. Husband went back to his wife, but to this day the poor soul has hallucinations about her and all their neighbors.

Moral: Never lend money.

Item: A strictly upper-drawer affair. He had a particular group of friends he liked to be with, she had another particular group and didn't fancy his. Both were the finest of people, salt of the earth, but just never saw eye to eye. Incompatible nature in that she liked the hunt, he didn't. She golfed, he didn't. He liked his yacht, she didn't care for yachting.

Result: Divorce, tremendous party by both sets of friends celebrating it, both former spouses present.

Moral: Discuss possible disagreement on like and dislike of yachts before marriage.

It's All Very Friendly

Item: Another high-bracket, and strictly modern and broad-minded. Obtained divorce, each remarried. Follow this closely now: Daughter of wife by second husband visits first husband, who takes her on vacations. Wife in turn entertains his son by second marriage.

First husband architect, second husband interior decorator. First husband builds house for himself, engages former wife's husband to do decoration.

Moral: Come hell or high water, keep the business in the family.

Item: Girl from Wyoming, living with two other Government girls. A fine menage they had and were happy dividing cooking, dishwashing, bedmaking and other chores. It was one fine setup. Also, girl saved sum of $3000. (Don't ask us what, on a Government salary, she had left to eat on). One evening she met a nice boy, at least she thought so.

Soon they were married. A year later she awakened to find a number of things had happened to her, typical of which was that her car had been traded in on a new one, in her husband's name.

Result: The girl from Wyoming left the car in the nice boy's name and returned to her happy menage, two girl roommates, all nicely dividing the chores.

Moral: Hang onto your car.

Item: Government girl here from big city married man from country, later went out to visit his family in the Ozarks. Couldn't cope with outdoor plumbing. "Never saw such living in my life," told lawyer after taking train back in state of severe shock. Result: Divorce.

Moral: Beware of such men.

But the lawyer broke off the chain of sad tales to discuss another regiment active in the marriage and divorce battle these days: the psychiatrists and psychoanalysts.

The time now had come to visit some of th e. To try to discover in this upper stratosphere the modus operandi for plucking District marriages off the old ghosts.

(Tomorrow: Husband of alcoholic in love with another woman has a divorce problem.)

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

REDSKINS DEPT.—Sammy Baugh, not as skittish at 35 as when he pitched the Redskins to a couple of National League football championships, honestly admitted in the team's California training camp the other day that he may be getting too old for the rigors of the pro game.

He hinted that the Redskins' quarterback job perhaps ought to be passed on to the younger hands of Harry Gilmer. If that appeared to be, initially, a disconcerting bit of news for Redskin followers, on reflection it may not be wholly to the bad. For years, despite proper respect for Baugh's passing skills, Redskin fans have moaned about the lack of versatility in the Redskins' attack.

POVICH

They've been yearning for a running game. Under Baugh, the Redskins' used running plays chiefly as a decoy for Baugh's passing. With Baugh himself never a running threat, the Redskins lacked deception and their play has had a wearisome sameness for years. Gilmer, who was known to run the ball for Alabama as well as throw it, might bring a fresh interest to the Redskins.

PRO GOLF DEPT.—Sammy Snead is on his way to setting a new record for golf earnings by a pro in a single year. He tees off Friday as the favorite in the lush Tam O'Shanter golf carnival at Chicago, promoted by George S. May, who was the first to post $25,000 as prize money and now has upped the prizes to a total of $66,200 for the three days' play.

Snead goes into the tournament with a total of $23,560 already won in purse money this year, but that's not all. Like other pros, his arrangement with the sports equipment manufacturers calls for them to match every dime of his purse winnings, so his earnings for 1949 to date have already hit the $47,000 mark. But that isn't all. Count in also Snead's "appearance" money that brings him $500 for entering tournaments, plus his exhibitions and lesson-giving and he'll be crowding the $100,000 bracket before the season is over.

Pro golf has come a long way since the players eagerly raced to enter the $2500 tournaments of the early '30s and scrambled for the $600 first prize money. In these days, the PGA scorns the tournament that doesn't offer $15,000 in prizes.

FIGHT DEPT.—Heinie Miller, executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, declares that the N. B. A. requires no defense of its move in recognizing Ezzard Charles as world champion after his defeat of Jersey Joe Walcott. "The fact that the New York State Athletic Commission is withholding recognition from Charles doesn't bother us," says Miller.

He points with pardonable pride to the fact that when previous differences of feeling between the N. B. A. and the New York Commission with respect to champions were finally resolved, the N. B. A.-recognized champs defeated the New York pets, seven times in nine bouts staged.

"New York can be awfully wrong about fighters," Miller points out. "Several years back, they permitted John Henry Lewis to fight Joe Louis for the title after the N. B. A. barred him as a challenger. We sent John Henry to three Pittsburgh doctors of his own selection, and all three found him totally blind in his right eye (detached retina). New York let him fight Louis and stuck him with the champion's murderous left hook. John Henry didn't last one round."

CHANNEL DEPT.—One faction of the English Channel swim authorities are expressing surprise that 16-year-old Shirley May France is seemingly bent on the West-East course from England to France, holding that the reverse direction holds the best chance of success. William T. Burgess, who made 16 attempts in both directions before he finally conquered the channel, was the coach who advised Gertrude Ederle to aim toward England in her famed swim in 1926.

Miss France, a teetotaler, won't be fed the 20 drops of brandy each hour which Burgess claimed gave him needed stimulation in his 1911 swim. And her trainers are partial to something akin to crude axel grease as a body coating in contrast to the fancy preparations of Burgess before his plunge 38 years ago.

On that date Burgess was greased with something called Stockholm oil but that was merely a first coating. Russian tallow was also applied as a heat-retaining agent, and there was yet a third dressing of plain white lard. To Shirley May he bequeathed another tip, if her trainers like it: Plug your ears with dentist's wax. He did.

Pollet Blanks Braves for Cards, 7-0; Dodgers Win

St. Louis, Aug. 3 (AP).—Howard Pollet hurled his fourth shutout and fourteenth victory of the season as the St. Louis Cardinals held on to first place in the National League race with a 7 to 0 victory over the Boston Braves tonight.

Pollet allowed four hits and struck out six in what was probably his best pitched contest of the season. He walked only one.

A five-run outburst in the fourth inning for the Redbirds took the pressure off Howard so he could concentrate on the batters without worrying about any men on base. Two of these four hits against him were doubles—one by Bob Elliott and the other by Connie Ryan—but the runners were left on base.

Johnny Antonelli was the victim of the Cardinal bats. It was the fifth straight time this year the Redbirds have defeated him.

Bums Wallop Bucs, 9-3, Snider Big Gun

Pittsburgh, Aug. 3 (AP).—Duke Snider batted in five runs today with a single, double and his sixteenth home run of the season to lead the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 10-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The triumph was the Dodgers third in a row over the Bucs.

Carl Erskine, freshman right-hander, who rejoined the Dodgers in mid-season, recorded his first victory, limiting the Pirates to six hits. He pitched two hit shutout ball for six innings before weakening in the seventh.

Pete Castiglione, Pirate third baseman, hit his fourth homer of the year in the seventh. It came with two aboard. Singles by Monte Basgall and Pinch Hitter Ed Bockman, sandwiched around a walk to Stan Rojek produced the first Pirate run. The final Pittsburgh run came in the ninth, with Castiglione sending it in via a forceout.

The Brooks picked up a pair of runs in the first inning at the expense of Elmer Riddle, on a single by Peewee Reese, a double by Marv Rackley and a run-scoring fly by Jackie Robinson. They added another in the third on a walk to Rackley and singles by Reese and Snider.

Snider followed a walk to Rackley in the fifth with a two-base blow to maket it 4-0. His homer came in the seventh with two mates aboard to put the Brooks in front, 7-0.

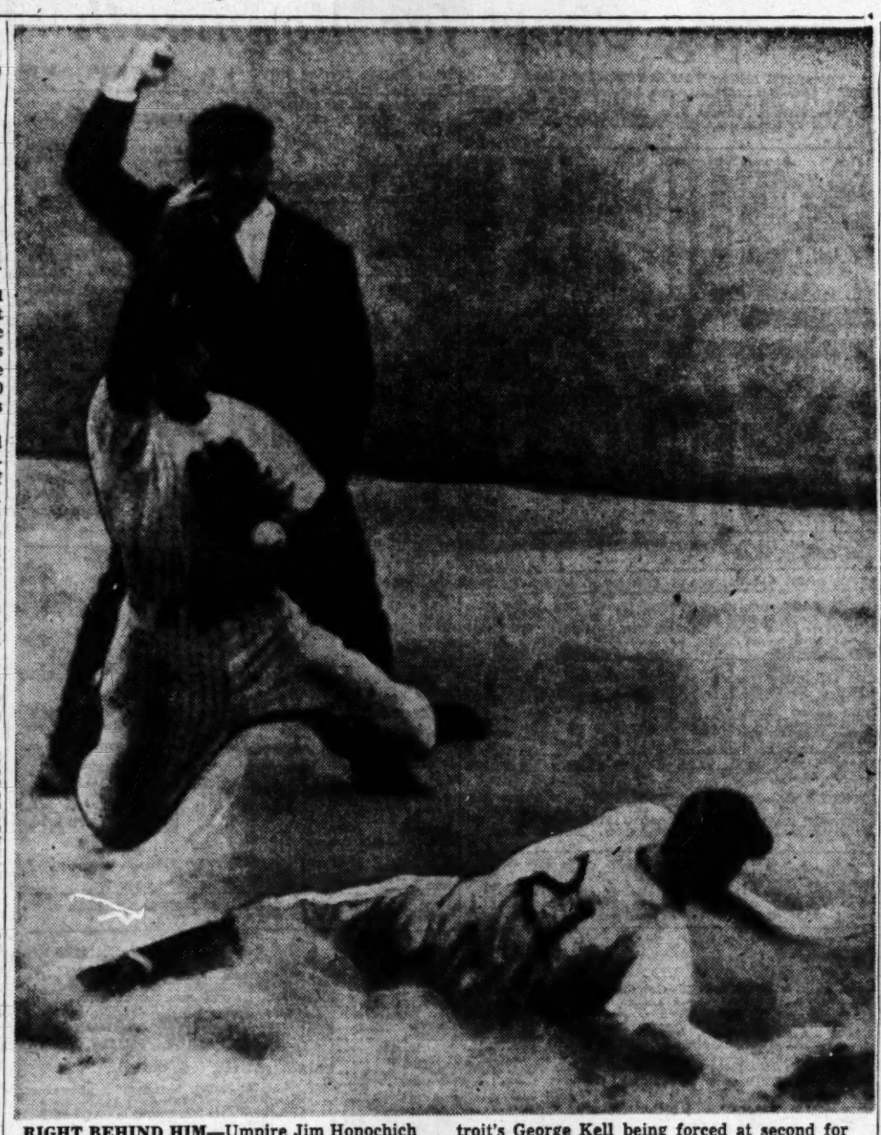
Jockey Fined $100 For Talking to Public

Monmouth Park, N. J., Aug. 3 (AP).—In a ruling announced today the stewards announced that Jockey Henri Mora had been fined $100 for talking to the public during racing hours without permission of the stewards.



RIGHT BEHIND HIM—Umpire Jim Honochich seems to be mimicking Secondbaseman Jerry Coleman, of the Yanks, in this flying action shot at Yankee Stadium yesterday with Detroit's George Kell being forced at second for the first half of a double play in the sixth inning. Like a true umpire, though, Honochich has both feet on the ground

Pitcher Gonzales Arrives

Rain Washes Out Nats-Tribe; Twi-Night Twinbill Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nats got relief from two sources last night.

From the sky came rain which washed out their game with Cleveland, bringing temporary relief from their losing streak.

From Havana came Enrique Gonzales, a relief pitcher.

Senor Gonzales, who looks more like a rhumba dance instructor than a pitcher, replaces another Cuban hot shot — Sandalio Consuegra. The latter chose to stick it out with the first-place Havana team in the Class B Florida International League rather than join the Nats, who are not quite as high in the American League.

The Nat pitching being what it has been lately, Gonzales will probably get a chance to strut his stuff tonight when the Nats collide with the Indians in a twi-night twin bill starting at 6:30 o'clock.

The starting pitchers Manager Joe Kuhel has elected to trot out against the pennant-contending Indians are Dick Weik and Paul Calvert, in the order named.

Weik, who's been something of a sensation in his last two starts, will duel either righthander Al Benton or lefthander Frank Papish in the daylight section of the bargain offering.

Calvert, trying to snap an eight game personal losing streak, tackles Bob Feller under the lights.

IN SHORT—Although Gonzales speaks no English, he won't find it difficult making himself understood. He's got two capable interpreters in Roberto Ortiz and Paul Calvert. . . . The new pitcher is 26, weighs 165 and won 10 and lost eight toiling for the Yankee dollar in the rum and coke league . . . about 7000 people were in the stands when the game was called off.

Bosox Defeat Browns, 9-3, Kinder Fans 14

Boston, Aug. 3 (AP).—Ellis Kinder set a new 1949 high for Red Sox pitchers today by striking out 14 batters as he paced the Boston American Leaguers to a 9-3 triumph over the last place St. Louis Browns.

The American League record for strikeouts is 18, held by Cleveland's Bob Feller.

The Boston right hander, who recorded his twelfth victory of the season against five defeats, was aided to victory over his former team by two explosive innings.

The Sox batted around for four tallies in the sixth, three of them scoring on Bobby Doerr's thirteenth homer of the campaign.

They batted around again in the seventh for their other five runs.

Ted Williams, with two hits in five trips, went ahead of the Browns' Bob Dillinger, hitless in five, in the American League batting race.

Dom DiMaggio remained right on Dillinger's heels in the fight for the league lead in hitting with his two hits in five times at bat.

Dom also extended his consecutive games hitting streak to 30 games.

After the game Williams had an average of .344, Dillinger .343 and DiMaggio .342.

Kinder had a three-hit shutout going until the seventh when the Missourians scored their first run. Their other two came in the eighth on Rookie Roy Sievers' ninth homer.

Cliff Mapes Tags Detroit's Trucks For Clutch Single

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—The New York Yankees blew a 4-0 lead today, but rallied for three runs in the eighth inning to come from behind and defeat the Detroit Tigers, 7-5.

Cliff Mapes, a part-time outfielder, delivered the winning blow, a clutch single to center that brought in Joe DiMaggio and Bobby Brown with the winning runs. The hit came off Virgil Trucks, who had just replaced loser Marvin Grissom on the mound for Detroit.

Tommy Henrich, who earlier had hit his eighteenth home run and a double, began the winning rally with another two-bagger, a fly ball that fell at the feet of rightfielder Vic Wertz.

After Yogi Berra had fouled out, DiMaggio singled to bring in Henrich with the run that made it 5-5.

Brown sent Joe to third with a right field foul line double. That finished Grissom and brought in Trucks.

The Yankees got their other runs on Berra's home run in the first and the catcher's two-run single in the sixth. Held scoreless for six innings by Tommy Byrne, the Tigers finally got to their old nemesis for a single tally in the seventh.

Hoot Evers singled with one out, moved to second on a walk to Johnny Lipon and scored when pinch hitter Pat Mullin singled to right. The Bengals chased the erratic southpaw to the showers in the eighth.

Don Kolloway's infield hit and passes to George Kell and Johnny Groth loaded the bases with one out. Evers then slammed the first pitch between short and third to drive in two mates, and drive out Byrne.

Joe Page, the Yankees' ace relief pitcher, took over and retired Lipon for the second out. He did not have as much luck with Catcher Bob Swift. After uncorking a wild pitch, he gave up a single to Swift that sent Groth and Evers across the plate with the runs that put Detroit in front, 5-4.

Waterbury Club Releases Bert Shepard

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 3. (AP). The Waterbury Timers of the Class B Colonial baseball league early today announced the release of Bert Shepard, one-legged playing manager, who pitched for the Washington Senators part of the 1945 season.

Henry DelPo, business manager of the fourth-place team, said the club could no longer afford to pay Shepard's salary.

Basketball Loops Merge, Caps Stay In

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The Basketball Association of America joined forces with the National Basketball League in an expected merger yesterday in New York that puts the Washington Caps in the brand-new 18-team National Basketball Association.

Nine other BAA members last season are included—New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, Rochester, Chicago, Fort Wayne, St. Louis and Minneapolis.

The eight teams from the National Basketball League include Milwaukee, Waterloo, Iowa, Denver, Moline, Ill., Sheboygan, Wis., Indianapolis, Anderson, Ind., and Syracuse.

Dropping out were Providence, formerly in the BAA, and Dayton and Hammond, Ind., NBL members last year. The Oshkosh franchise was transferred to Milwaukee.

Yesterday's merger became effective at once and Maurice Podoloff, New Haven, Conn., president of the 3-year-old BAA was named to a similar position in the new league. Ike Duffy, Anderson, Ind., president of the 12-year-old NBL was elected chairman of the board of governors.

Representatives of both leagues made the announcement of the merger and returned immediately to the conference room to iron out remaining details. Later, they decided to hold another meeting in Chicago, August 11.

It was obvious they had plenty of "ironing out" to do. The scheduling problem alone is nightmarish enough. BAA teams that played an interminable 60-game schedule last year will find themselves playing 70 games next season.

M. J. (Mike) Uline, owner of the Caps, explained that his team will play six games with each former BAA team, three at home and three away. In addition, the Caps play each of the other eight clubs two games on a home and away basis.

The outspoken Uline said the merger has been brewing for some time, adding, "But I've been

Letter to the Boss

Our Boy Herbie Is Nat Fan Even on Vacation

Dear Bus:

It's 3 p. m., the sun is shining and here I am taking it easy on an umbrella decked beach. My wife, Shirley, has gone for a dip I'm taking it easy, but still wondering how our Nats are doing.

Sure, I know that this is my vacation and I'm supposed to forget about everything concerning my job, Nats included. Shirley even hides The Washington Post which we're having mailed to us up here.

But my mind is turned back to the Nats at least every 22½ minutes by a carousel up on the boardwalk. At those intervals it plays "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" and there I am again body on this beach, mind at Griffith Stadium.

First day I was up here I read where we polished off the Browns 7-3, thanks to two powerful home run blasts by Sherry Robertson. I was thinking that maybe my coming up here was good luck for our team and if our winning streak kept up I might not get back to work.

But then Ray Scarborough lost a tough 2-0 game to the Browns and Early Wynn lucked out against us 8-1.

Before I forget about it, you might remind Moe Siegel to say some nice things about Sherry. That guy is having a whale of a good season.

Sherry's average is climbing and though I have no access to the batting averages I'm sure he must be creeping up near 300. Let's cheer him on. I don't believe he ever hit that high even when he was in the minors. They're still my Nats. Regards to everyone.

As Ever,
HERB.

A's Send Dykes On Talent Hunt

Philadelphia, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics tonight sent Coach Jimmy Dykes ivory hunting.

The floundering Athletics, faced with the problem of climbing back into the American League's first division, are looking for talent among their farm clubs. Dykes was given orders for a tour that Manager Connie Mack hopes will bring some big league material to light.

The Golden Superman employed a body press to defeat Chick Garabaldi in 19 minutes in a cofeature wrestling match last night at Turner's Arena. In the other feature, Michele Leone won over George Macriostas with a body press in 17 minutes.

Ivan Kamaroff and Tony Cosenza registered two straight falls to win the team match from Bibber McCoy and Babe Sharkey.

A's Beat Out Chicago, 3-2

Philadelphia, Aug. 3 (AP).—Rookie First Baseman Hank Biasatti's first hit of the season paved the way for the Philadelphia Athletics 3-2 victory over Chicago tonight.

Biasatti's eighth inning double with two out followed Wally Moses single and when rglht fielder Dave Philley booted the ball, Moses scored with the winning run.

Biasatti, who took over for Ferris Fain two days ago when the regular first sacker was forced to the sidelines by a minor operation, had gone hitless in 17 previous batting chances before he belted his two-bagger off Bill Wight.

A Medal for Billick?

Whelchel's Brave Just for Taking the Job

35,000 Skins' Fans Waiting Results

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Occidental College, Calif., Aug. 2.—A braver man may come along, but there isn't a member of the Washington Redskins who doesn't credit the finest display of raw, unadulterated courage so far this season to their new head coach, John "Billick" Welchel.

He accepted the Redskin head coaching job, didn't he?

For an ordinary hero that would be as courageous as you could get, what with 35,000 rabid fans and a rabid owner breathing hot on your neck.

But Whelchel has taken over one of the toughest assignments in pro football under circumstances whichwould sto p a man of lesser mettle.

Of course, the newest and smallest coach in the National Football League, fresh out of his Admiral's uniform after 33 years in the Navy, has a few things going for him, as the boys say.

His career as the fifth Redskin coach since the team moved here from Boston could be a brilliant one. Consider, then, the main points on both sides of Whelchel's ledger, as he takes the big plunge.

(1) He has not given his full time to coaching for five years. His last coaching post was at the Naval Academy in 1943; since then he has skippered various ships for Uncle Sam.

(2) He has never coached the T-formation, which the 'Skins expect to continue using. A few hours spent with Frank Leahy at Notre Dame this spring, plus a few T-formation plays used at the Naval Academy in 1943 are his only background in the system it took Clark Shaughnessy, the T-master, five years to install for the Redskins.

(3) He has never coached a professional team. Whelchel's own opinion, as expressed at a press conference, is that there's little difference in coaching high schools, colleges and pros. Some coaches may disagree with this, if for no other reason than the age of the players involved.

(4) Finally, Whelchel has never coached under George Marshall, the 'Skins majority stockholder. There has been a constantly-recurring rumor, perhaps with foundation, that Marshall's enthusiasm for the game has brought about frequent interference with his coaches.

In Whelchel's Favor

The credit side:

1. He is a winning coach. In 11 seasons of coaching at Navy starting in 1919, he was with only one club which lost more than it won. That was in 1924, when Navy lost six and won just two. His best records were with a 1926 club which swept nine games, and a 1943 ouflt which won eight out of nine.

2. He is blessed with three able assistant coaches. Handling the backs will be Wilbur Moore, former 'Skins half back star. Linemen will be coached by Turk Edwards, last year's head

Minaddie Scores Over Flicka Foot

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 3.—The Hotel Alexander Purse, 6½ furlong feature, run before 4200 fans in a driving rain, but over a fast track, resulted in a mild upset when Minaddie, owned by E. L. Morseberger of Ellicott City, Md., scored in 1.22 3/5. She paid $6.00.

The majority of the second day's turnout sent P. A. Rothfuss' Flicka Foot postward a 6-5 favorite. She flattered her selectors by leading for five eighths. At that point Minaddie rushed to the front to win easily from Flicka Foot. Queen May, owned by Sam Delisi of Washington was third.

Jimmy Baird, who handled Minaddie, also captured the fifth race with D Tata's Hyade. It was Baird's fifth score in 14 races, giving him a commanding lead in the fight to become the meeting's leading winning pilot.

A payoff of $15.60 resulted when the 8-2 daily double combination of Mrs. W. I. Jones Cedar Brand and P. W. Rudacille's Brideaux Boy was victorious.

Wagering the first two days was off about five per cent from last year. However, track heads were looking for a sharp uprise beginning Saturday.

Raffensberger Beats Phils, 2-0

Cincinnati, Aug. 3 (AP).—Ken Raffensberger held Philadelphia to two hits today as the Cincinnati Reds downed the Phils, 2 to 0.

It was the veteran southpaw's fifth shutout of the season and his eleventh win against as many defeats.

Robin Roberts was the losing pitcher. He allowed eight hits as he evened up his record at 10-10.

Danny Litwhiler's 383-foot home run in the fourth inning gave the Reds their first marker. The locals counted again in the eighth on Grady Hatton's single, a sacrifice and Johnny Wyrostek's safety.

Only 29 batters faced Raffensberger. Granville Hamner got Philadelphia's first bingle in the third inning and Andy Seminick got the other in the ninth.

It was Raffy's second two-hitter of the year. He also has a one-hitter—against Brooklyn—and two four-hitters to his credit.

Miller, Langston Meet Tonight For Johnson Title

The Walter Johnson league goes into the final stages tonight at Bannaker lower field when the 12 and under teams from Kelly Miller and Langston meet under the lights at 8:30 o'clock.

Both teams have a 7-0 won-lost record to date and tonight's winner qualifies to meet Hayes in a best two of three series for the overall championship. This final series will be held in Griffith Stadium, August 12, 13.

Langston has somewhat the better record against common foes. Langston scored 58 runs while holding their opposition to 16 while Kelly Miller was able to tally 47 times but held the same teams to a mere 12 runs. Langston ran up three shutouts with Kelly Miller registering only two but Kelly Miller held their opponents to one run on three occasions, a feat which Langston was never able to duplicate.

Langston Manager Reginald Ballard will send Don Wills to the mound while Kelly Miller coach, Samuel Stovall will rely on Walter Thompson in tonight's game.

Browns Sign Chancellor, Local Sandlot Pitcher

Whitey Chancellor, pitcher for the Cameo Furniture Co. baseball team in the Washington Post Industrial League, has been signed by the St. Louis Browns of the American League.

The 22-year-old right hander has a 26 and 2 won-lost record during his two years with the Cameo club.

Chancellor will report to Springfield (Ill.) in the triple I league Monday.

While St. Louis was in Washington last Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Chancellor worked out under the surveillance of Vice President Charles DeWitt and Manager Zach Taylor.

His tryout was prompted by his performance against the Naiman team in the Post Industrial League two weeks ago when he registered a 12-0 shutout.

Al Buschling, Watson Win Game in 8th

Brooklyn, Aug. 3.—The unbeaten Washington Printers made it three straight in the I.T.U. tourney by nosing out New York's Big Six nine, 3-2, just before a downpour at Ebbets Field today halted the game after eight innings.

Al Buschling, of The Post, led off the eighth frame with a 396-foot triple to deep center and crossed the plate with the winning run on Teddy Watson's single over third.

Gene Collins held the New Yorkers to six hits and fanned five. Others results—Baltimore 4, Indianapolis 0; Boston 4, St. Louis 4 (7 innings—rain). Detroit 1, St. Louis, 1 (7 innings—rain).

Ted Schroeder Available for Davis Cup Play

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—Alrick Mann, jr., nonplaying captain of the United States Davis Cup squad, said today Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., definitely will be available for the defense of the huge international trophy.

Mann received a copy of the letter which Schroeder, star of all postwar cup matches, sent to Lawrence Baker of Washington, D. C., president of the USLTA. Baker's letter was sent to New York and then on to South Orange, N. J., where he is not expected until tomorrow.

In the letter Schoeder said he had been invited to become a partner in a refrigeration company and that this new business responsibilities would keep him out of all Eastern tennis competitions except the Davis Cup and possibly the National Championships.

Walker Cup Team Arrives in U. S.

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—Great Britain's Walker Cup golf team and Italy's Davis Cup tennis team arrived today for their invasions of the United States.

The amateur golfers, greeted by Francis Ouimet of Boston, left almost immediately for White Plains, N. Y., where they will begin practice at the Winged Foot Course tomorrow for the August 19-20 matches with the United States team. Later the invaders will compete in the U. S. Amateur at Rochester, N. Y., August 29-September 3.

The Italians oppose Australia, American zone winner, in the interzone final at Rye, N. Y., August 12-14.

Here Are a Couple Ways To Keep Aim for Hunting

By Ralph Murdock

IF YOU SHOULD like to test the old shooting eye for the coming hunting season, how about a couple of worthy suggestions? Why not try a few rounds of trap or skeet shooting? There are several fine gun clubs in this area whereby you can get the necessary practice. It is a swell sport during the off season and now is a good time for the workout. If shooting at clay targets does not have the necessary appeal, we recommend crow shooting as an alternative.

Murdock

When you have reached the stage where you can hit crows with regularity you can rest assured that the shooting lamps are in working order. Remember, when you kill a crow you have done everyone a favor but the crow. Some States offer a bounty for crow bills and a number of gun clubs offer trophies to exterminate them.

The Prince Georges Rod and Gun Club held its annual crow shoot and bagged a total of 28 crows and 3 hawks. A trophy was offered to the member who could kill the most crows in 3 hours. It remained for a father and son to run one, two for top honors.

Ohmer Webb, sr., won the prize by knocking nine crows out of the air. His son placed second with eight crows and one hawk. As hawks were not counted in the crow shoot the Senior Webb was presented the trophy. A fried chicken dinner was furnished to all the members at Chubby's Restaurant.

Week End Suggestions

Where they are biting:

ROCKFISH—Mouth of Chester River and Point Patience near the mouth of the Patuxent River. Chum at the first location and troll at the later.

HARDHEADS — Chesapeake Beach to Shady Side. Best catches in four to 12 feet of water. Late evening fishing best. Frozen shrimp will entice them.

BLUEFISH—Snapper sizes—one-pound average. Solomons Islands area. Between Point No Point and Old Cedar Point Lighthouse. Trolling with white artificial lure, best procedure.

SPOT — Unusually plentiful. Cornfield Harbor at the mouth of the Potomac and up the bay to Annapolis — You shouldn't miss with bloodworms. Don't catch more than you can use.

WHITE PERCH — Holland Point Bar—Grass shrimp is your best bet—Chumming gets the best results.

TROUT—Fair catches at Cornfield Harbor and Solomon's Island area. Peeler crab will do the trick.

One of the club's latest moves is to build a fresh water pond for bass. The project is now in progress. A recent fishing trip sponsored by this sporting club brought out 120 anglers from Prince Georges County. Too bad that we do not have more clubs like it.

SOME LOCAL anglers have been moaning the blues due to fish scarcity. But here's a fishing party that actually got the blues. They were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Turner and Fred Rippingale. It all happened off Solomon's Island, about a mile below old Cedar Point Lighthouse. This catch of blues created more excitement around the island than the announcement of the first hardhead being taken at Benedict last spring.

Rudy Berger said the water was literally alive with bluefish and that they stayed up on the surface for three hours. He added, "They tore up 12 white bucktail and feather lures and the hooks were the only things they left. We must have lost one third of the blues we hooked. It's the second best trip I have had in 20 years of fishing."

Lest we forget, 342 blues, 17 rock and 52 spot was the actual count. The bluefish averaged about a pound but three of the rockfish scaled 6, 8, and 9 pounds respectively. Rodie Langley was the skipper.

GETTING BACK to normal catches Dick Hayes and Leo Forami pulled in 26 jumbo size hardheads and 15 white perch from a rowboat off Broadwater. Their catch was achieved in shoal water after sundown.

Merle Mercilliott and Charlie Smith caught 5 large flounder and a batch of pan-size spot off Deep Creek in the Upper Chesapeake Bay. This is the first take of flounder recorded in this area. They were caught on shell bottom.

John Stimac and George Hamp of Arlington, Va., and G. A. Parks of the District nabbed 150 better than average size spot and 10 croakers off Franklin Manor. George Hamp remarked, "I have never seen so many small rock and little croakers since I have been fishing in the bay. It looks like a good season for these species next year. It was a perfect trip because we failed to catch a single eel or toad."

Truck Driver Tells Story

Baker, the truck driver, said at the Waterloo, Md., State police barracks, that he was traveling toward Baltimore and pulled to the second-from-the-right lane of the four-lane highway to pass another car. He started to pass it, but it pulled out also, forcing him further to the left.

As he applied his brakes, his trailer jackknifed he said.

"I couldn't do anything, it all happened so fast," he said. "It was a terrible sight, people all battered; there was moaning and hollering."

Witnesses in following cars said that as nearly as they could tell, the convertible also was trying to pass the bus, both being bound in the opposite direction from the truck. Officers said the tractor part of the truck struck the convertible and the trailer went directly in front of the bus.

Bus Driver's Story

Before he went on the operating table, Bus Driver Poole told hospital attaches he was driving in the right lane when suddenly the trailer shot across in front of him. He said he applied his brakes hard, but the bus skidded on wet pavement and slammed into the vehicle, shearing completely through the metal covering and wood frame.

Poole and others said the front of the bus was crumpled back to the normal position of the second seat and that the side was raked somewhat.

Shortly after the accident, Greyhound officials carefully swathed the vehicle in canvas, hauled it to a garage, and posted guards to keep newspapermen and others from seeing it. They gave no explanation for this action.

Captain Helps Injured

Capt. W. A. Devane, an Army quartermaster stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., was a passenger on the bus. He said he sat in the third seat behind the driver.

"The bus was fully loaded, with five or six persons standing," he recounted. "The driver was going uphill, about 45 miles per hour when suddenly ahead we saw this trailper. It was already jacknifed. The driver started to apply his brakes but it was wet and the bus went right into the truck.

"Suddenly there seemed to be a mass of broken arms and legs and everyone was waving wildly. I came out through the rear emergency door with about six others."

Captain Devane refused to talk about himself but others in the accident said he worked quickly and skillfully to get out the injured.

Robbed of $75

Jones, who said he is a handyman in Philadelphia, complained bitterly of his luck in the crash.

"My wife went blind about 5 years ago and I was bringing her down to visit her relatives in Washington," he said. "We were in the back seat. I was just trying to pet her a little and someone yelled and the next thing we were thrown about 10 feet ahead in the aisle.

"Then they take me to one hospital and her to another. And finally, when I get out and to this hospital, I find my wallet is gone with $75 in it and I'm broke."

Jackson said he was riding about the fourth seat from the rear on the right and was thrown over the front of the next seat.

Pair Aided Car's Occupants

Scott and Miss Whaley were sitting together in the seat by the bus emergency door. They were thrown forward, but managed to struggle to the emergency door and open it. Though cut and bruised and by that time soaking wet, they aided in pulling out the occupants of the convertible, other survivors said.

The crash occurred shortly after 5 p. m., during a driving rainstorm. Maryland State Police, notified of the accident, summoned nine ambulances to the scene. Traffic on the heavily traveled Washington-Baltimore blvd. rapidly backed up for more than a half mile in both directions. That and the rain impeded rescue work and made accurate news of the crash scarce for some time.

State police finally reopened the road to traffic after an hour's work.

Hurt but Helped Save Others

The Washington Post

BUS PASSENGERS—Willard H. Scott and Julia Ann Whaley, both of Baltimore, tell at Prince Georges County Hospital of the highway crash in which they luckily escaped serious injury. They escaped from the emergency door of the Greyhound bus and helped remove passengers from the convertible in which two died in the multiple crash. Scott suffered a cut jaw which required four stitches. Miss Whaley was shaken up

County Chief Doubts Success Of 1-Man Police Car Trials

Montgomery County Police Chief Charles M. Orme wonders whether the county's experimental use of one-man police cars will "give the residents adequate police protection."

The one-man car system was ordered by the county council after G. McNayr said it would conserve manpower, save money, and was being successfully used in six cities of more than 100,000 population. It began yesterday.

Chief Orme emphasized yesterday he wants the shift to one-man cars "given a fair trial." But, he said, sprawling Montgomery County's need is for more scout cars.

"Montgomery County is such a large area to cover that only scout cars can adequately do the job," Orme declared. Foot policemen in the county have no call boxes they can use for checking in, and "there's no way we can reach them in an emergency."

Most of the 22 men released by the one-man cruiser program have been put on foot patrol in areas like Bethesda or Silver Spring, he said.

Other disadvantages of the one-man cars, he said, are (1) two men are better than one in a case involving physical violence, and (2) they have "a psychological effect" in boosting each other's morale in a tight spot "when quick action may save a life."

3 Negroes Admit Forming Own KKK To Scare Girls

Ozark, Ala., Aug. 3 (AP).—Three Negroes accused of setting up their own Ku Klux Klan—complete with white sheets—today were charged with violating Alabama's new anti-masking law.

State Investigator C. S. Prier said the trio admitted donning sheets to frighten two Negro girls they accused of misconduct.

The Negroes were booked as Tommie Johnson, Raymond McClendon and Robert Edward Lee Miller, all of Ozark.

Prier quoted Johnson as saying in a signed statement:

"We need some kind of organization to stop these girls. We ought to whip them."

The investigator said the Negroes told him they decided to form their own Klan about July 1. They got sheets, hooked them over their heads and chased the two girls down an Ozark street the night of July 14.

Prier added the self-styled Negro Ku Kluxers then wrote themselves threatening notes to "get out of town."

Coast Guard Lauded By Truman for Valor

President Truman yesterday praised the U. S. Coast Guard for its fidelity and valor in a message marking observance of Coast Guard Day tomorrow.

He was joined by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and Undersecretary of the Treasury E. H. Foley, jr., in sending greetings to the Coast Guard, an arm of the Treasury, which is celebrating the 159th anniversary of its founding.

The President said observance of the day "recognizes the fidelity with which Coast Guardsmen discharge important responsibilities in our civil affairs, and the valor with which they have performed all military duties imposed upon them."

Illinois Racing Bill

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 3 (AP).—A bill permitting night thoroughbred horse racing in Illinois was signed into law today by Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson.

Tomcat Has No License to Drive, Court Contends

Boston, Aug. 3 (AP).—A tomcat named Al E. Van lost his driver's license today.

Benjamin F. Wilson, the cat's owner, testified that he obtained the license in his pet's name after he had been refused a permit in his own name.

The license, made out to "Al E. Van," was presented in court.

Wilson, a 25-year-old State hospital attendant, was convicted of operating so as to endanger and using an automobile without authority. He was sentenced to serve six months in jail.

Al was not in court.

coach Herman Ball will again help out all around, as well as act as chief scout.

3. He has what looks like adequate material. Slingin' Sammy Baugh is still Mr. Redskin, of course, and backing up the experienced help are rookies who turned in brilliant college performances. For a change the 'Skins appear to have enough big linemen, particularly tackles, to make their backs go and stop a few opposing backs.

4. He is an "officer and gentleman" of apparently strong personal convictions, which could make him the Redskin head coach in fact as well as name. Either that or it could make his Redskin coaching career the shortest on record. He is smart enough to realize his shortcoming, and may act in a supervisory capacity until he knows whereof he speaks.

Yes, Coach Whelchel is a brave man. The Navy recognized this by awarding him the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star.

But that was in a different war.

Skins' Doctor Works on Plane

Occidental College, Aug. 3.—With last year's injury jinx still fresh in mind, the Washington Redskins hoped they were expending an ounce of prevention as well as a pound of cure when they flew their own physician into their 1949 training camp yesterday.

Dr. Robert E. (Pete) Moran, one of Washington's top plastic surgeons, kept in practice even abroad his westbound plane. His stewardess told of an incident in which an elderly lady suffered a heart attack. Dr. Moran laid down his gin rummy hand, revived the lady, then "ginned" on his first turn back in the card game.

The doctor's first check-up was Harry Gilmer, prize passing rookie whose training camp injury last season postponed his debut as Slingin' Sam Baugh's understudy. Gilmer's leg is in perfect shape, he said.

"You've got no excuses this year," Moran told the tow-headed former Alabama Star jokingly. Gilmer's answer was: "I ain't looking for any excuses."

Halfback Eddie Saenz was the doctor's only patient as the Redskins went through their second day of twice-daily workout. The former USC speedster sported a black eye after bumping into Wingman Joe Tereshinski, and in addition he was found to have an acute case of tonsilitis.

Bradford Bows Out at Kalamazoo

S city subg lede KAL . . . . .

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug 3.—Tom Bradford, 15-year-old Washington, D. C. star was eliminated by Don Thompson of Jackson Heights, N. Y., 7—5, 1—6, 6—1, in the National Junior and Boys Tennis Championships here today.

Bradford rallied after losing the first set to Thompson who is seeded No. 2, and took the second set with the loss of only one game. In the deciding set however, Thompson's all court game proved too much for Tom.

Both youngsters are southpaws, and were equally steady in the baseline duels but Bradford's volleying weakness became apparent when forcing tactics were employed.

The defending junior champion, Gilbert Bogley of Chevy Chase, was idle in the singles yesterday while the rest of the field caught up, but he teamed with Dick Squires of Bronxville, N. Y., to defeat Ray Smith of Chicago, and Larry Pedicord of Dayton, Ohio, 6—3, 6—2 in the first round of the doubles.

The Washington doubles team of Tim Coss and Ted Rogers advanced to the second ruond by beating Jim Sagebiel of Dayton, Ohio, and Milledge Galphin, of Louisville, 7—5, 6—1, 8—6.

Hogan Named Captain of Ryder Cup Squad

Chicago, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—The Professional Golfers' Association announced today that Ben Hogan has been elected captain of the United States Ryder Cup squad, although he will not be able to play in the competition.

Hogan, recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Texas last February, will appear with the Ryder Cup team in Boston, August 27-28, when a special challenge match is held. The Ryder Cup matches will be played in England, September 16-17.

Although Hogan will not play in either meet, the PGA said, he will select the lineup of the United States team in singles and doubles competition in his capacity as captain.

against it and so have a lot of the others."

One of Uline's main objections is traveling all the way to Denver. "Why, it will cost $2200 to take 11 players there," he explained. "Overhead, already high, is going to go up and I'm afraid that it will be a case of the survival of the fittest."

The new league will operate the same as the BAA in that the visiting team won't collect a dime of the gate. "Each team must stand on its own," is the way Uline put it.

The cagy Mr. Uline saw one advantage, "I think professional basketball is coming up but nobody has made any real money in it yet. If the two leagues got in a bidding war for players it would mean suicide for both.

"You know, these players aren't dummies. They're all college graduates and they can do a good job of convincing you to pay them more money."

Bob Feerick, Cap star who succeeds Red Auerbach as coach next season, had a few objections from a player's viewpoint.

Feerick, equally unreticent, said, "Too many teams in the league."

He was quick to point out that it will be tough sledding for the Caps. "We'll have to play 54 games with former BAA clubs. A good team in that former National group can make a lot of hay playing most of its games against weaker clubs and having only to face each BAA team only twice."

Caps Sign Two New Players

The Caps made a little news themselves yesterday, Coach Bob Feerick announced the signing of two players—John Rusinko, Penn State, and Pete Clark, Mt. St. Mary's.

Feerick added that he's negotiating with four others—Earl Wooten, former Nat outfielder; Jim Rickert, former 6:06 center at Santa Clara; Thornton Jenkins, University of Missouri, and Jim Owen, Baylor University.

Interior Hit By Wender For Deadlock On Pools

Recreation Board Chairman Declares Children Risk Lives In Nearby Streams

Chairman Harry S. Wender of the District Recreation Board yesterday said the Interior Department, not the board, was to blame for the "lack of progress" in settling the swimming pool question.

His statement came in a letter to Interior Secretary J. A. Krug and was, in part, an answer to an Interior statement the previous day implying the delay was due to the District agency.

Only thing certain in the administrative squabble is that Anacostia pool, closed by Krug's order after racial clashes, is still closed and attendance at McKinley pool has declined.

Wender said yesterday numerous protests and petitions have been received by the board, including one from Chairman John L. McMillan of the House District Committee, all asking that the pool be reopened. He added that "many children continue to risk their lives swimming in the nearby hazardous streams, lakes and rivers."

Wender reiterated previous statements that both sides had agreed the board would run the pools, if turned over, on a "segregated basis at the outset." He said that there was agreement that the swimming pool situation was "acute, necessitating emergency action."

Wender stated the board altered its by-laws at Krug's request and then sent its committee to Interior to discuss the pool question. Wender went on:

"The committee was told that the Interior Department representatives were not yet ready to discuss the imminent swimming pool question and stated that they did not know when they would be ready to inaugurate negotiations on this subject." Wender added this was a "matter of extreme disappointment" to the board committee of which he was a member.

Interior plans suggested for transferring other Interior recreation facilities to the board, Wender added, were "in absolute conflict" with the original understanding between the two agencies that the board would set the time-table for changes in the segregation pattern.

Wender said the board again is requesting Interior to permit the board to operate the pools under the Federal agency's control. He said the matter could be taken up at the August 9 board meeting, if Krug would make a proposal in time.

Wender stated:

"You may be sure that we are willing to cooperate with you on the basis of our original understanding and that we are especially desirous of expediting the use of all public bathing facilities so that they may be utilized by the public to their maximum extent this summer."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Edward B. Morris, president of the Fort Davis Citizens Association, said 1150 residents of the Anacostia Pool area have signed petitions urging that the pool be reopened. The petition was sent to the Recreation Board to be brought to Interior's attention.

4. Give the kids a break. Make it a vacation for them as well as the adults. Remember, their span of attention is short and they get bored easily.

Take along small toys, games, brightly colored books. Figure out games to play along the way. Also, take along a thermos container of cold cocoa or milk, and some cookies. Buy all the fresh fruit your party will consume along the way.

House Group Puts Off Vote On Home Rule

The House District Judiciary Subcommittee yesterday postponed until Monday its decision on Washington home rule legislation.

The group met behind closed doors in the House District Committee room for about half an hour, then recessed until 10:30 a. m. Monday. Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) said no decisions were made on any point during the meeting.

Members declined to speculate on the probable results of Monday's meeting. They said the way is open to: (1) table the home rule bills; (2) report one of them to the full House District Committee; (3) prepare some modified home rule plan; (4) forward the issue without recommendation to the full District Committee, or (5) take no action.

All the home rule measures before the subcommittee, including the Senate-approved bill, call for setting up a city council and city manager system to replace Washington's appointed commissioner form of government.

They also call for an elected school board, and for varying degrees of increased control by the municipal government over purely local affairs.

Business Group Opposes Home Rule Proposals

A letter to Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), chairman of the House District Committee, stating the Federation of Business Men's Associations opposition to "any current legislative proposals" for home rule was made public at a federation meeting last night.

"The term 'home rule' as provided for in any of the pending bills," said the letter, "is a misnomer in view of the fact that none of the proposed legislation permits the citizenry of the District of Columbia to determine the type of government they themselves wish and permits people, such as Government employes who have a domicile elsewhere and pay no taxes in the District of Columbia, to vote for election of officials and on indebtedness on the property of the residents of the District of Columbia."

Scheduled action by the federation on whether or not to indorse the Community Chest was postponed due to the small turnout of membership. The meeting was held in the American Security and Trust board room.

Optometry Hearing Friday

A Senate District Subcommittee will conduct a hearing at 9:15 a. m. Friday on the House-approved District optometry bill. The hearing will be in the Senate District Committee room, before the subcommittee headed by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.).

Historic Site Bill Given Approval

Move to Preserve Old Georgetown Buildings Gets Plan Body's Stamp

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday approved a bill before Congress for preservation of historic Georgetown.

The commission will confer with the Fine Arts Commission on the matter later, Chairman William W. Wurster announced after yesterday's commission meeting. The monthly session will continue today.

Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) introduced the bill last month to define Georgetown as the area bounded by the C. & O. Canal, Rock Creek Park, Glover Parkway and the Whitehaven Parkway to 35th, south to P st. and west to 37th st. nw.

The legislation, which is modeled on similar ordinances in Alexandria, Va., and Charleston, S. C., would bar razing, altering or restoration of any building in the Georgetown area built before 1851 unless the changes were approved by the Fine Arts Commission. The bill is now before the House District Committee.

The planning group also opened study of another Georgetown project, proposals for beautifying Georgetown approaches to the Key Bridge. Staff member Thomas C. Jeffers submitted plans for connecting 34th and 35th sts. to the bridge by building a tunnel under Prospect ave., another for restoration of the Francis Scott Key mansion and a third for erection of an elaborate flagpole setting.

In other actions the Commission:

Designated John Nolen, planning director, to represent the group on a committee appointed by the District Commissioners to study Government holdings of land in the city.

Gave tentative approval to plans by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission for use of $657,000 in Federal funds for stream valley development, dividing the sum equally between Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

Approved an annual report showing expenditures of $560,000 during the past fiscal year for purchase of land, mainly for playgrounds and recreation areas. Plans were made for the 1951 program.

D. C. Man Dies Of Heart Attack While Swimming

Ray W. Smith, 31, curb manager at the Hot Shoppe, 4340 Connecticut ave. nw., died yesterday while swimming at Chesapeake Beach, Md.

Dr. Hugh Ward, medical examiner for Calvert County, issued a certificate of death due to a heart attack. Smith roomed at 1932 Calvert st. nw.

Dr. Ward said Smith had gone to the beach early in the day with five other men to fish. He dived overboard for a swim on the way back to the shore. The other men went ashore but went back out in the boat to investigate after he did not come in to the shore.

They found him floating face down in 5 feet of water about 25 feet from a jetty, Dr. Ward said.

Mt. Rainier Nominee Approved to Senate

Francis L. Leverone's nomination to be postmaster of Mount Rainier, Md., was sent to the Senate floor yesterday with approval of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee. He was named by President Truman to succeed W. F. Keys, retired postmaster. The nomination was one of 196 presented to the Senate by Civil Service Committee Chairman Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.).

Bachelor Given 2 Children as Parents Argue

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Judge Richmond B. Keech yesterday gave temporary custody of two small children to their bachelor uncle while the court settles a dispute between their estranged parents.

The District Court jurist, a bachelor himself, declared that the uncle, James Hubert Hardison, 45, of 2007 Upshur st. ne., was apparently the only person ready and willing to supervise the children's care properly.

The children are Lawrence Russel Hardison, 3, and his 1-year-old sister, Frieda Dell. The brown-haired Lawrence, alternately laughed and sobbed in the courtroom as his yellow-haired sister sat silently in her father's arms.

The case arose when the wife, Mrs. E. Eileen Hardison, 23, brought a habeas corpus action charging her husband, Ollice C. Hardison, 31, of 921 Decatur st. nw., with taking the children from a home in which they were placed. She said in her petition she did not know their whereabouts for two weeks.

She was not present in the courtroom for the hearing.

Hardison told the court that his wife had left him in March for another man and refused to come back to him and the children.

"I want her back for the children's good, but she refused a reconciliation. She won't even talk to me," he said.

Her lawyer, Louis Lebowitz, said that he had vainly tried to bring the parents together, but could do nothing.

It was at this point that the uncle rose to his feet.

He said that the youngsters had been shunted around among homes at which they had lived for only a week at a time since March. He said Lawrence had begun to have nightmares as a result of the treatment.

"I'll do anything in my power to help, but you see I am a bachelor," he said.

The judge adjourned court for a few minutes and when he returned said to the uncle:

"I am giving you custody of the children, if you will take them, and have made arrangements for you to have the assistance of the Board of Public Welfare to find them a temporary home. At the same time, I am ordering the father and the mother not to try to see them until this case is disposed of."

He set down the case for final hearing in two weeks.

The father, as tears rolled down his cheeks, then said:

"I appreciate that you are doing this for the children but I would like to say that since the youngest child was one and a half months old, we have been kicked around not only by her but by her friends."

"Get your rest and protect yourself," the judge replied. "This case is not finally disposed of. This doesn't mean that your children are finally taken away."

"But if I can, can I get a reconciliation?" Hardison asked.

"I'm not stopping that," replied the jurist with a kindly tone. "Just make sure that whatever you do, it is right."

With this, the uncle tried to take the youngsters, but Lawrence would not leave his father.

The four of them went to the Public Assistance Division to try to find a home.

Ollice Hardison, the father, told the court that he was a truck driver but that his drivers license was recently suspended because of a fatal traffic accident in Baltimore. Lebowitz argued that Mrs. Hardison recently lost her job as a clerk because her husband persisted in telephoning her at her work.

Lunch Funds Called More Than Enough

The District's share of $181,136 in Federal funds to carry out its expanded school lunch program yesterday was termed "more than adequate" by program supervisor Harry M. Gardner.

The allocation, almost $30,000 more than last year's, which ran out in early June, was disclosed as part of the Agriculture Department's $64,625,000 National School Lunch Program for the coming year. This amount is distributed among the States, the District and territories.

Gardner said the sum "will carry us through the school year nicely, and give us some room for expansion."

The law requires that the funds be matched by recipients on a dollar-for-dollar basis, except where a State's per capita income is lower than the average for the United States.

Among the new allocations was $695,856 for Maryland, compared with last year's $568,092, and $1,613,536 for Virginia, compared with last year's $1,509,229.

Under the school lunch program, operated in high, junior high and one elementary school in the District, the funds are used to reimburse schools nine cents for each complete lunch served. With the reimbursement, schools are able to reduce prices.

Bid Approved For Hospital Addition

The proposed 110-bed addition to Prince Georges County General Hospital moved closer to reality yesterday as the County Commissioners unanimously approved a bid of $1,101,579 by a Washington firm to construct the addition.

The Commissioners also announced that $800,000 worth of bonds—the county's share of the cost—will be placed on the market and sold to the highest bidder August 24.

The actual contract for the work, the Commissioners decided, will not be let until the bonds have been sold. Construction will begin soon after, with about 18 months required to finish the job.

The $1,101,497 bid, lowest of eight opened last Friday, was submitted by the B & J Construction Co., 3432 Connecticut ave. nw. If the United States Public Health Service approves the bid—as recommended yesterday by the Commissioners — the firm will be awarded the contract. The Federal Government is putting up $413,000 toward the addition's cost.

Plans of the hospital's expansion call for erection of a three-day addition of reinforced concrete with brick curtain walls. A power plant will be built also.

The 110-bed addition will house a contagious disease ward, facilities for Negro patients, and a pediatric wing, Harry W. Penn, who will become superintendent of the hospital September 1, said.

2 Proposals Of Murphy's Turned Down

The Commissioners yesterday rejected two Fire Department administrative changes proposed by former Fire Chief Clement Murphy before his retirement.

One proposal would have transferred the Emergency Ambulance Service from the Fire Department to the city Electrical Department. The shift was urged also by Dr. John Reed, chairman of the service, who told the city heads in a letter there was "inadequate and untrained personnel available" in the Fire Department to operate the service.

The other departmental change called for amendments to the building and electrical code to give the Electrical Department authority over fire alarm systems in private and public buildings.

The Commissioners' rejection of both the recommendations by Murphy were interpreted as new rebuffs to Herbert A. Friede, superintendent of communications, who under the proposals would have increased supervisory duties.

The Emergency Ambulance Service was operated by Friede's department from its inception several years ago until the Commissioners transferred it to the Fire Department in 1947.

Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew had suggested to the Commissioners that the proposed changes in fire alarm supervision be rejected since they "were not of sufficient importance to warrant official action."

Late Parleys Seek to Avert Engineer Strike

Walkout Approved By Union Against W. M. & A. Bus Line

AFL bus drivers last night voted to strike against the W. M. & A Motor Lines operating between the District and nearby Maryland effective tonight at midnight.

The action, taken at a meeting in the Boulevard Heights, Md., firehouse, climaxed a dispute with bus line management over the firing of an employe, E. J. Garrity of West Beach, Md. Garrity, a former mechanic crippled in an accident, had been working since the accident in the company stock rooms.

The drivers, who, together with mechanics voted the strike are members of local 1365, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America.

Another grievance has been the discharge of a bus cleaner, J. W. Bortot of Bradley Heights, Md., several weeks ago. But this matter is being held in abeyance pending settlement of the Garrity case, union officials said.

In the latter dispute, the management has held that the union does not have the right to represent Garrity since he is a stockroom employe. The union contends he holds a card in the organization granted him as a mechanic before his accident.

Approximately 120 employes are involved in the impending strike. The bus line carries about 25,000 commuters daily chiefly between the District and Prince Georges County.

25-Cent Hourly Raise Request Is Primary Issue

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Negotiators for operators and union met in an eleventh-hour conference last night and into the early morning hours in an effort to avert a strike of AFL operating engineers scheduled to begin this morning. Negotiations were still continuing at 2:45 a. m. today.

The 450 engineers—who operate cranes, steam shovels, bulldozers, derricks and similar equipment—are seeking a 25-cent-an-hour increase over their present rate of $1.50 to $2.50 an hour, plus a health and welfare fund amounting to 6 cents an hour.

A walkout by Local 77, International Union of Operating Engineers, would be a serious blow to the Washington area construction industry, which has already undergone a three-day strike by the carpenters and building laborers, and a three-dday strike by the ready-mix concrete truck drivers.

Negotiations over the new contract have been under way between the Excavators Association, representing a group of subcontractors, and the union since early spring. The old contract expired May 1.

Last Saturday, the local voted to strike, and later the union leaders set Thursday morning as the deadline. Efforts to bring the negotiators for the operators and union together failed earlier in the week, because two of the excavators' officials were out of town.

The session last night was arranged by Fred J. Rice, attorney for the operators, and J. P. Shields, business agent of the local.

Belt Allegedly Used

Father Held For Jury in Beating Case

A 34-year-old father was held for grand jury action yesterday for alleged cruelty in beating one of the sons with a belt until the boy suffered a mild concussion.

The defendant admitted he had "switched" the boy but contended it was because the lad had permitted or caused injury to his young brother, who is 14 months old. The father denied any cruelty and denied he used the buckle end of his belt.

He is Beverly P. Davis, jr., 711 Tuckerman st. nw., an unemployed laborer, and veteran of nine years of Army service.

The alleged beating occurred on July 23.

Infant Fell From Stroller

The boy, Robert Lee Davis, 11, testified that the day before, he had taken his infant brother to their grandmother's and the small child fell from a stroller. He said that his father had been drinking, showed him the scratched nose and forehead of the younger child, then told him to go to bed.

The boy said his father said that "if I ever hurt my brother he'd kill me." The beating followed, Robert testified, the father apparently using the buckle end of his belt. He said his ear was bleeding and his eye "was all red afterward."

Martin McNamara assistant U. S. attorney, said that officials of Walter Reed Hospital, where the lad was subsequently treated, reported he had a mild concussion.

Davis testified the boy was jealous of his younger brother, had often "smacked" him, and made a sarcastic remark when the father upbraided him for the previous day's injuries to the child. He said he "switched" Robert on the legs and buttocks. He asserted that he "loves his family" and was sitting quietly later when the "police crashed in."

Wife Earns $65 a Week

Davis testified his wife earns $65 a week and he was able to earn only $30 as a laborer, so two weeks before he had quit his job to care for the children and home rather than trust them to a maid.

Judge Aubrey B. Fennell, in Municipal Court where the preliminary hearing took place, asked Davis:

"Why don't you go to work, 16 hours a day if necessary, and support your family? It doesn't make sense. There's work available."

Judge Fennell set $1000 bond on the cruelty charge pending grand jury action, and an additional $100 on a drunk charge on which Davis will be tried in Municipal Court today.

Friday Last Day For Anti-Rabies Inoculations

Friday will be the last day your dog can be given free anti-rabies inoculations, the Health Department announced last night.

A total of 16,498 dogs have been immunized at the Health Department's 12 stations in the District since the anti-rabies campaign began three weeks ago.

Dr. W. W. Burdette, campaign director, reminded dog owners that their pets must be vaccinated against rabies at least once a year and that there is a $300 penalty for noncompliance.

Phone Firm Releases Impounded Union Funds

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday handed a check of $10,000 over to Division 36, Communication Workers of America (CIO), as a result of a decision by the National Labor Relations Office.

The Baltimore regional office of NLRB ruled that Division 36 was the legal bargaining agent for some 3500 plant, accounting, commercial and engineering department employes, even though the CWA recently quit its independent status to affiliate with the CIO.

The company had filed a petition some months ago asking for a new representation election, and had impounded the division's dues it collects for the union under the checkoff system. The union countered by seeking a court injunction for release of the money, and suing the company for $25,000 in damages.

Yesterday, the company released the impounded funds, and the union moved to dismiss its double suit, after C. & P. agreed to accept the verdict of the regional NLRB. The latter's decision followed along the lines of a Michigan case recently ruled on by the five-man NLRB. The decision similarly affects relations between C. & P. and the union's divisions in Virginia and Maryland.

Carmen Postponed To Monday Night

The opera "Carmen," which was postponed last night due to rain, will be performed on Monday evening at 8:20, according to John R. Brunner, executive director of the Washington Theater and Opera Co., sponsors of the 'Opera Under the Stars" series.

This evening, "Madame Butterfly," which is scheduled for presentation at the Watergate by the San Carlo Opera Co., will be performed.

The canceled "Carmen" will be presented on Monday with the same cast which was to appear yesterday evening. And tickets purchased for the canceled performances will be honored at that time.

Three Policemen Cited for Saving Crazed Soldier From Willard Hotel Leap

The Washington Post

RESCUERS GET AWARDS—Three men who helped prevent a man from jumping from the ninth floor of the Willard Hotel were presented the Policeman-of-the-Month award at a luncheon at the Willard yesterday. Left to right: Pvt. Kenneth M. Trundle, First Precinct; Pvt. Ledley A. Wallace, Traffic Division; Commissioner Guy Mason, who presented the awards; Pvt. Leonard M. Johnson, First Precinct, and Major Robert Barrett, superintendent of police

Private Wallace, who is 35, lives at 2801 Pennsylvania ave. se. Private Trundle, 34, lives at 204 Addison st., Seat Pleasant, Md., and Private Johnson, 43, lives at 1520 D st. ne.

Three police privates who saved a crazed soldier from jumping to death from a dizzy ledge on the ninth floor of the Willard Hotel were cited yesterday as Policemen of the Month, for June.

The three are Ledley A. Wallace, motorcycle man attached to the Traffic Division, and Leonard M. Johnson and Kenneth M. Trundle of the First Precinct.

Selections for the monthly awards are made by a committee made up of the city editors of Washington newspapers, on nominations by commanding officers in the Police Department.

The citations were presented yesterday at a luncheon at the Willard Hotel attended by police and city officials as well as newspapermen.

The citation recited beginning circumstances of the rescue and arrival of the three officers on the ledge near the soldier.

The would-be suicide later was identified as Paul McDuff, 19, recently transferred to Bolling Field, and despondent because of reverses in his Air Force career.

Commenting on the risks and uncertainty of a policeman's job, Maj. Robert Barrett, superintendent of police, took issue with the United States Supreme Court decision that recently reversed a gambling conviction because of the way members of the police vice squad obtained evidence. It was the so-called "transom peeping case" in which defendants were Earl H. McDonald and Joseph F. Washington.

Barrett said that "policemen are not paid to be lawyers, and are not lawyers."

If they see a crime, he said, they must make an arrest, and if they fail to do so, he will bring them before a police trial board.

"You have heard a lot about that case," he said. "There have been some harsh things said. It was a good case. The District Attorney and the jury and the District Court thought it was a good case. It stood up until it got to the Supreme Court."

Commissioner Guy Mason, another luncheon speaker, advised Barrett to be more philosophical about criticism both in the press and the courts and added that "this is a government of laws and not just of individuals."

"We've got all these things here as a means of preserving our system of government and our way of life," he said. "Don't be pessimistic. The Court of Appeals just issued a decision seriously upsetting our health department. We've got to be prepared to adjust to these things."

Has Baby Unaware Husband Is Dead

Unaware her husband died the night before, the wife of a wartime submarine officer yesterday gave birth to a son by a Caesarian operation at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Mr. Hayden

Hugh McCormick Hayden, 28, of 3603 Norton pl. nw., died of a heart attack at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Donald Angus Davison, 3629 S st. nw., shortly after visiting his wife at the hospital.

His wife was kept in a private room at the hospital and shielded from newspapers and radio which might bring her the news.

Yesterday the Naval Hospital issued a special bulletin:

"Mrs. Caroline Davison Hayden, 27, gave birth by Caesarian section at 1300 this afternoon. The baby was a male child, 6 pounds, 13½ ounces. Both mother and baby are doing very well and are in excellent condition."

Told Only He Was Ill

The child "tentatively" wes named Donald Angus, after his maternal grandfather, the late Brig. Gen. Donald Angus Davison, formerassistant engineer commissioner here.

Her family was continuing to keep the news of her husband's death from Mrs. Hayden, who was told only he was ill.

Other Son Survives

Hayden had one other son, Hugh, jr., 2. Survivors also include his father, Capt. Reynolds Hayden, USN Medical Corps, retired, of 5411 Potomac ave. nw., and four brothers, Col. Reynolds Howard Hayden, Marine Corps, Lejeune, N. C.; Albert H. Hayden, Charlottesville, Va.; brother Nicholas Hayden, who is studying for the priesthood at Oakland, Calif., and brother V. Felan Hayden of St. Mary's College, near Oakland.

Funeral services are set for 11:30 a. m. Friday in Fort Myers Chapel, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Hayden was graduated from Annapolis in 1942—the class of 1943 coming up early—and saw duty aboard the usbmarine, Jallao. He received the commendation ribbon for "excellent judgment" as assistant torpedo data computer operator aboard a sub on patrol in the Pacific.

He retired from the Navy two years ago after it was discovered he had a heart murmur, his family said. He took up the study of accountancy and was to be graduated this week from Strayer College.

14th Polio Case Occurs in D. C., 2 In Prince Georges

Th 14th case of poliomyelitis in the District was reported yesterday by the District Health Department, while two additional cases of the disease were reported by the Prince Georges County authorities, bringing to 13 the total there.

The District victim was a 7-year-old girl of the 700 block of S st. nw. She was admitted to Georgetown Hospital Tuesday. This date last year 20 District cases had been reported.

The Prince Georges cases involved a 4-year-old Riverdale boy and a year-old boy who lives in a veterans' housing project in College Park. Both were admitted to Children's Hospital Monday. Of the 13 county cases, five have been reported from the Riverdale area.

5 New Decisions

Tax Rulings Aid Sellers Of Portraits

Photography establishments were directed yesterday to collect sales tax on their products in one of five rulings issued by District Sales Tax Administrator Allan F. Brooke.

Brooke ruled that photographers, photo finishers and photostat producers must collect tax on the total selling price of film, frames, cameras, completed photographs, photostats and blueprints.

Services Tax Free

Retouching, tinting or developing film without producing finished prints are considered services and are tax free. Sale of artists' work in oil, charcoal, pen and ink, pencil, watercolors and other media are taxable. Cleaning or restoring art works are not taxable.

A formal ruling confirming an earlier decision on renting or leasing of film was handed down listing the transactions as tax-free.

Sales made on an "open account" were placed in the category of installment sales in another ruling and vendors were directed to make tax collections in the same manner.

The fourth decision permits persons engaged in business outside the District to apply for certificates of registration so they may prepare resale certificates covering purchases made from Washington wholesalers.

Auto Gadgets Taxable

The final one yesterday decreed that the tax be collected on sales of auto chassis, bodies and other accessories if the purchaser takes delivery within the District. Autos are exempt but subject to a 2 per cent excise tax at time of issuance of a city title.

Meanwhile, the Washington Restaurant Beverage Association yesterday formally requested a ruling from Brooke on whether bartenders may collect a cent tax on sales of the second and seventh glasses of 10 cent beer.

This morning enforcement men of the Sales Tax Division will begin a door to door check in the city on whether certificates of registration have been procured and tax collections are being made properly.

Yesterday another 611 requests for the certificates were received boosting the total to 11,704.

AWOL, VD Rates Cut Under Army Guidance Plan

The AWOL rate has decreased about 35 per cent and the VD rate by about 33 per cent in the Military District of Washington since the formation of the Character Guidance Council last summer, it was reported yesterday.

The council has acted to improve recreational and educational facilities for personnel of the military district and as a result figures show more soldiers "staying home" at nights and on weekends.

Those on the council are Lt. Col. Richard A. Risden, assistant chief of staff G.1, chairman; Col. Floyd V. Kilgore; the Inspector General, Col. Robert H. Barrett, Chaplain J. H. August Borleis; Col. William F. Nee, Information and Education officer; and Lt. Col. Royden A. Konopaska, the provost marshal.

Dr. E. F. Tittle Dies; Leader Of Methodists

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 3 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. Ernest Freemont Tittle, 63, Methodist church leader died today.

He collapsed of a heart ailment at his home here.

Dr. Tittle was chairman of the Commission on World Peace of the Methodist Church. He had been high in its councils for more than a score of years.

For 30 years, he was pastor of the First Methodist Church of Evanston. Earlier, he held pastorates at Delaware, Ohio, and Columbus, Ohio.

Dr. Tittle was well known to lecture audiences and was author of a number of books on religious matters.

He is survived by his wife, Glenna Meyers Tittle, two sons, John M. of Winnetka, Ill., and William H., of Woodstock, Ill., and a daughter, Mrs. David G. Poston of Redlands, Calif.

Vice President To Address Boys Forum Today

Vice President Alben W. Barkley will deliver the commencement address this morning at the graduation of the 96 members of the Boys' Forum on National Government.

The exercises will be held at 10:30 a. m. in the old Supreme Court chamber of the Capitol just before the Senate convenes. It will be the final event of the forum, a week-long series of tours, discussions and meetings with Government leaders.

Yesterday the boys met President Truman. Afterwards, the President led his visitors to the White House patio, where he posed for amateur photographs.

The rest of the day was spent at the Naval Academy, Annapolis.

W. A. Estep Funeral Rites Today

Funeral services for Walter A. Estep, 61, who died Monday in a Martinsburg (W. Va.) hospital after a long illness, will be held at 12:30 p. m. today, at the Chevy Chase funeral home, 5103 Wisconsin ave. nw. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Estep, who lived at 4311 Locust la., Brookmont, Md., had been hospitalized for three years with a heart condition. A third stroke proved fatal.

A native of Millwood, Va., he came to Washington about 30 years ago. He went to work for the Capital Transit Co. when it had only two buses in service. A short while later, he was promoted to garage foreman, holding that position until illness forced him to retire.

During World War I, he was a member of the Army Medical Corps stationed at Walter Reed Hospital. He was a member of Capital Transit Post 46, American Legion.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elda Trieber Estep, and five children, Richard Neale, 16; Walter Anson, jr., 14; Loretta Rae, 13; Evelyn Barbara, 11, and Stewart Dickerson, 3d, 8.

Miss Bankhead's Rites Set Today At Home in N. C.

Funeral services for Amy Bankhead, 27, clerk in the office of Representative Deane (D., N. C.), will be held in Hamlet, N. C., today.

Miss Bankhead died Tuesday night. Representative Deane was told, his secretary said, that she took "too many sleeping pills." An autopsy was performed yesterday but a death certificate was withheld pending a chemical analysis, Dr. Richard Rosenberg, deputy coroner said.

Representative Deane personally took charge of sending the body by train to Hamlet.

Paying tribute to Miss Bankhead, Deane said: "Her services were excellent. She had a fine disposition."

John A. Lang, secretary to Deane, said that although Miss Bankhead "had been well as far as we knew since coming to our office in March, we learned Tuesday night that she was a patient at Duke Hospital, Durham, last year for nerve treatments."

Miss Bankhead, who worked with the Army at the Pentagon for about a year before joining Deane's staff, was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bankhead of Hamlet.

Baby Suffocates Drinking Milk in Her Crib at Home

A 2½-month-old Laurel, Md., infant died of suffocation in its crib Tuesday night, Dr. John T. Maloney, deputy medical examiner of Prince Georges County, reported yesterday.

The baby was Carol Ann Orleans. She was found unconscious by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Orleans, in her crib in their Laurel home, Dr. Maloney said. He issued a certificate of accidental death due to suffocation.

The mother's attempts at artificial respiration were unsuccessful. Her daughter was pronounced dead by Dr. Bryan Warren, of Laurel.

Cooperatives Loan Bill Advances Step

A bill to authorize one billion dollars in Federal loans to cooperatives for construction of moderately-priced homes advanced a step in Congress yesterday.

Kloeber, Ex-Budget Aide, Dies

Funeral services for Royall Ogden Kloeber, 69, retired assistant director of the Budge Bureau who died yesterday, will be held at 11:30 a. m. Saurday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Kloeber died in Doctors Hospital from injuries sustained in an auto accident at Waynesboro, Pa., July 23. He and his wife were en route to the mountains for a short vacation. Their home address is 3032 Rodman st. nw.

Born in Lynchburg, Va., Mr. Kloeber was educated in public schools in Lynchburg and Washington. He entered the Government in 1898 in the Office of the Paymaster General of the War Department.

He served there continuously until 1922. During World War I, Mr. Kloeber went overseas in a civilian capacity and was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his work.

In 1922, Mr. Kloeber resigned his post as assistant director of finance of the Army to become assistant director of the Budget Bureau. He held the Budget Bureau post until ill health forced his retirement in 1935.

During World War II, he was recalled to the Budget Bureau and served until October, 1944.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Zula Kloeber, four children, Julian M. Kloeber, 3342 S st. se.; Mrs. Thomas A. Hayward, Arlington; and Richard M. Kloeber, Arlington; and one sister, Mrs. William M. Kennedy, 2915 Connecticue ave. nw.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Although Fond of Next Door Neighbor, Woman Is Worn Out With Her Borrowing and Visiting; How Tactfully Put a Stop to This Imposition?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We live in the great Northwest (as it is sometimes called), and my problem is my next-door neighbor and her family.

For three years now she has used my telephone, and as we are on a four-party line, it is really unfair to the other parties as well as a tax on my patience. Also we've let her family use our car on special occasions; and they borrow our kodak, our sleeping bag, etc.; but worst of all, she takes up too much of my time.

I made my big mistake when her daughter was in the hospital for three months. She would come over every morning and stay from about 9 a. m. until noon, and because I felt sorry for her and wanted to be a friend to her in time of need, I would listen, give her lunch, etc.,—but now her daughter is home and well and they both bother me.

Hasn't the Heart to Show Annoyance

I HAVE young children and don't have time for morning coffee. Also I am sick and tired of having no home privacy and of being imposed upon; and my friends have told me to "freeze her out." But when I try this I feel mean and unkind and unhappy about it. I don't want to be like that. Is there any other solution?

I like the mother and would like to keep a friendly feeling, and I have been nice to her until recently. They are very frugal, as you've probably guessed, and "use" other people constantly. I never go to her house or borrow a thing. Please tell me how to cope. S. N.

Woman Is Hoaxed by Her Emotions

DEAR S. N.: It is a common impulse to judge others in terms of one's self; and your mistake with Mrs. Pest is of this order. She has become a problem on your hands because you feel "there but for the grace of God go I—," which isn't true.

The hallmark of fine feeling is involuntary consideration for the feelings of others, an attitude obviously inherent in your make-up, for you go to almost any lengths, self-sacrificingly, to avoid "hurting" someone else; and likewise you are careful not to put yourself in a position of imposing on neighbors.

However, Mrs. Pest isn't in the least like you, and she advertises the difference by her behavior, for she is a pernicious borrower and time-waster, hardly daunted by hints that she has worn out her welcome. On the score of feeling—and social growth—she is a heedless greedy child who will take advantage and press for endless consideration in relation to an "easy touch,"—and to hold her in check, you've got to treat her as if she were a child.

Childish Natures Need Firm Handling

IT'S NO USE trying to fend her off with feints of finesse suited to adult interchange; and rude hostility isn't the appropriate defense either. Rather you should forthrightly, calmly, kindly send her away when you're too busy to be bothered.

For example you may say pleasantly, "Oh, hello; how are you this fine day? Sorry but I can't stop a minute. I haven't time to visit this morning, so I can't ask you in. I've a million things to do and I want to catch a nap later on if possible." Then go on with whatever you were doing, in the yard or kitchen or on the porch; and if she lingers hopefully, ignore her for a space, then move off, out of talking range, calling back, "Well, excuse me now—," and disappear.

I realize that you would feel shamed and shattered by a "short answer" or brush-off reaction; therefore you tend to feel horridly cruel, a traitor to decency, when trying to ease her out; but just remember, you have to direct child-natures into line; and they don't mind that type of management if comfortably administered with an air of authority. M. H.

Emphasize Property Rights

Pilfering by Seven-Year-Old Not Cause for Great Concern

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

THE thought of the cupidity necessary for successful "stealing" makes the act seem particularly ugly to the sensitive parent.

We admit it is ugly. But, there are extenuating circumstances in the case of small children who experiment with all kinds of behavior before they become fixed in the type which society and the parent demand.

While the well-brought-up child knows that stealing is not permissible, the ease with which things can be picked up in the home, the school and industrial establishments, makes them too tempting for his feeble sense of ethics.

Mrs. R. W. M. is distressed by the acquisitiveness of her 7-year-old boy. She writes, "When he was 6 he helped himself to a piece of gum in a store. I neglected to tell the owner about it and it slipped my mind.

Praised for Telling

"Recently he took two erasers and I took him to the owner of the store and he commended him on being courageous enough to tell. The boy promised not to do it again.

"That was three months ago. The other day his father saw him taking a hunting knife from a hardware store and he made him give it back. We do not know what the owner said to him, but we are concerned with his repeated offenses.

"One contributing factor may be that we never pay cash and he may think we pick up things and walk away with them. We do not have much money, live in the country and he is an only child. He has a bicycle, scooter, skates, swing, sandbox, trapeze, electric train, radio, baseball equipment and cowboy outfit. We play ball with him, take him to the movies. He gets 15 cents allowance each week and it does hurt us to see him throw it away on bubble gum."

You are doing the right thing about his offenses and let us call it pilfering instead of stealing. At the age of 7, children want lots of things and the best of them may occasionally, until they know better, pick them up wherever they find them.

Should Have More Money

I would enlarge his allowance by 5 or 10 cents, or I would give him an opportunity, when possible, to work for some money in order for him to understand better than he does now the relationship between work and money and things and money. The way you live it seems that everything is his, so, when he gets away from home, the same feeling predominates.

Give him materials for making things, instead of toys and equipment which are finished. Keep harping on what is yours which he must ask for (the candy, for instance) and what is his. This will imbue him with the idea of property and each person's rights in it. He'll come through all right.

Well Planned Cleaning Job Is Not So Hard

Cleaning can be irksome in hot, sultry weather. But with careful planning, you can get the housework finished quickly each day and so still have time and energy for shopping or gardening or a trip to the beach.

To keep your house spic and span the easy way, the Hoover Home Institute advises once-a-week cleaning with the attachments of your vacuum cleaner. And if you have a number of rooms to keep clean, don't do the weekly cleaning for all of them on one day. A little done each day will keep the dust and dirt, which comes in open doors and windows in summer, from collecting.

For example, the slender crevice tool will get into corners that no whisk-broom can reach and with less effort.

Light, straight strokes with the vacuum fabric brush over the large surfaces of sofas and upholstered chairs will easily remove the week's dust, and delay the need for shampooing.

The soft dusting brush in your cleaning tool kit will come in handy for a number of tasks. The institute suggests gently stroking down your window curtains with the soft dusting brush. It'll remove the dust from them and put off the day for laundering. Woodwork especially carved or uneven surface, also can be made soot free with this cleaning too. Go over window sills and frames with it, too.

If your books seem to be gathering a lot of dust, just run the end of the hose across the top edges. The suction of your cleaner will get most of the dust. For a bit more thorough job tip out three or four books at a time so that the tops are exposed and run the dusting brush over them.

Carpets and rugs, however, should get a once-over-lightly every day or two. A cleaner with the triple-action principle—by which the rug is gently tapped to dislodge dust and dirt—does the job especially well and easily for you.

Ruth Bryan Rohde Tells Audience of Danish Loyalty

Recently, Ruth Bryan Rohde, former United States Minister to Denmark, in a speech in New York, told a thrilling story which everyone should hear. She told how Denmark has celebrated America's independence on July 4 each year for the past 30 years.

This custom was started by Danish-born Americans and the July 4 celebration is regularly held in a beautiful park which has a natural amphitheater surrounded by mountains. The Royal Family with the American Ambassador attend this impressive session. Over 20,000 Danish people sing the American National Anthem after which an address is made by the King and the American Ambassador reads a message sent by the President of the United States. A flag from every State in the United States, given by the Danish-Americans, borders the amphitheater with a huge American and Danish flag in the center.

Mrs. Rohde said it is a thrilling experience to see this magnificent expression of friendship by the democratic country of Denmark for the democracy of the United States. She said one out of every 14 Danes is in America and that this has created a strong bond between the peoples of our two countries.

Cream of Many Colors

Strange indeed were the ingredients used to give ice cream a pretty color in long ago days. For green, it was recommended that the juice be pressed from spinach or beet leaves and added to the ice cream. For yellow, saffron or the yolk of eggs was used to color the cream. For red, it was suggested that beet root be sliced, water poured over, and the juice used to color the ice cream red.

Mahogany Variations

To most people, mahogany is mahogany but if one visits a furniture store, one is sure to notice a great difference in the appearance of mahogany pieces. This difference may range all the way from wood with little or no pattern to surfaces that show grain that is highly figured and often in beautifully matched effects.

The reason for this is that the wood from each tree is always different from another. The wood of some of the trees is very plain and in others runs all the way from a plain stripe or ribbon pattern to swirls and crotches considered the most highly decorative of all wood figures.

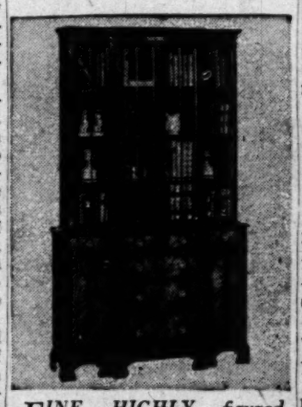
Figure in mahogany is also associated with sources of supply. For instance, the mahogany from the west coast of Africa runs to a high percentage of "figure" consequently, the greater part of the mahogany veneers used in this country for the fronts and tops of our very finest mahogany pieces, are from logs that originate in the lush African rain forests extending inland from the ocean two to three hundred miles.

African mahogany is also used in this country in the form of lumber but it is not quite as firm textured as South American mahogany which is preferred for fine carving and turning and for structural parts.

Turning to the new world, the best known name is Honduras mahogany where it was first exploited in the days of Sheraton. This is a fine structural mahogany from Central America but also produces a modest amount of wood that is highly figured. The same type of wood is found from Nicaragua to southern Mexico. Some of the finest figured logs ever produced have come from this region but never in abundance.

Then there is the mahogany from the Upper Amazon in western Brazil and Peru—a relative newcomer in the market. This wood is an exceptionally fine structural wood but is not a source of veneers.

The mahogany finishes range from the bleached, which include the blonde and the honey colors, through the browns, the reddish browns to a dark cordovan that is also an ebony. The quality of the finish is of great importance and can either enhance the natural beauty of the wood or almost obscure it, if improperly applied. A really good finish is one that closely approximates the color the wood would naturally achieve through nature and time, and brings out the highlights and the undertones, and the wonderful play of light and shadow in the wide variety of figures.



FINE, HIGHLY figured mahogany veneers finished to emphasize the highlights and shadows of the grain, enhance the beauty of this handsome junior-sized breakfront. With a sliding tray, the breakfront may be used in the living room as bookcase and desk or double in the dining room as a china cabinet, linen chest and serving table

Most popular female cure is to go out and purchase a new hat. Ida Lupino follows that solution, too, but she says the "surest cure is also to buy earrings to go with the chapeaux." Her latest acquisition is a handsome pair of earclips, consisting of a cluster of deep blue sapphires surrounded by brilliant white palladium petals interspersed with diamonds.

"It just makes my deep blue velvet off-the-face picture hat and it shattered my last 'Blue Monday' into oblivion," said Miss Lupino.

Time You Learned How to Walk

THERE'S no doubt beauty is impossible without a graceful walk.

Did you know that men unconsciously judge a woman's age by the way she walks? It's true. And the average male will tell you nothing can make a woman more unattractive than an ungainly gaint, pigeon-toes or duck feet, "over-dressed" feet or shoes that looked as if they were intended for two other people."

Walking is wonderful exercise to develop an attractive figure, tone up the muscles that will help you to hold that figure, and keep your feet youthful and springy. But only when you walk properly—in the right shoes for your feet and build.

The first step is to have a pediatrist or competent shoe fitter help you select the right last. Next you'll buy shoes with an eye to fit, materials and purpose. Keep your vanity in check and you'll soon be walking comfortably in shoes long and wide enough to keep from pinching. Insist on the best materials and you'll have leather soles underfoot, to give your step a firm but flexible foundation and the benefits of leather's ability to "breathe." Remember what you'll use the shoes for, and you won't end up doing housework on stilt heels, or going on a long shopping trip in ballet slippers.

Rested Mrs. Truman Greets Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Mesta

By Genevieve Reynolds

THE NATION'S front-page femmes yesterday took over the spotlight at a reception honoring Mrs. George Mesta, the American Minister to Luxembourg, and Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, treasurer of the United States. Hostesses at the special event were Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. India Edwards, director of the Women's Division, DNC.

All eyes were focused on Mrs. Truman, who appeared 20 pounds lighter and looking remarkably refreshed after her vacation mission. The First Lady wore a becoming navy sheer dress and white flowered hat, made halo style. A few delicate geranium-blue posies and an occasional American beauty colored flower gave dash to the chic hat. Upon inquiring what Mrs. Truman's slimming secret was, the answer was "elimination of salt from the diet."

In a jovial, friendly mood, Mrs. Truman walked around the Carlton Hotel's Carlton Room where the festive event was held, chatting with old friends and familiar faces among the newswomen. She received with the hostesses and honorees.

Incidentally, the First Lady has a remarkable memory for names and faces. She never forgets either.

But, back to the ladies of the hour—Mrs. Mesta and Mrs. Clark. For the former it was a matter of greeting innumerable friends, and receiving hundreds of congratulations on her new post. To Mrs. Clark it meant meeting countless of Washington's top flight women Government executives and the popular official wives. Also, the two renewed acquaintances with national club leaders, and Democratic National Committee Women, from many States.

Mrs. Mesta wore a two-piece turquoise blue linen suit. Forthright, friendly Mrs. Clark looked cool as an iced lettuce leaf in a white imported dotted Swiss dress, made with a gored skirt, fitted waist, and long sleeves. With it she wore a wide-brimmed black hat, black shoes. Handsome Mrs. Edwards wore a chic black chiffon dress with lace inserts and a black picture hat. Charming Mrs. Tillett chose a cocoa brown chiffon with a flared skirt and tight fitted waist.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

Summer experiences were the subject of conversation when this trio met at the reception at the Carlton Hotel yesterday Mrs. Harry Truman chats with Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark (right) new United States Treasurer, and Mrs. Perle Mesta, our new Minister to Luxembourg. Occasion was the party given for Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Mesta

Attractive Mrs. Vinson

HOLDING a court all her own was popular Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, also showing the results of a slimnastic routine. She chatted with—among others—Mrs. Jesse M. Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and Mrs. John Snyder, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury.

From the "Little Cabinet" came Mrs. T. Lamar Caudle, wife of the Assistant Attorney General, and Mrs. C. Girard Davidson, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

Representative Cecil Hardin of Indiana was there telling friends that she loved "parties and people." Representative Edith Nourse Rogers stopped to talk with the Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint. Mrs. Rogers wore a becoming two-piece mustard-colored suit with a rustling, matching plaid taffeta petticoat.

Two interesting guests were Democratic women who are bidding for seats in Congress via special election—Mrs. Robert L. Coffey, sr., of Johnstown, Pa., and Mrs. Edna F. Kelly of Brooklyn, N. Y. Equally interesting and amusing was stock grower Mrs. Susan Qualey, banker and Wyoming's National Democratic Committeewoman. She's the house guest of Mrs. Ross.

Others Attending

GLIMPSED among the guests were Mrs. Julian Friant, president of the Woman's National Democratic Club; Mrs. Philip Owen, Miss Marguerite Rawalt, Mrs. Georgia Lusk, Mrs. Peyton Ford, Miss Bertha Joseph, Mrs. Curtis Shears, Mrs. Jackson Davis, Dr. Agnes Wells, chairman of the National Woman's Party; Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, a past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Judge Nadine Gallagher, Judge Lucy Howorth, Miss Helen McNulta, Judge Marion J. Harrimon, only woman judge of the United States Tax Court.

Taking turns at the tea table were Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, Mrs. May Thompson Evans, Judge Edith H. Cockrill of the District Juvenile Court; Miss Dorothy Williams, press attache to the United States Legation in Luxembourg; Mrs. Agnes B. Waller of Des Moines, who will go to Luxembourg as Mrs. Mesta's personal secretary; Mrs. John Downey of Topeka, Kans., house guest of Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark.

Colombian Envoy Feted At Farewell Dinner

THE Ambassador of Colombia to the Organization of American States and Senora de Villegas were honored last evening at a dinner given by the Alternate Representative of Argentina to OAS, Dr. Enrique Ferrer Vieyra. The party was a farewell to Ambassador Villegas, who is going back soon to his country.

Among the guests were the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Colombia and Senora de Zulueta; the Argentine Ambassador to OAS and Senora de Corominas; the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Valle; the Dominican Ambassador to OAS and Senora de Salazar; the Minister-Counselor of the Argentine embassy and Senora de del Campo; the Representative of Colombia to the Inter-American Economic and Social Council, Dr. Jorge Mejia; the Agricultural Counselor to the Argentine Embassy, Dr. R. Barbagelata, and the Counselor of the embassy, Mr. Anchorena.

Look Men! Towels Are 'Old Hat' Hereabouts

Temper! Temper! Man's predilection for draping a towel around his middle for quick trips from shower to telephone often has the disastrous results pictured here

By Peggy Preston

DON'T ask your husband if he'd like a "Snaparong." Just hand him one, and let him get used to the idea gradually.

A "Snaparong" (and this is just between us girls for the time being) is a piece of white toweling cut about the length of a pair of shorts. It snaps double across the front and has a pocket for cigarettes, soap, or shaving equipment.

This little fashion item, due to debut here shortly, is designed to replace the old-fashioned turkish towel in the male wardrobe, the one he slips on for his headlong sprints from shower to telephone to front door to pantry. Of course, you can imagine the howl he's going to set up when he inadvertently grabs up a newfangled "Snaparong" instead of your best, hand-embroidered towel. And every fibre of his being will rebel against the revolutionary idea of the utility pocket.

But pay no heed and continue to hide your good towels, saving them wear and tear, and yourself something on the laundry bill.

Certain reactionary male members of the staff of The Washington Post's Sunday Department, with whom we share typewriter space; take a poor view of this fashion inovation. Nothing, they maintain stoutly—absolutely nothing can take the place of the turkish towel. And this despite the fact that even the best towels have a tendency to slip their moorings at crucial moments. But we have it on good authority (the designer's agent, herself) that after a few wearings, a man becomes so attached to his "Snaparong," that he actually refuses to don an ordinary towel.

The "Snaparong" is the newest in a sizeable family of 'rongs created by Gertrude Davenport, New York sports clothes stylist. Heretofore, there were only girl clothes in the family—the "Wraparong," a knee length wraparound terry-cloth for the house; the "Sleeparong," of cotton seersucker for summer sleeping; and the "Glamorong," a flower printed terry cloth with stole for the beach.

All three have identical styling. There is a button and loop under the arm and at the waist, and the garment looks like something between a strapless princess dress and a sarong. The "Wraparong," most popular to date of the trio, fills a fashion niche left vacant between a housecoat and a bathrobe. Women become devoted slaves to the garment when they discover how handy it is for wear while shampooing their hair; ironing on a hot day; giving baby a bath; or, like friend husband, for the dash from bathtub to phone. It comes in a variety of colors and sizes.

The more elaborate version, the "Glamorong," is meant primarily for beach wear, but is not yet available in Washington. Made of white terry cloth it has a handblocked flower design in red, green or blue, with matching stole and that doubles as a towel.

Miss Davenport, the young woman responsible for the 'rongs, left a Southern home to seek her fortune in New York as a dress designer. She hit on the idea of her inexpensive towel wraparounds while pondering on what article of clothing women needed that they already did not have.

"I was one of five girls," she recalls. "And life around our house was one constant round of telephone calls, ringing doorbells, and preparations for dates. A few 'wraprongs' would have simplified things considerably."

But, alas, she had to go to New York before she thought of them. Now women across the country, reaping new summer comfort as a result of Miss Davenport's Manhattan brain wave.

But look, fellers—no hands! A snappy little "Snaparong" of terry cloth, designed to replace the old-fashioned turkish towel in the male wardrobe, is on its way to town. It will be available soon at Woodward & Lothrop's north building

How to Cover Bleach Spots

I have a very bright pink cotton dress on which I recently dropped bleach, so that a white spot was left. I would like to know if there is any safe way to dye the spot back to the color of the dress without leaving a circle? M. L. Y.

The easiest way to make this spot less conspicuous and possibly give it the same tone as the dress is to color just the spot with crayons. You may be able to get a crayon the exact color or you may have to blend two or more colors. Completely cover the spot with the crayon, then lay the colored spot face down on blotting paper. Cover the back of the spot with a wet cloth and slowly press with a hot iron. This will steam the color into the fabric so it will be fairly resistant to washing. If, however, it washes out in time it can be renewed.

Another way to color it would be to stretch the fabric over a turkish towel and dye it with textile paints which can be mixed to match the dress color.

I agree with you that trying to redye just the spot with ordinary dyes might result in a larger spot.

I have a pair of woven raffia sandals on which the rope soles have become hopelessly worn. The tops and the soles to which the rope is attached are in excellent shape and I should like to have new rope soles put on. Is there any place in Washington which would do such a repair job? J. M. H.

I am told that replacing the soles with rope would be an expensive operation. It seems the usual method of repairing these soles is to replace the rope sole with one made of leather. The leather sole is attached with cement. One firm which does this work can be reached by calling District 7976.

Could you tell me how to remove mildew spots from a pastel cotton broadcloth dress? I tried soap and water, then vinegar and salt with no success. P. B. D.

It is not always possible to remove mildew completely and it seems that the only way you have a chance of removing this now is to use a bleach. Of course, you should first try the bleach on an inside spot of the dress to see what effect it has on the color before putting it on the stain. A safe mild bleach is sodium perborate. Dampen the stain with water, sprinkle the powdered perborate (obtainable at drug stores) on it and rub into the fabric. Let stand for an hour and rinse out. If this makes the stain lighter and does not affect the color, repeat.

How can one successfully remove red nail polish from a colored cotton dress? I tried polish remover, then soap and water, but the spot is still there, though fainter. P. B. D.

Try sponging the stain with carbon tetrachloride and then apply a banana oil or polish remover. Sponge with an absorbent cloth using upward motion to avoid spreading the stain. Also, place an absorbent pad under the stain before sponging. If this doesn't completely remove it try using a mild bleach such as sodium perborate. Dampen the stain with water, sprinkle bleach powder into it and let stand. Rinse thoroughly. Be sure to test effect of bleach on color of dress before applying to stain.

How can lipstick be removed from pastel cotton without fading the material? P. B. D.

Rub colorless vaseline or lard into the stain to loosen it. Rub well between the fingers to work the fat well into the fibers. When stain is well loosened, wet with water and wash with liquid shampoo. Shampoo soap will not set the stain as some soaps do. If all the color is not removed with first treatment, repeat.

Please give me the name of any preparation on the market which will dissolve and remove grease on a cook stove. Where may I purchase it? H. H.

There is a product on the market (it can be purchased most places where housewares are sold) made to dissolve and remove grease. The word degreaser is in the name of the commercial product and you will get it by asking for it in that way.

Also, burned-on grease can be softened and made easier to remove if the greasy surface is wiped with household ammonia. An effective way to apply the ammonia when the burned-on layer is heavy is to wet a paper towel with it, cover the surface and let stand overnight. In the case of the oven, wipe down the walls, cover the bottom with a cloth or paper towel saturated in ammonia and leave overnight with the door closed. In the morning the deposit should be softened enough to be removed by scouring with steel wool soap pads.

I am interested in a German dish called sour meat balls with gingersnap gravy. I have tried but have never been able to obtain a recipe for it. Could you or one of your readers help me? M. P. M.

And Balk Middle-Age Spread

A Few Good Stretches Start The Morning Off Trippingly

By Ida Jean Kain

TWO things are aging . . . worry and the middle-age spread. Is there any connection? Well, those who do mental work are the worst worriers, and they are also the ones who are most susceptible to the spread.

Exercise may not cure the worry habit—that calls for control of the mental muscles — but a bit of physical exertion can take your mind off troubles. And exercise can sure enough stop that middle spread!

Start with a natural—stretching. Anybody can stretch, at any age. For office workers, a few morning stretchers make a wonderful start for the day. Hold on . . . you're wrong. This doesn't mean to bound briskly out of bed and force yourself through setting-up exercises. No sense in knocking yourself out! Just idle your exercises and sort of tune up, the way you idle the motor of the car until it starts purring smoothly.

Why do you feel like stretching in the morning? It's nature's way of gently prodding the circulation into action. Stretching, for all its lazy reputation, is a powerful circulation stimulator. Try it . . . just a few simple stretches can help you feel all aglow.

But make it a natural . . . stay in bed if you prefer. If you're tall, the floor gives more freedom and space. Stretch arms out at the sides, wide, pushing clear to the ends of the fingertips. Now push down with the toes and stretch from tip to toe . . . it feels so good! Stretch again, complete with yawn. Once more, this time stretching your neck muscles, lift the chest and rib cage, pull up strongly with the abdominal muscles . . . feel the stretch. Relax.

Then pull along one side, pushing up with right arm and down with right leg . . . to pull out the middle slump. Follow through with a cross stretch, crossing right leg over left, and pull from tip to toe with right leg and right arm. This gentle twist brings the bias muscles into the action. Repeat with left arm and left leg. Easy does it.

A few morning stretchers get you off to a good start . . . but be sure you have something to go on. You'll do better on a balanced breakfast. You can't run a car without gas! Food is the source of your fuel for energy. Besides a citrus fruit, toast and coffee, have an egg or milk for good protein, so your energy will hold over.

Try starting the day with stretching and a good breakfast—you won't be dragging through your work.

Sandwich Loaf Sure to Please

Try a sandwich loaf for light summer entertaining

ARE you an entertaining lady?

This idea for a party sandwich loaf is a fine one to follow if you're having the crowd in for bridge on a summer's evening.

Party Sandwich Loaf

1 loaf unsliced sandwich bread
1/3 cup butter or margarine
Fillings and icing

Trim crusts from bread and cut loaf lengthwise in four slices. Spread each slice with creamed butter or margarine. Put slices together with the following:

(1) Cheese Filling: Mix two 6-ounce packages cream cheese with 2 tablespoons top milk and beat until light. Stir in ¼ cup chopped radishes and 3 tablespoons minced parsley. Spread this filling on first slice of bread; cover with second slice.

(2) Tuna Fish Filling: Flake contents of one 7-ounce can tuna fish; add 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickle, ½ cup chopped celery, and ¼ cup mayonnaise. Spread this filling on second slice of loaf and cover with third slice.

(3) Egg Filling: To three chopped, hard-cooked eggs, add ¼ cup chopped olives, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, and 1 teaspoon minced onion. Spread on third slice of bread and cover with fourth slice, then ice with the following:

Cream Cheese Icing

3 packages cream cheese (9 ounce)
¼ cup top milk
Radishes
Parsley

Mix cream cheese with milk and beat until light. Place sandwich loaf on platter. Spread icing on sides and top of loaf. Chill in refrigerator at least one hour before serving. Garnish with radishes and parsley. This recipe makes 12 servings.

Decorating Your Cottage Might Be Fun

By Ann Pringle

I've always thought it would be fun to decorate a summer cottage. It wouldn't have to be impressive or in perfect taste. Nobody expects to be overwhelmed by a weekend home. The main consideration, as far as I can tell, is that it should be restful, a place that will help quiet that nervous hum that builds up inside people during a week in the city.

I could, for example, bleach some of that mahogany furniture my mother used to have, and use it in the cottage living room. The armchairs, as I remember them, had cane sides and backs, and with some kind of sturdy cotton, I could scrape the stain off the tables and perhaps paint them to match the chair cushions.

I would try to take my color scheme from the landscape—sand beiges and yellows, faded gray blues and deep greens. I wouldn't have anything in the room brightly colored, because bright colors aren't cool and restful. Copper or brass lamps and plant holders would take care of the accent department.

All-Seeing 'Eye' Bares Human Cells

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—A new eye that tells what you're made of, and what happens in sickness, was announced today by Columbia University.

This eye is a big machine that can probe the secrets of single human cells, the smallest bits of living matter. Your body contains untold billions of them. Each is a tiny engine doing its own special job, in skin, muscle, blood or hair. They're so tiny that 2500 to 3000 of them make a row only an inch long.

The new eye tells more about a cell than scientists have been able to see before, said Prof. Arthur W. Pollister, who directed its construction.

Dr. Pollister said the machine will help in studies of cancer, anemia, genetics and many problems of biology and life.

The machine sees the different chemical parts of a cell by measuring the amounts of light that each chemical takes up or absorbs. It has a powerful microscope and a battery of photo-electric tubes to measure the light absorbed.

Judge Issues Ten Warrants in Rape Of Housewife, 18

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 3 (AP).—Superior Judge W. A. Richmond issued warrants today for the arrest of 10 Tacoma men charged with raping a young housewife on May 27.

The 10 men have been free on their personal recognizance since the alleged sex orgy. The woman, 18, has since been committed to the Western State Hospital.

A civil suit has been filed by the woman's husband asking $100,000 damages.

Two policemen testifying today said the woman was picked up by the men at 5 p.m. May 27, taken into a brushy region and repeatedly raped. She was released nude on a downtown street at 4 a. m. the next morning.

She had been an inmate of the institution before the attack but had been paroled to her husband.

Calvert St. Man, Ex-Machinist, Dies by Gunshot

A 70-year-old retired Navy Yard machinist, found yesterday with a gunshot wound in his temple in the cellar of his home at 3837 Calvert st. nw., died two hours later in Georgetown Hospital.

The man was William H. McComas. He was found by his landlady, Mrs. Rose M. Woods, with a Spanish automatic beside his body.

Mrs. Woods said McComas, who had roomed at her house since 1917, had no close relatives. He had not been well, had walked the floor repeatedly and generally acted despondent recently, Mrs. Woods said.

Deputy Coroner Dr. Richard Rosenberg withheld a death certificate pending completion of an investigation by the homicide squad.

Two Men Fined $5 On Gaming Charge

Arlington County Court Judge Hugh Reid yesterday fined two men $5 and costs on gambling charges.

The two men who pleaded guilty to charges of accepting horse-race bets were James Samuel alias James Stone, 1930 North Cameron st., Arlington, and Walter Ferguson, 213 West Fairfax st., Falls Church.

On a second charge of unlawful sale of alcoholic beverages, Samuel was given a suspended sentence of one year in jail plus a fine of $50 and costs.

Ingrid Bergman Cut In 30-Foot Plunge

Hollywood, Aug. 3 (AP).—Ingrid Bergman suffered cuts and bruises on her left arm and leg in a 30-foot plunge down the side of a volcano on the island of Stromboli, Italy, her studio said today.

The studio (RKO) reported the accident happened Saturday.

After being bandaged and treated with penicillin, the studio said, Miss Bergman went on working.

Wadden Named As Assistant U. S. Attorney

Thomas A. Wadden, jr., 27, of 1650 Harvard st. nw., has been appointed an Assistant United States Attorney here.

Wadden

He is assigned as a prosecutor in Municipal Court.

Wadden, a bachelor, is a native of North Carolina and a 1948 graduate of the University of North Carolina.

Prior to his present appointment he was in private practice and was a trial attorney for the Civil Aeronautics Board, he said.

During the war he was a lieutenant in the Navy and is now a captain in the Air Force Reserve.

Girl, 21, Gets Double Dunking In Potomac

Pauline M. Baker, 21, a Navy Department clerk who lives at 2216 P st. nw., was pulled from the Potomac River twice early yesterday morning within a matter of minutes.

Miss Baker had just finished a moonlight cruise aboard the 46-foot yacht Bilmar with her friends, Franklin B. Moore, 21, of 1426 21st st. nw.; Thomas H. Stephan, 21, of 1740 P st. nw., and Skipper Leslie Aaron, 38, when she took the double dunking.

The yacht was anchored in the channel about 100 yards downstream from Hains Point. Following her two companions, Miss Baker was transferring into Stephan's 14-foot runabout for the trip to shore when she tumbled into the stream. Captain Aaron pulled her out and into the smaller boat.

As Aaron stepped from the runabout to the yacht, the runabout capsized, throwing Miss Baker and the two men into the water. They all helped Miss Baker to the Bilmar, and a Harbor Police boat responding to Miss Baker's screams, took the party ashore.

Pan-Am Unit Seeks Steps to Stop Violence

The Inter-American Peace Commission decided yesterday to ask the 21 American governments for their suggestions for dealing with recent political upheavals in the Caribbean and Central America.

The move was taken at the initiative of the United States at a special meeting of the five-nation commission at the Pan American Union.

The commission, composed of delegates from the United States, Brazil, Argentina, Mexico and Cuba, was created at the 1940 Havana inter-American conference to seek peaceful means of resolving hemisphere disputes.

Incidents dating back to 1947 which have kept the Caribbean and Central American areas embroiled in political tensions include an attempted invasion of the Dominican Republic from Cuba in 1947, a Dominican-Haitian dispute, one involving Costa Rica and Nicaragua and the more recent attempted invasion of the Dominican Republic.

Union Official Asked to Explain Position Shift

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday called on Donald Henderson to explain the shift in his job in the CIO Food and Tobacco Workers Union before honoring the non-Communist affidavits filed by other officers.

Henderson resigned as president a week ago and said he was becoming administrative director of the union. The office of acting president was turned over to John Tisa, and the officers promptly submitted affidavits as required by the Taft-Hartley Act. They asked that the union be placed on election ballots in three vital industries where it is fighting for its life.

Henderson, an outspoken left wing labor leader, had refused himself to take an oath disavowing Communist connections. But his union was suffering from raiding assaults on all sides.

The board said that it would have to take official notice of the Henderson resignation and his appointment as administrative director. A spokesman said that "on the surface it appears that Henderson still is an officer.

WWDC Purchases Station WOL in $300,000 Deal

Ben Strouse, vice president of the Capital Broadcasting Co. which operates stations WWDC and WWDC-FM, yesterday announced the purchase of stations WOL and WOL-FM from the Cowles Broadcasting Co., of Des Moines, Iowa.

Strouse said his company paid about $300,000. The present management will operate WOL and WOL-FM until the Federal Communications Commission acts on an application for transfer of the physical facilities, which Strouse said he will file today.

FCC action on the application is expected to take at least 90 days.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Organized Thoughtfulness

One family we know has a practice that has always struck me as a good idea. Whenever they learn of something that one of their friends likes to eat or do especially, it's jotted down in a notebook. Later when this person comes to dinner, his favorite dish is on the table. Or when another friend has a birthday, she receives cut flowers of the kind which she likes.

Most of us remember some of the things that our relatives or friends enjoy. But far too often, after it's too late to do anything about it, we recall the simple thing we might have done that would have brought pleasure.

In families where others are remembered even in simple ways, children naturally develop the sort of consideration that we like to see. Your family may not find it necessary to keep the sort of record that our friends do. If it's a commonplace thing to remember others' likes and dislikes, however, growing youngsters will develop the sort of thoughtfulness that brings a glow.

Your Hair Grows Faster in Summer

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is more rapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT hair grows faster in the summer than at any other season is a scientific observation made by various authorities. Why not take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting now to give your hair the care and attention which it deserves?

First, let Thomas remove those dandruff scales which may be causing your scalp itch. A Thomas expert can also tell you how and when to expose your hair to the sun and what to do about excessive perspiration on the scalp. Come in and see for yourself why a quarter-million other persons have turned their scalp problems over to Thomas experts. Consultation and advice is gladly given (in private) without charge or obligation.

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Last week, on the day after his ninety-third birthday, George Bernard Shaw was visited by his old friend, Sir Cedric Hardwicke. The actor brought his 16-year-old son, Edward . . . Shaw gave the young man a good deal of what he called sage advice, then walked the Hardwickes to the gate of his home at Ayot St. Lawrence. He shook hands with Edward, and told the youngster: "In years to come, you will be very proud to say to people 'I once shook hands with Bernard Shaw'" . . . Shaw paused—and then continued: "And they will say to you: 'Who the hell is Bernard Shaw?'"

"Neddie" Herbert, the Mickey Cohen henchman who was killed by the gunmen who wounded the Hollywood mob-chief, left only $138. That's all the police were able to find in his pockets and in a thorough search of his room.

Walter Wanger and Joan Bennett are taking their children to Europe and will place them in school there for a year while Wanger works at his film-productions in Italy . . . Mrs. Pandit had a medical check-up and her doctor, Dr. Mortimer Rodgers, prescribed, among other things, two tickets to "South Pacific." The doctor got the tickets for Mrs. Pandit through his brother, Composer Richard Rodgers.

A French art dealer who knew Degas recently saw some Degas paintings go for record prices. He told of the day when the late artist attended a sale of paintings, and saw one of his pictures—which he had sold for only a few dollars—purchased by a collector for $150,000 . . . "How do you feel," the art dealer asked Degas, "to stand here and see one of your paintings sold for $150,000?" . . . Degas, who, of course, received no part of this money, said: "How do I feel? I feel like the horse brought to the winner's circle after winning the Grand Prix. The horse gets the garland of roses; the owner gets the money."

Elsa Maxwell discussed Eleanor Roosevelt's good deeds and her devious ways of cutting through red tape to accomplish them. "Mrs. Roosevelt," said Elsa, "is an unscrupulous Girl Scout" . . . Paul Grindle, the former Herald Tribune reporter, whose expose of Colonel Hunt touched off the investigation of Washington's 5 per centers, visited his former managing editor, who asked him: "How's business?" Grindle beamed: "Fine fine. I'm doing so well that soon I'll have enough money to be able to afford going back to newspaper work."

Douglas Improving

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—American Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas is progressing satisfactorily after the removal of a cataract from an eye injured in a fishing accident last April, embassy sources said today. He may be able to leave the hospital by the end of this week.

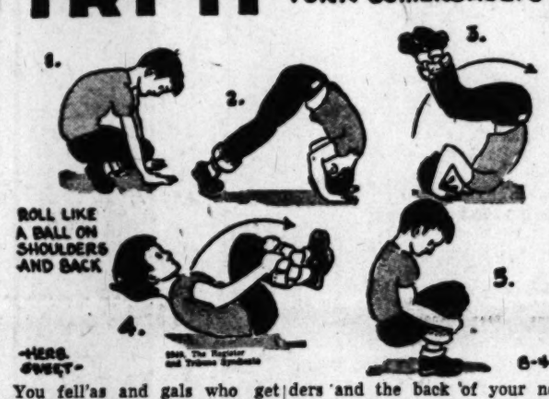
This Funny World

"What in the world is THAT thing?"

TRY IT FOR SUMMER FUN TURN SOMERSAULTS



You fell'as and gals who get tired of sitting in a comfortable chair all day long may want to try your ability for turning somersaults.

There are different types of forward somersaults, some where the tumbler rolls forward starting from a standing position, and some from a squatting position. To do a simple forward roll crouch on the heels as shown (Fig. 1), and place both hands flat on the ground. Now shift your weight forward and land on your shoulders and the back of your neck (Fig. 3).

Roll like a ball on your shoulders and back (Fig. 4) keeping your chin tucked in. Grab your shins as you roll over (Fig. 5) and speed up the roll as you get ready to rise to a standing position.

This is a basic tumbling stunt, and you beginners will be interested in watching for other TRY ITS on simple feats of skill. Some 'er tumblers and some 'er not.

TOMORROW: HOLD A NEIGHBORHOOD FLOWER SHOW.

What's the Verdict?

INVITATION TO TRESPASS

Q. An electric light company's main line ran along the edge of a public park where children habitually played. There was no fence separating the playground from two of the light company's poles. A ladder extended from the ground to the crossarm of one of the poles 20 feet above ground. A city ordinance required the company to letter each pole "Dangerous," but the company failed to do so. A 12-year-old boy climbed the ladder to the crossarms, and was electrocuted. Sued by the estate, the company demands a directed verdict in its favor, claiming the boy was a trespasser on its property. Is the company entitled to the directed verdict?

A. The light company knew, or should have known, that the light pole was near a playground, and that in that location it was pretty certain to attract 12-year-old boys. A ladder extending from the ground to a seat on a crossarm 20 feet high would be like a call to dinner to most 12-year-old boys.

With no sign on the pole to warn of its dangers, the laddered pole was an invitation to disaster to boys unchecked by fences. A jury could well find the pole to be an "attractive nuisance," which the company should have protected. Motion for directed verdict denied—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

Good Movies

I do not like the movies that . . . Are full of tears and crime . . . Or those that are so silly that . . . They are a waste of time . . . Or those where horror holds the screen . . . Until I get the chills . . . As savages and demons try . . . To manufacture thrills . . . I do not like hysteria . . . Or violence or shame . . . Or pictures where the hero is . . . The one who takes the blame . . . But I prefer the common scenes . . . At home and on the street . . . Where life is real and human and . . . The music soft and sweet . . . Because it seems to me that my . . . Admission and the tax . . . Entitles me to rest my eyes . . . And help my mind relax.

BARNABY

We can't afford to cut your father and Mr. Vee Ess in on our pearl enterprise, Barnaby. We'll just hide the clams—
I told Pop that Gus and McSnoyd made those noises. He didn't believe me—
He will. When he sees the pearls.
What's that?
A seal. An old friend of mine. Hello, Rover—
Urk!
He was having trouble opening his cage at the Amusement Park... And I just happened along.
Oh.
Urk!

Many Car Buyers are Exempt from D. C. Sales Tax!

MARYLAND & VIRGINIA RESIDENTS ARE EXEMPT!

Residents of Maryland or Virginia can buy a car in Washington without paying the D.C. title fee excise tax (sales tax). Maryland residents must still pay the old established Maryland title fee excise tax. Virginia residents can buy a tax-free car in the District of Columbia. Remember, it costs you no more to buy in Washington!

D. C. RESIDENTS MUST PAY TAX WHEREVER THEY BUY!

If you're a Washington resident, you're required by law to pay the title fee excise tax (sales tax) regardless of where you plan to purchase your car. You can't save the tax by buying an automobile outside of the District of Columbia. Remember, it costs you no more to buy in Washington!

NO NEED TO CHANGE YOUR BUYING HABITS!

Automobiles in Washington and Maryland are not taxed until they're titled. Washington residents must title their cars in the District of Columbia, Maryland residents in Maryland and Virginia residents in Virginia. You gain absolutely nothing by changing your buying habits. Remember, it costs you no more to buy in Washington!

Here's a Tough One For You Puzzle Fans

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. wonders whether you can rearrange the letters in the word "chesty" to form another word.

It's not as easy as it looks. The correct answer is at the end of this column.

DOG'S LIFE

Gwen Firmin of 4505 1st st. se. wonders whether we've heard about the three dogs who met in Paris.

The English bulldog told his companions that, in spite of austerity regulations, he was eating quite well.

The French poodle agreed that he, too, could find no complaint with postwar conditions. But the Russian wolfhound really went overboard in describing conditions at home.

"We Russians," he bragged, "have the best of everything. They give me so much good food I can't even eat it all. Conditions are simply perfect."

"Is that so," harumphed the bulldog. "If things are so wonderful in Russia what are you doin here in Paris?"

"Every once in a while," replied the wolfhound, "I like to bark."

MISCELLANY

Two District Liners pay tribute to the courtesy and efficiency of area police. Major C. V. Alba's wife was desperately ill recently, and he had to move her with utmost speed from their home in Arlington to Bolling Field Hospital. The help of Arlington and District motorcycle officers probably saved Mrs. Alba's life . . . And Elizabeth C. Clark of 1820 Kilbourne pl. nw. tells of two officers picking up a young Negro for questioning, because he appeared to be drunk. "They questioned him with courtesy, patience and good temper to find out what the real trouble was, and conducted themselves in a helpful manner that was a credit to the intelligence and character of the Police Department" . . . The officers who made such a fine impression are Pvts. E. G. McClanahan and L. A. Wood, of Number 10 . . . Mrs. Helen Colbert of 3808 Garrison st. nw. forwards a money order for $2.55 for Children's Hospital and explains that once again the girls in the neighborhood have held a "Day" for the hospital with adults paying 10 cents admission and kids 5 cents. Performers and their ages were: Suzanne Stafford (9), Jeanne French (11), Ellen Smith (9), Minna Newman (13) and Joan (10) and Carol (7) Colbert . . . Mayo Beach police charged a Washington man with disorderly conduct after he had kissed his wife in public. Now that the practice has been deemed illegal, maybe it'll become popular.

ADD SIGNS

Kathleen Chaimas wonders whether we saw the marquee sign on the Dupont Theater the other day. It said:

"Last Day for One Night With You."

GIVE-AWAYS

"One dozen kittens of assorted patterns and colors; all well-behaved and friendly." (Woodley 7917.)

"Year-old mother cat and 4-month-old daughter need home with play yard; both good mousers." (King 8-9130 after 6 p. m.)

"Two very cute 9-week-old female English setter puppies." (Falls Church 3865.)

MATTER OF TASTE

An examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission has ruled, in effect, that there's no difference between spinach that's packed in a cellophane sack and spinach that comes with the 75-cent blue plate special ("No Substitutions, Please").

I'm inclined to question that decision. It seems to me that the spinach in the cellophane sack would probably be more palatable. The cellophane might kill the taste of the spinach.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Is there some mysterious link between stock market averages and the temperature readings? They've both been edging upward again.

JUST LIKE DADDY

Richard H. Hobbs of 4105 8th st. nw. was doing some heavy studying a while back (for an exam at George Washington University) when he noticed that his 2½-year-old daughter was busily engaged in some kind of project.

First she dragged her little play-table over, and set it up alongside Dick's; then she lugged her chair over, sat down in it, and propped her feet up on the table.

"What do you think you're doing, young lady?" asked Dick.

"I'm studying, too, Daddy," came the prompt reply.

FORE (BUT NOT FIVE)

Oh, husband with your golfing togs,
I'm giving you fair warning!
I will not rise to feed you, dear,
At five tomorrow morning.

50 YEARS OF KNOW HOW

MANY LITTLE GIRLS AND BOYS NEED "SPECS"

Now . . . before school begins have the little ones eyes examined—so many of them need to wear glasses! And they'll like wearing glasses with frames fitted to their young faces in styles like the "big people" wear. Our optical department is sure to fit their eyes properly so that they are protected from the dangers of incorrect vision. Make an appointment for their eye examination, today.

District Man Places In National Bridge

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—Miss Ruth Sherman and Mrs. Lester Rhodes, both of New York, led the field of 90 contesting pairs into today's final round of the National Women's Pairs championship at the National Contract Bridge Tournament.

William A. Poissant, Washington, D. C., and Grant Shaffer, Detroit, led the 80 qualified men's pairs from an original field of 152.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Race Track Puzzle Now Clearer

By Drew Pearson

In 1946 when building materials were so scarce that millions of veterans were looking for homes, this column exposed the manner in which the Tanforan race track at San Bruno, Calif., flouted the Government and spent $2,000,000 on new grandstands, stables, etc.

Pearson

No one knew the reason why. Now the backstage story becomes clearer. The Tanforan track did have friends—including the President's military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan, with his Greek sidekick John Maragon and lobbyist James V. Hunt.

His job is to protect veterans. The Senate investigating committee says he used his influence to help a race track get building materials supposedly reserved for veterans.

For when his friend, Maragon, couldn't get building restrictions raised to help the Tanforan track, Vaughan sent his other friend, Hunt, to the housing expediter. As a result, the housing expediter, also supposed to protect veterans, instructed the Justice Department to lift the injunction a Federal judge in California had placed against Tanforan's use of building materials.

Bootlegger Runs Track

The Tanforan track was owned by Joseph H. Reinfeld, big rum boat bootlegger off the New Jersey coast during prohibition, once indicted for the murder of Louis Lafera, a prohibition agent who had seized his boat Herreshoff with $75,000 worth of whisky.

Prohibition ended and Reinfeld became exclusive distributor of Haig and Haig, King William Scotches, Martini and Rossi vermouth, plus regional distributor for Seagrams and Schenleys. He also became the secret owner, with two others, of the Tanforan race track.

On June 2 and June 22, 1946, this column first noted the Tanforan violation of housing regulations. As early as May, 1946, the Tanforan crowd seemed to have mysterious influence in Washington, which ruled that they were merely demolishing former Navy construction.

United States authorities in California, however, ruled otherwise. And on May 31, Gilbert Kneiss, district Civilian Production Administration representative, refused Tanforan a permit for new construction, despite which a CPA inspector on June 5 found Tanforan continuing new construction.

Tanforan continued to ignore building regulations and Federal officials in California. Between June, 1946, and February 14, 1947, there were 18 violations of CPA regulations. In that period, the track put up luxurious new construction.

Finally this was too much for United States Judge George B. Harris in San Francisco and, on February 14, 1947, he issued an injunction banning further construction. Even this, however, was ignored.

Judge Takes Initiative

The Washington Merry-Go-Round at that time said: "The Tanforan boys continued to fix up their race track at a cost of two million dollars . . . Their flouting of the Government appeared so willful that rumor got round they had an 'in' with somebody very high up . . . The contempt citation was initiated by Judge Harris himself. CPA apparently was doing nothing, so the judge decided to move . . . CPA officials, when asked why they hadn't recommended prosecution, said: 'All our reports have gone to Washington. We have referred everything to Washington for their decision.' . . . In Washington CPA Counsel Harold Price admitted the Tanforan report was on his desk but said he had not had time to study it."

While Washington marked time, however, United States Judge Dal Lemmon in California proceeded with the prosecution. Result: Guy Standifer, front man for Joe Reinfeld, plus Tanforan contractors, got three months in jail and fines of $90,000. Joe Reinfeld and the other two real owners never appeared in the picture and were never prosecuted.

Just when the Maragon-Vaughan-Hunt team stepped into the picture is not known. Senate investigators say their activity may not have started until after Tanforan faced criminal prosecution. At any rate the triumvirate was remarkably successful.

It was after Vaughan, Maragon and Hunt came into the picture that all of Tanforan's troubles suddenly vanished.
